MESSAGE LAYS GROUNDWORK OF EXTRA SESSION

of the present measure for bus and truck legislation. "Protest has been made that inequalities exist in the operation of this law. If such inequalities exist they should be adjusted, but the principle that buses and trucks should have a fair return for the use of our highways should be maintained."

Augmenting these five points the executive said that "in addition to the major problems outlined certain enabling legislation is needed to place the state of Oregon in a position to derive full benefit from opportunities offered by recent federal legislation."

In all legislative work the executive promised his fullest cooperation and support. He emphasized the legislature "test every proposed measure as to whether it be of vital importance to the state at this time."

SALEM, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A widening breach between the house and senate, noticed during the regular session here today as the 37th legislative assembly met for the third time in 1933. This was brought out at the caucuses of the two houses last night on the matter of restricting the business of the emergency session.

SILVER SCREEN REVIEW

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

No doubt about it—you've been thrilled before. But you'll forget all about that when Pilots Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery and William Gargan blindly plunge you through impenetrable fog and sub-sequent perils on that pioneer air mail route over the Andes.

However, that's not the only reason you'll check "Night Flight," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all star production, which opened at Hunt's Craterian yesterday, as one of the most enjoyable pictures you've ever seen.

Here is not only one of the strongest casts ever assembled in one film, but each and the story submerged by none.

On the slim shoulders of Helen Hayes and Myrna Loy are placed the burdens of agonized suspense and thwarted attempts at home making for flying husbands, Gable and Gargan. Both actresses are grand—Helen's interpretation swinging from the whimsicality of forced gaiety under stress, to blank despair in the face of disaster.

John Barrymore in the role of a relentless mail route manager, creates a powerful study of repressed emotions. In spite of his lack of appeal, the character will remain with you. Lionel's comparatively minor role, manages also to hold its own.

But with that constellation to pick from, you'll undoubtedly want to choose your own favorite. So here's congratulations, on the good time ahead of you.

Philo Vance Film On Holly's Screen

Philo Vance has returned to the screen and crowds gave him a royal welcome when he appeared, in the person of William Powell, and set about to unravel the tangled crime that made up the variegated pattern of S. S. Van Dine's famous story, "The Kennel Murder Case," which opened Saturday at the Holly and is now playing.

Judging by the enthusiastic reception given both the picture and the star, Philo Vance is even more popular with the movie fans than when he last appeared on the screen about three years ago. The debonair detective with whose brilliant exploits the American mystery-loving public for years.

War Drama Coming To Rialto Screen

The heroes of the prison camps during the world war—the men whose daring and courage was the men whose most part, unhonored and unrecognized, are the more spectacular achievements of their comrades still in the trenches have been chronicled—the "forgotten men" of the international conflict come into their own in "Captured," which will be shown at the Rialto theatre Tuesday.

An exceptional cast is assembled around Leslie Howard, young Fairbanks and Paul Lukas for the interpretation of "Captured." Margaret Lindsay as the girl Monica, and Frank Reicher as the German adjutant.

ARE STARS PERFECT BEAUTIES? ARTIST SAYS, "NO"

Despite all the superlatives used in connection with the stars of filmdom, Penrhyn Stanlaws, portrait painter, is convinced that there is not a single perfect beauty among Hollywood's stars. Of Greta Garbo (left), he said, "She has a sleepy look, attained by deep eye sockets and a peculiar slant of the upper lid which doesn't aid beauty." The figure of Lupa Velez (center) is the "true maidenly" one, he said, and her face is mobile so she "can look sophisticated or innocent at will." His critical eye fastened on Katharine Hepburn (right) and he found that the lower part of her face projects too far. (Associated Press Photo)

'HERE'S HOW' SAYS NEW ORLEANS HAILING REPEAL

Ratification is merely a formality after the people have spoken, New Orleans declared and speak-ers were quickly converted to open barrooms after Utah voted for repeal. Their popularity is evident in the picture above. (Associated Press Photo)

Conflict Seen in Senate

It was over the matter of authorizing a steering committee or the "special session business committee" proposed by Speaker Earl Snell in the house caucus that members brought out the matter of a conflict with the senate.

While the house caucus authorized the appointment of such a committee after a long debate, the senate voted an "unwritten law" that only important bills would be introduced, leaving the selection to the discretion of the members. No other restrictions placed on measures in the senate caucus.

Snell today will name the new committee of seven members who will pass on all bills and senate bills after first reading before further consideration is given them. The committee will bring out only majority reports and a majority vote of the house will be necessary to force out other legislation.

Hope To Observe Limit Several members of the house first voted against the restriction, but all but Frank H. Hutton and Richard Delch changed their vote with the majority. The hope of the members was to complete the business for which the session was called within the allotted 20 days.

In the senate caucus a bill was proposed to direct appointment of members to fill legislative vacancies by the governor, while in the house caucus a bill was brought up to have the vacancies filled by county courts. No action was taken on either measure, later the measures to be considered today.

Fine Cast Appears In Film Here Soon

Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore, a co-starring team new to the screen, give picture fans something decidedly new both in personalities and in a story in "Christopher Bean" coming to the Craterian theatre Saturday. The play, one of the season's big hits of the stage, concerns a New England country doctor who, under the lash of avarice, turns from an honest, kindly soul to a grasping schemer, only to be guided back to his lifelong path.

DEATH, DISORDERS AS RIGHTISTS WIN SPANISH ELECTION

MADRID, Nov. 20.—(AP)—With seven already known dead and 300 injured, further outbreaks were feared today as a result of Spain's first constitutional election. Incomplete returns from yesterday's balloting indicated a sweeping rightist triumph.

Fewer disorders than had been anticipated developed, but extreme vigilance was continued because of fears that there might be some clashes on the part of troops headed by leftists officers.

Troops in Madrid, Barcelona and Seville were ordered held in readiness for any emergency, it was learned on reliable authority.

In the first national election in which women ever had participated, approximately 12,500,000 voters were qualified to ballot to select 473 deputies for the first regular congress of the second republic. It will convene Dec. 8. The first congress merely drew up a constitution.

Nineteen officially registered political parties were represented among rightists dominated the political scene.

It was indicated that the next congress would include at least five or six communists, or four or five congressmen with definite fascist inclinations.
