

SONS HOMECOMING PROGRAM STARTS TONIGHT, ASHLAND

The Southern Oregon Normal school homecoming begins today in Ashland. The program, as arranged by Miss Marion Ady, art supervisor, general chairman of the homecoming, is as follows:

Friday, 7:00 p. m., floats and trucks meet at the Normal school for the big noise parade. A large number of entries are expected. Prizes will be given to the best decorated float and to the noisiest float. After parading, everyone will meet at the Junior High school field, where the big bonfire will be held. There will be short speeches. Paul Goddard of Reedport is in charge.

At 9:30 p. m., the Homecoming Jamboree (formerly called the mid-night review) to be presented at the Lithia theater.

Saturday from 9:00 to 12:00 a. m., registration of grade at the Lithia Springs hotel in the lobby. Don McFadden of Astoria, president of the student body and head of the courtesy committee, is in charge.

Saturday, 2:15 p. m., the big football game between the Sons and the Mountaineers from Eastern Oregon Normal at La Grande, will take place on the Ashland high school football field. The two schools, ancient rivals, will play for the tri-state normal school championship. The Sons have played seven games, losing two. The Mountaineers have played six games, winning four, tying one, and losing the sixth.

At 6:00 p. m., the homecoming banquet will be held in the Lithia Springs hotel dining room. Special music and speeches will be featured. A chicken dinner will be served for 65c a plate. Miss Beulah Heath of Portland is in charge.

At 8:30 p. m., the homecoming dance in the SONS auditorium. Pep Stone's seven-piece dance orchestra will play, and Durwood Case of Medford, head of the committee, promises a grand floor. Alumni may bring one guest each, but due to the inadequate space, no other guests may be invited.

In co-operation with Paul Goddard, a large number of Ashland merchants are decorating their show-windows in the SONS homecoming motif. Two prizes, one of two complimentary tickets and the other of one, will be awarded to the windows which are judged best and second best.

There are two honorary society banquets planned in addition to the announced program. Rachel Forsythe of Ashland is in charge of the publicity. Mr. McNeal, Dr. Wayne Wells, Mrs. Bertha Smith, and Miss Katherine Tesack are faculty members who are aiding the five general committees.

SALLY GOES 'ARTY' BEFORE CAMERAS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—(CP)—Sally Rand came to town today and refused to pose for one of those pictures showing crossed knees.

"Why it would be immodest," said the girl whose fan dance set Chicago and New York agog because she wore nothing behind the fan.

"On the stage," said Sally, "Ah! There it is art, my art, my self-expression."

The photographer persisted. Sally turned on him a withering look.

"Say you," she said sharply, "every dame that gets off a liner, a train, an airplane, a bicycle, or has a baby, or shoots her husband has to pose for pictures with her legs crossed."

"I'm not going to and that's final. So what?"

Sally, here for a theater engagement, said nudism is "vulgar."

ROCKY POINT ELK ROUSE RANCHERS

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 17.—(UP)—An open season against a herd of 75 elk which is roaming the Rocky Point district is advocated unless the state game commission takes care of the animals, it was said here today.

Farmers are complaining the elk have caused depredations in their fields throughout the summer and they believe they'll have to feed the elk all winter unless the animals drift away within the next few weeks.

Several bears, two cinnamon, an old black and a young grizzly, have been causing trouble in this region which is within the Rogue River National forest boundary. One farmer reported the bears had killed 26 of his sheep.

Piano Prodigy of Eight, Calm During N. Y. Debut

By JOHN SELBY.

Ruth Schlenzyski, 8, while practicing for her first New York appearance as a pianist, amazed critics with her playing of difficult concert music.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—You might call her a prodigy, but anyone who saw Ruth Schlenzyski as she prepared for her New York debut would agree that there's nothing "hot house" about her.

Eight-year-old Ruth, with four years of piano playing behind her, was unaffected by the possibility that her metropolitan appearance November 13 might be the sensation of the musical season. She has been through such experiences before.

Ruth has played two recitals in California, both four years ago. She has given a Berlin recital and a Paris recital and has played three times in Paris with orchestras.

The Berlin recital, given when she was 4, broke into cable dispatches; the Paris performance produced offers of concert tours throughout France, Holland, Belgium and Spain, all of which were refused.

Father Is Only Teacher. "I will not have a pitiful little worn out girl, dragging about the country playing recitals at 8 years of age," says her father, Josef Schlenzyski, who, although a violinist, is Ruth's only teacher. The child is in the United States for a limited number of appearances, after which she will return to her mother and two sisters in Paris for more study.

