AUSTIN J. WHITE, CRASH VICTIM, TO BE BURIED HERE

Funeral services for Austin Joseph White of Hill, Cal., who lost his life in an auto wreck here early Wednes- day morning at the intersection of King's highway and Stewart avenue, will be held at the graveside in the Siskiyou Memorial park, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. W. J. Howell will deliver the sermon, with Perell funeral parlors in charge of ar- rangements.

A number of relatives of the man are now in Medford, and others are expected for the funeral tomorrow. A cousin, Tom DeBessell, well known here, was over from Klamath Falls yesterday.

Fred Clawson of Ashland and Hill, and James Cisek of Hill, who received severe injuries in the same auto wreck, were reported in an improved condition at the Community hospital today.

Clawson's mother, Mrs. Anna Clawson of Hornbrook, Cal., arrived yester- day to be near him. His brother, Theodore, Clawson, was also down from Ashland.

"Rogue River Country Sings Wel- coming Song" is the title of a full page illustrated article appearing in last Sunday's Los Angeles Times, de- voted to the Rogue River country. The country is referred to as a "hunting and fishing paradise" in the moter- logue, written by Lynn J. Rogers.

Mountains, rivers, a log cabin, deer, hanging high, and fishing boat are shown in the drawings. And photo- graphs of the Gold Beach bridge, power boating up the Rogue, and nu- merous other scenes, aid in putting over the invitation to visit this coun- try which the article offers. "Vast, still, virgin, an outdoor paradise, where man can get close to the bosom of nature and draw peace, consolation and inspiration, and hear strange whispers bespeak courage and the promise of newer, finer things" is a bit of the description of the Rogue River country, as Rogers has written it.

The investigation of the wreck and events preceding it at the Valley View roadhouse, from which the men were returning when their Ford coupe failed to make the turn, was being continued today. The date for the inquest into White's death, however, has not been announced, although one is planned, the district attorney's office reported yesterday.

This step was taken, it was pointed out, as a profitable move to mem- bers of the association. Three new members were taken into the organiza- tion.

A special meeting has been called for Tuesday evening, October 17, at 8 o'clock, at his home on Florence avenue. All rabbit breeders are wel- come.

RABBIT BREEDERS PLAN AFFILIATION

Southern Oregon Rabbit Breeders' association held its regular meeting this week with President C. C. Alt- house in charge. During the busi- ness session it was voted to affiliate with the American Fur Growers' as- sociation.

"Friday the 13th?—I'm not even talking today. But then it must be my lucky day, none of the others are." That is Chief of Police Clatus McCredie's interpretation of the cir- cled 13 on October calendars.

United States Marshal Jack Day, who has been attending the federal court here, said today that this is

SUPERSTITIOUS KEEP EYE OPEN FOR BAD LUCK

Maybe "westerners" as they term it, ignore superstitions that accom- pany a Friday the 13th, and even some who are Irish say they don't bother about such things. But, re- gardless, a cautious attitude has been assumed by many Medford folk for this particular day.

For instance, Coroner Frank Perl started keeping a check on things early today, for some especially loud crows by his bantam rooster about 4 a. m., let him know that someone was trying to get the birds out of the cherry tree at the Perl home. A re- port was made to city police—and Coroner Perl is waiting for Bad Luck day to end.

"School will go on just the same," was Superintendent E. H. Hedrick's idea of today. No undue circum- stances had been recorded by any of the school employees, he said.

"Boy, I'm watching my toes. I haven't fallen down yet, but—" so Frank Rogers, city building inspector, is walking gingerly down the steps at the city hall today. He doesn't think hopping, skipping and jump- ing is a very good idea today.

Wm. F. "Togery Bill" Isaacs thinks 13 is a nice number, and Fridays are particularly so, especially in this land of the free and home of the brave.

"Friday the 13th?—I'm not even talking today. But then it must be my lucky day, none of the others are." That is Chief of Police Clatus McCredie's interpretation of the cir- cled 13 on October calendars.

United States Marshal Jack Day, who has been attending the federal court here, said today that this is his last official visit to Medford, but is sure that Friday the 13th has nothing to do with it. "It's the Demo- crate who want to decapitate me," the Republican said, and added that he really thought he was much better looking than the comedian, Joe E. Brown, whose photo was once mis- taken for the federal marshal.

Mayor E. M. Wilson absolutely re- fuses to set aside any time today to consider superstitions. He considers the a bit unnecessary.

Milton Ottoman, ticket agent at the Southern Pacific depot, thinks he will get through the day all right, as he was born in the west and hasn't any superstitions. "I'll sell just as many tickets today, and mark up just as many trains and everything—if a black cat doesn't run in front of me." Up to noon he considered himself lucky.

Then there's Hal S. Kenyon, fed- eral court clerk, who enjoys his fish- ing while in the Rogue River valley each fall for the October court term. He just delayed his fishing trip un- til tomorrow, he said this afternoon, for he was sure he couldn't catch a fish today. He plans a trip Satur- day, though, and thinks he'll be lucky.

Without a single criminal case in court, following a holiday, is enough to make Justice of the Peace W. R. Coleman decide that Friday is his lucky day.

"These Fridays the 13th always take their toll," was the decision reached by Attorney Frank DeSouza this morning. He said he hadn't been counted in the group "yet."
