

OPERATION BANKS ORGANIZATION IS REVEALED IN SUIT

Hearing of testimony in the suit of the Columbia Paper Mills company against the Medford Paper Company, Inc. was underway in circuit court today and much of it centered around operations and transactions of the organization. Approximately $3000 allegedly due for fruit wrapping paper is sought.

The plaintiff is attempting to show that a partnership existed, and the defense that the relationship was for mutual good, not business, and that no partnership existed. Mrs. Janet Guiche, former secretary of L. A. Banks, founder of the organization, testified this morning relative to preparations of the minutes, and their supervising by Banks. She testified that notices of meetings were sent out from a mailing list. The defense asked that the mailing list be presented, but Attorney William McAllister said, "I've been hunting for it for two days, but am unable to find it. When and if I do, I will present it."

Mrs. Guiche testified that the list contained 95 names. She said that when a vote was taken at a meeting, it was by eyes and noses, and in response to a question by Attorney Farrell said, "It was not by the volume of noise."

Dr. F. G. Swedenburg of Ashland testified for the plaintiff, and said he was a director of the organization and that the honor was accorded while he was in the east attending a medical society meet. He said Howard A. Hill was president. He testified to business details, plans, packing operations and negotiations in general.

J. A. Perry, president of the Medford National bank, and John S. Orth, former cashier, were scheduled to be called by the plaintiff, to tell of bank relations with the organization.

H. T. Hubbard, former secretary of the organization, testified to minutes and other matters.

Eight lawyers are engaged in the suit, six for the defense. Most of the objecting and questioning of witnesses was in the hands of Attorneys Gus Newbury, W. E. Phillips and Frank P. Farrell. Attorney Robert Hammond, Jr., and W. J. Trill took notes and suggested queries. Attorney Porter J. Neff, representing the defaulting defendants, was an inactive observer.

The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys George M. Roberts and William M. McAllister.

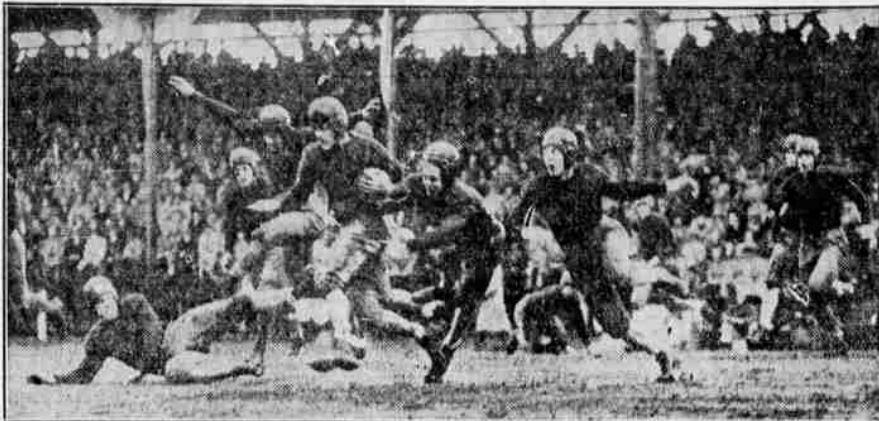

The case is expected to be in the hands of the jury late today.

SCHOOL DISTRICT BUDGETS ARE FILED

Additional school districts of the county which have filed special school district budgets with the county clerk the past week are: Little Applegate $ 169.68 Willow Springs 1,273.00 West Side 1,111.68 Trail 1,134.20 Nell Creek 733.88 Central Point 15,022.00 Brownboro 561.97 Talent 425.40

The various amounts will be extended on the tax rolls. Slightly more than half of the 72 districts of the county have filed special budgets. The funds are for the purpose, for the most part, for indebtedness, maintenance or establishment of a tax base.

Football Thrills In "College Coach"

Faculty organization at the university on Monday voted to request Nelson's resignation.

This resignation was submitted late yesterday by the board president after, he said, he had given the matter profound consideration throughout the day. In tendering his resignation to the governor, Nelson wrote that future contacts with the university faculty would be frequent and "under existing circumstances . . . could be nothing but embarrassing, both to the faculty and to me."

Integrity Not Assailed. "Some of my friends," he said, "have argued that resignation might be interpreted as the admission of a charge and settlement 'under fire.' To these I have replied that my integrity has not been assailed."

"No judge will pass upon a cause," he continued, "a party to which believes him to be prejudiced. In retiring he does not do so 'under fire,' nor does he admit a factual basis for the charge."

"He withdraws so that the suit may submit his controversy to a court with the impartiality of which he is content and whose ultimate judgment cannot thereafter be assailed upon the ground that the controversy had been prejudged."

"The fruition of these (higher educational plans) is impossible," Nelson said further, "without the sincere and loyal co-operation of deans and faculties. The immediate executive agent of the board is the chancellor. Opposition ruinous."

"Irrespective of who may from time to time be the incumbent of that office, determined opposition on the part of those from whom these funds should be co-operation, necessarily renders abortive the achievement of any effective co-ordination. . . .

"No fair-minded man can read the addresses made by me at Eugene and Corvallis and reach any conclusion other than that the intent and spirit of those utterances was directed toward a sincere desire to foster the development of the two great education institutions and place a quietus upon any condition inimical to that end."

"Unnecessary as it may be, you, as the person who appointed me to this office, are entitled to receive from me that which I now give," Mr. Nelson said, "a categorical denial of there ever having been uttered by me an attack upon the university, its faculty or students. Changing in wording, the transposition of a phrase from its context, the isolation of a sentence from its setting, makes it possible for a special pleader to extract from an address a sinister connotation utterly at variance with its spirit and intent."

The former board president observed that "it is the ultimate fact that there exists a group necessarily involved in a controversy upon which the board of higher education must pass, and that that group has challenged my impartiality as a member of the board."

Meier Regrets Action. Governor Meier, in replying to the letter from Nelson, stated that "I have been besieged with requests to reuse your resignation should it come, and knowing your high qualities of leadership, it is with the greatest regret that I close my ears to the urgent petitions that are pouring in from all over the state."

"I am moved to accept your resignation, not because of the considerations you urge, but because my knowledge of the facts as to the condition of your health convinces me that your continuance under existing circumstances would involve too great a drain upon your physical resources."

"As a sincere friend, I do not feel at liberty to ask you to jeopardize your health in the service of the state and upon that condition alone do I reluctantly accede to your request."

In demanding Chancellor Kerr's resignation, Dean Morse of the university faculty said "I do not mean to reflect upon Dr. Kerr's outstanding service to the college."

"However, it must be obvious to all impartial observers that if Dr. Kerr is sincere when he states, as he has so many times, that he is devoted only to the best interests of higher education in the state, he can best accomplish this end by resigning from the chancellorship. Such an act on his part would be truly great and would enrich the history of Oregon."