Ruth, at her present far advanced age and with a hand that barely stretches an octave, plays music that gives adult concert pianists pause. The other afternoon, for example, she played the Bach "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue," the Liszt "La Campanella," Weber's "Rondo Brillante," a Schubert impromptu, a Mendelssohn "Song Without Words" and a concert study of her own composition.

Plays With Master Touch. She does not play like a child, but with a curious insight that recalls only one other performer of her age, the young violinist, Yehudi Menuhin when he was first heard in this country. The extremely difficult right hand part of "La Campanella," upon which many a mature pianist has gone to pieces, she managed with ease.

"But that's just an encore piece," said Ruth.

Ruth does not like dolls, she says, and until recently she was afraid of dogs. She's not afraid now. The only thing she can cook is scrambled eggs.

She has never gone to school; instead she has had private teachers. Although she has not been back to see her home in Berkeley, Cal., since she left four years ago, she remembers it and is eager to see it again.

Is Husky Prodigy. Physically she is utterly unlike the accepted picture of the musical prodigy. She is a sturdy little figure at the piano, with stocky, little-girl legs, a very fair skin, a face with traces of the Slavic breadth in it and eyes that twinkle engagingly.

In order to reach the pedals she of age and received her one-third share in the enormous fortune amassed by the late P. W. Woolworth in five and ten cent stores.

To mark the occasion of her 21st birthday, the princess was given a party at the home of her father, Franklin L. Hutton. Her personal fortune is estimated at $20,000,000.

The princess, who is beautiful as well as wealthy, returned from Europe last week with her new husband. Last night's party served the additional purpose of introducing Prince Alexis formally to New York society.

"Play piano," she said positively.

AUTOISTS WARNED TO WATCH LIGHTS FRONT AND REAR

SALEM, Ore.—(UP) Motorists were warned today by State Superintendent of Police Charles P. Pray to inspect front and rear lights frequently to avoid accidents and possible arrest.

"State police have been instructed to increase their vigilance for violators of motor laws, especially those pertaining to lights," Pray said.

"Foggy weather, wet, slippery roads and other weather hazards make it imperative that motorists strictly obey laws. My men have been notified to enforce all rules.

"During September state police halted 2400 machines which had only one headlight burning and 4800 more automobiles were stopped because their automobiles had some lighting defects."

Pray said that the number of violators increased sharply during October and that further gains were expected this month. He said state officers work under the handicap of poor cooperation from justices of the peace.

"My men frequently arrest a flagrant violator, only to discover that the justices refuse to fine him, or levy only a 50 cent or 81 fine," said the police superintendent.

"The number of motorists who operate machines equipped with faulty brakes and improper lights is alarmingly large, especially in the mountainous regions. Reports received here indicate many machines are seen nightly operating with only one, and in many cases with no headlights while crossing the Siskiyou."

STATE POLICE TARGET GRANGE ECONOMISTS

SALEM, Ore.—(UP)—Abolition of the Oregon state police system will be sought at the special legislative session, it was indicated here today.

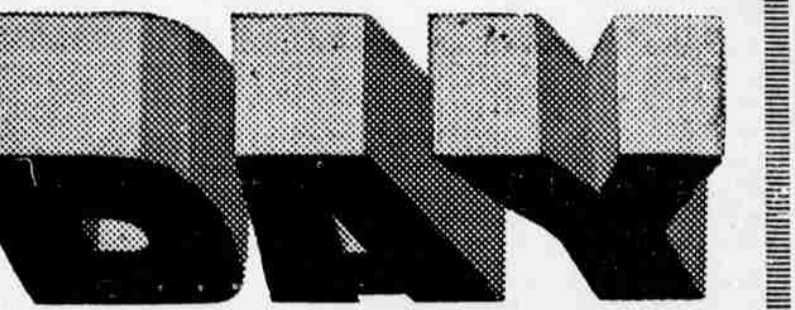

Resolutions advocating removing the state police from the field have been passed by several subordinate granges of the state. It is claimed the police are an unnecessary item of expense, that they duplicate activities of sheriffs and city police forces.

Drake Mourned By Phoenix Friends

PHOENIX, Nov. 17.—(SpI)—Residents of this community were grieved to learn of the passing of Lonzo Drake yesterday at his home in the North Phoenix district. Mr. Drake had resided in the valley for at least fifty years. For several years he lived near "Talent" with his family. Mr. Drake leaves to mourn his death two daughters and one son, Mrs. Trask of Medford, Mrs. Rathburn and George Drake of Phoenix.
