From Shasta City—Mrs. Good, of Shasta City, Cal., visited friends in Medford Sunday.

Snively Injured—Snively of Murphy was reported in an improved condition Saturday, following injuries received last week from an encounter with a bull.

Attends Homecoming—Miss Lucille Murray returned to Medford this morning on the Oregonian from Salem, where she attended homecoming festivities at Willamette university.

Returns from South—Mrs. W. E. Brayton of the Hollywood Orchards returned to Medford Sunday from a two month visit in Auburn, Wash., with her mother, Mrs. A. C. Aulten.

No Meeting Today—Because of the Community Chest drive which is being conducted this week, the Greater Medford club has postponed its meeting until next Monday, Nov. 13, it was announced today by Mrs. G. R. Satchwell.

Displays Pictures—J. Verne Shangle, local photographer, has today placed in his show window at the entrance to the Medford building, a number of shots taken Saturday at the Southern Oregon Normal school-Marine game at Van Scoyoc field.

Attend Homecoming—Miss Pauline Findley of Medford was among local people attending the homecoming football game at Eugene this weekend. She was accompanied by Miss Constance Baker and Miss Helen Stiles of Grants Pass.

Gets No Ducks—Dr. R. C. Mulholland, one of Medford's most ardent sportsmen, failed to bring home any fowl on his hunting trip over the weekend. He was making excuses this morning but they were not overheard by the press.

Calls Here—Charles Haskins, chief Indian officer for this district was in Medford a short time Saturday evening, before returning to the Klamath reservation where he had been attending to business matters. Mr. Haskins makes his headquarters at Chemawa.

Reports on Fire—Accident reports were filed at the city police station yesterday concerning a collision in the intersection of Main and Corbett streets Saturday evening at eight o'clock. Ernest L. Langren of Gold Hill and E. W. Withrow of Talent were driving the cars. Tom D. Williams of Medford was listed as a witness.

Seeking Mrs. Hanel—Mrs. H. L. Russell of Beaverton, Cal., has written local authorities to aid her in locating a Mrs. Hanel, who might be residing in Medford. Mrs. Russell stated in her letter that Mrs. Hanel's furniture is in her possession, and she is anxious to get in touch with her.

Collide on Highway—Grant Heas of Klamath Falls was driving the automobile belonging to Mrs. Paul Evans of Medford Friday evening, when it collided with a Red Line Refrigerator Express of Portland, on the highway ten miles north of Medford. An accident report was filed with the city police.

Strikes Pole—Eroy Call of Klamath Falls filed a report with the city police Sunday that his car knocked down the telephone pole on the Pacific highway, nine miles south of Medford Sunday night about ten o'clock. His report stated that he was traveling between 35 and 40 miles per hour, and skidded when attempting to make a left hand turn. He was fined $50 and costs of $4.50 when taken before L. A. Roberts, justice of the peace of Ashland on charges of reckless driving.

Visit Camp Applegate—A party of local people, including Mr. and Mrs. Hiram F. Meader, G. H. Howell and Mrs. Margaret Seylor motored to the CCC camp at Applegate Sunday afternoon. Mr. Meader reported today that work was being completed on the winter camp and that the quarters were in first class condition. He spent some time conferring with Captain B. B. McMahon, and Lieutenant Wallace S. Douglas.

Attend Luncheon—A. K. Cass and Rex Barnett of Grants Pass, were Medford visitors Friday, attending the noonday luncheon given by the Medford Shrine club at Hotel Medford. Later in the evening the local men attended the regular monthly meeting of the Hillah Temple in Ashland. Potentate A. K. Cass announced Saturday morning after the meeting that arrangements were in full swing for the Shrine ceremonial to be held December 9.—Grants Pass Daily Courier.

Picnic Sunday—Eighty people, employees and their relatives and friends of the Medford and Klamath Falls Montgomery Ward and company stores met at the summit of the Greenapring mountains yesterday for a picnic. A venison feed was furnished by the Klamath Falls store in honor of the Medford organization who were the winners in a recent sales contest. Teams representing the two stores played baseball and football during the afternoon.

close to you, for it is said that oftentimes he wanders through the audience.

