

GLORIFY CINEMA STARS IS ORDER IN SOVIET FILMS

Directors Told to Seep Out and Develop Actors As in Other Lands—Collective Theory Is Hit Hard

By EUGENE LYONS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW.—(UP)—Soviet motion picture directors have been instructed at last to seek out and develop film stars and to glorify them as in other lands.

"Let Soviet Stars Shine!" commands the headline of the leading film organ, Kino Gazette.

This order cuts 15 years of theorizing about motion pictures being a collective product. The collective notion is not relinquished, but the power—that-be finally decided that individual stardom does not necessarily contradict collective work.

Own Picture Stars. "Why, after all," asks Kino Gazette, "should we not have our own movie stars, well-known and favorites of the public? Why can any film fan here name two dozen foreign motion picture artists, while he rarely can mention one or two really popular figures from the Soviet films?"

The answers to these naive questions are not as simple as they seem. But everyone knows them anyhow. It is a fact that heretofore the featuring of individual stars practically was forbidden. The whole institution of stardom was regarded as something bourgeois.

Grave Stars. Now the government has realized that the public craves stars; that falling to find native ones; that they adopt foreign stars. Therefore, it has been decided to provide the home-made product.

The Kino Gazette asserts that it is the duty of every Soviet director worth his salt and rubles to look around among young movie players for material which can be developed to starlike heights.

Soviet film people still are very far from the sunken-hat and private-swimming-pool stage of their career. In fact, two or three rooms and a food ration-book still are the peak of grandeur for a movie star here.

All the same, there are better days ahead for them. Lewa Milestone, director of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and one of Hollywood's leading lights, has been making an extensive study of the Soviet motion picture industry, in both Leningrad and Moscow.

His visit to the Soviet Union is in connection with the scheduled Hollywood production under his aegis of a Russian story tentatively titled "Red Square," on a scenario done by Laurence Stallings from a Russian novel by Ilya Ehrenberg.

"What impresses me most in Russian movie studios," Milestone said, "is the genuine spirit of cooperation which exists there. I found no jealousy and backbiting. Everyone seemed really interested to have the other fellows succeed. There is a sort of collective pride which we do not have at home.

"And what magnificent actors! I saw a performance of 'Days of the Turbins,' for instance. Every character in it was a finished and superb actor. Minor characters give performances which would raise a Broadway audience out of its seats."

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Under terms of the public works bill, nearly $4,500,000 has been allocated to Oregon, in addition to the $6,100,000 highway and bridge grant, it was said here by Senator Frederick Steiwer.

National forest highways will spend $3,186,449 of this Monday; national forest roads and trails, $1,054,000, and public lands highways, $333,141. The Crater Lake project involves about $663,000.

"Speak" Patrons May Take Drink Over Open Coffin

MENDOTA, Minn., Nov. 1.—(UP)—Guy Moon's business in life was serving drinks over a bar and in death the drinks are going to be served over his open casket, providing anybody wants a drink.

Moon, who had been proprietor for several years of a night club known as the "Monkey House," died Saturday of heart disease. He is survived by Mrs. Maud Moon, his widow, who decided to hold the funeral at the club.

The usual bar service and music will be interrupted long enough for the service but prior to that, Moon's body will lie in state in front of the bar and if anybody wants to buy a drink he will have to reach over the open casket to get it.

WOMEN FLOCK TO TRADE WORK FOR NEEDED CLOTHING

One of the busiest places in Medford these days is the Welfare Exchange in the city hall. Energetic women, anxious to find work to do, that they may in return receive clothing for needy families, were crowding the hallway yesterday, seeking entrance and interviews with Miss Helen Carlton, chairman of the exchange, and members of her committee.

Most of them wanted to know when the sewing rooms would be opened and how soon they would be permitted to start work in them. All were told that those in the greatest need would be allowed first use of the rooms, which will be opened around November 15.

The exchange is now operated in two rooms on the third floor, which are well lighted and sanitary, but a little small for accommodating the crowds. Two additional rooms will be devoted to sewing and making of quilts and comforters in keeping with the program inaugurated last year, which proved very satisfactory.

A number of inquiries have come to the exchange regarding women willing to work by the hour at house cleaning, caring for children or other home tasks. Anyone wishing to obtain such work is asked to call at the exchange Wednesday or Saturday or to telephone 187 to get in touch with the committee members.

The cheery atmosphere, which prevailed throughout the working season last year, was evidenced again today in the exchange. All women expressed the desire to work for what they receive and were obviously pleased that such an opportunity is again extended to them.

Clothing, ranging from warm underthings to hats and coats, is to be found on the shelves again this year and the demand is constantly increasing as the days grow colder. Anyone with garments to give is asked to notify the exchange.