In addition to the scene, the theatre will present a movie thriller, "The Sphinx," new picture. The show will begin at 11 o'clock sharp Wednesday night. Tickets may be purchased in advance, and are on sale at the Holy theatre. Children will not be admitted unless accompanied by their parents, as the "Spook Show" is too thrilling for them.

Exotic Picture To Appear At Rialto

As fine a cast of players as has been seen on the screen in many a day enact the various character roles in "The Narrow Corner," based upon the story by Somerset Maugham, which comes to the Rialto tomorrow.

Each was selected for his ability to play unusual character roles as it is a most unusual set of personages that Somerset Maugham delineates in his exotic story of romance and wild adventure in the East Indies. Killers, blackbirds and smugglers are in the lot, with others not "bad" type, but strange and unique. There is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who is fleeing from justice because he has slain the husband of his sweet heart, wandering on the face of the waters and in strange lands to evade the law.

HIGHER EDUCATION HEAD SAYS DEAN'S ATTACK UNWORTHY

... and resign from the board." In a statement last night President Nelson declared "I knew when I went to Eugene that I was on a hazardous mission. But it was becoming daily apparent to me that we could make no progress while our efforts were being defeated by the sort of belief and talk which Mr. Morse so crudely illustrated. . . .

Effort For Peace
"I felt the urge of duty compelling me to make the effort to array under the standards of peace and good will the 99 per cent of the faculty and student body to whose finer instincts I felt the appeal might successfully be made.

"I had not hope as to the recalcitrant one per cent . . . and I thought that if I won over the 99 per cent and exposed the activities of the one per cent, it would be a great day for Oregon." "Perhaps," Mr. Nelson said, "it is natural a man who belongs in the one per cent of the faculty, would, through instincts of self-preservation and self-defense, distort what I said into a vicious attack upon the faculty." If any men in the 99 per cent think that I meant to insult them, or include them in the category of men purblind with hate, I humbly apologize to them. However, I do not think there was any such misunderstanding."

Given Ovation
Speaking of the immediate reaction to his Eugene address, Mr. Nelson said "I was accorded an ovation. At least 100 to 150 persons—loyal members of the faculty but for a sprinkling of townspeople and students—came forward and each shook my hand and most of them uttered words of commendation."

"I am frankly weary of these gusts of hate," President Nelson said Saturday night after the Eugene meeting, "and I am willing to step aside for the type of executioner Mr. Morse and those who cheered him, desire." He added that he would be "readily disappointed if it does not cheer that notwithstanding the deers which greeted Mr. Morse, . . . the high-minded men in the faculty of the university will repudiate Mr. Morse's title of their spokesman."

"But I can forgive the intemperance of Mr. Morse," he continued. "He is a fine chap, he had a sympathetic audience, a football game was in the offing, and Mr. Morse is still quite young."

Defends Kerr
"Mr. Morse did see one extenuating circumstance in my favor," he continued. "I have been duped by Dr. Kerr. I heard the conjecture that Mr. Morse will find thousands of others similarly gullible. They have seen at Corvallis evidences of phenomenal industry, genius, vision and efficiency extending over a period of 25 years. They know that over a million dollars in value of buildings there were erected without any state appropriation. They wonder why Eugene should be so frenzied, and why passion should be torn to tatters at the prospect of a similar service so sadly needed there."

"Every since my accession," he said, "I have had to listen to accounts of plots so weird, so incredible and so silly that they would have been rejected on intrinsic evidence by the wisest tyro of the law school in which Mr. Morse presides."

In Eugene Sunday Chancellor Kerr observed that "certain statements in the talk delivered by Dean Wayne L. Morse . . . require correction in order that an injustice may not be done the higher educational institutions. I refer first to his statement that the 'chancellor, in some instances, did not confer with the deans involved' in preparing budgets, and that the 'budgets of the two major institutions reek with partiality to the college.'"

No Budget Favoritism
Chancellor Kerr said budgets for all the schools were prepared under the same arrangement as in previous years. He said deans and other officers were requested to make all possible reductions to meet the financing emergency. He declared where revision was possible, deans and others in authority were called in for the purpose of conferring on additional adjustments. "Throughout this entire period," he continued, "the chancellor was available at all times to deans and other officers for consultation on their budget problems."

The chancellor said that in analyzing the budgets there was no thought of institutional interests, but rather concern as to the welfare of the students.