SALEM CANNERIES HAVE HUGE PACK FOR SEASON

SALEM, Nov. 2.—(AP)—More than 1,250,000 cases of fruits and vegetables and about 32,000 barrels of cherries have been canned in the Salem area this year, according to the latest estimate.

Prunes topped the list with pears running second and cherries third. Cherries were barreled for the marachino trade. The cherry pack was far above any previous record.

RICKETY AUTOS GET BLAME FOR FATALITY BOOST

Death Toll of 153 in Oregon for First Nine Months of Year Mainly Due to Use of Worn-Out Equipment

SALEM, Ore.—(UP)—Automobile fatalities in Oregon for the first nine months of this year showed an 8.65 increase over the same period of 1932, despite a considerable decrease in motor registrations.

There were 153 persons killed in that period this year. One secretary of state's office reported compared to 141 in 1932. The increase is attributed to the fact that many cars are on the road with inferior equipment, due to financial stress of owners. Many accidents are caused by poor tires, defective brakes and other mechanical troubles.

Greatest number of traffic deaths in Oregon this year, 27, occurred in January. Twenty-five persons were killed in accidents during July, 24 in August. Fatalities in other months were: February, 12; March, 17; April, 15; May, 19; June, 14; September, 16.

A national survey showed that traffic deaths in many other states also increased during the first nine months of the year. In the United States 14,261 persons were killed, compared to 14,846 last year, a decrease of 3.94 per cent. It was estimated nearly 570,000 more persons were injured in 523,000 accidents during that period.

Iaaho, with a 100 per cent increase in deaths, had the worst record of any American state. There were 68 persons killed, compared to 34 a year ago. Maine deaths increased 50 per cent, South Dakota 45.10, Nebraska 38.90. Greatest decrease was in District of Columbia, 36.67 per cent. Delaware deaths decreased 33.33 per cent, Arkansas 23.33.

Records for other states included California decrease 3.85, Arizona decrease 8.91, Montana increase 12.24, Nevada increase 21.43, Washington decrease 1.85.

OREGON TAKING NO CHANCE WITH UTES

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Prince Callison, youthful University of Oregon football coach, is taking no chances with the perennial Rocky Ute—and will send in his entire first string when the teams meet here Saturday afternoon. Oregon will find itself greatly outweighed in the line and the Webfoots do not relish a line combat with the Oregon State game last but two weeks away.

Co-captain Mark Temple of the Webfoots is not likely to start against the Utes because of an injured leg. This will greatly weaken the Oregon offense.

Despite the Utes' weight advantage and their determination to upset the Webfoots (they have been pointing for that game since the season opened) Oregon is a slight favorite because of its classier offense.

43 COMING FOR DUTY IN CCC CAMPS OF AREA

Forty-three men enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps will arrive in Medford tomorrow morning on the Oregonian at 8:15 o'clock, from Vancouver Barracks, according to announcement made at the district headquarters here today. They will be stationed in winter camps in this district.

Tomorrow, the Klamath county quota of 20 men will arrive at the headquarters here to be enrolled, having been selected by the Oregon State relief committee at Klamath Falls.

ALASKA GOLD COMES IN ON BUYING ORDER

SEATTLE, Nov. 2.—(AP)—G. L. Swarva, government assayer, said today the twelfth receipt of $150,000 of Alaska gold yesterday, the United States assay office here has more than $1,000,000 ready to be delivered to the government at new gold purchase prices.

STEEL RAIL ORDERS WILL FLOW IN SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Steel quarters estimated today that orders for more than 200,000 tons of steel rails would be placed immediately as a result of the agreement of producers to cut the price to $36.375 a ton.

The Pennsylvania railroad is expected to take 100,000 tons. Other large tonnages are being considered by the Santa Fe, Burlington, and others.

Rail purchases which will eventually develop under the price revision are estimated at more than 800,000 tons.

It may be Just the LIGHT

WHEN your bedside picture scrolls at you it may not be a reflection on your play. Perhaps he cannot see his cards comfortably... maybe glaring or insufficient light is to blame. Good lighting is really more a matter of knowing how than anything else. Glaring light is dangerous to eyes no matter how much light you have. Recently, lighting engineers, realizing the defects in the average home lighting, have after extensive research, determined the proper type of safe illumination that should be used in the home. The utmost care has been taken by this company to secure domestic lighting equipment that will meet the requirements of GOOD lighting with the least possible expense. Many dealers, as well as the power company, are selling this new indirect type of fixture for the bedroom at $6.75 each and for the dining room and living room at $11 and $12 INSTALLED in your home and the light bulbs are included. We will be glad to furnish free, expert advice on home lighting.
