Holly's Star

Calling attention to an amazing swing-about in the moral viewpoint of the cinema, Mae West, the screen's newest sensation, whose second starring picture for Paramount, "I'm No Angel," now playing at the Holly theatre, believes that the American people have reached that time in their consideration of life and love when they want to hear a spade called a spade.

She cites the sensational success of her last film, "She Done Him Wrong," as an argument in proof of her belief.

Miss West asserts, however, that the public is uninterested in sex crudely presented. It wants laughs, comedy and wit along with it, she theorizes, and that's what she aims to give 'em in her pictures and plays.

Mae exemplifies her theories in "I'm No Angel," an original story. In it, she portrays a circus lion tamer, hard-boiled, ambitious, captivator of man after man. But when the film ends she has one man for keeps, a millionaire bachelor, "tall, dark and handsome" Cary Grant. The pictures was directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Eddy, directed by Miss Gertrude Ahlstrom.

Dances from the Eve Benson Studios including Joan Buchter, acrobatic, assisted by Akiki Saito, Ruth Harwood and Gretchen McAllister; tap and Jewel Deter, Russian toe.

These numbers were accompanied on the piano by Miss Mary Osenbrugge.

A welcoming address was delivered by H. W. Gustin, Jackson school principal.

YEARNING FOR CARESSES... but chained to a career! STAGE MOTHER with ALICE BRADY

IRENE DUNNE IN "THE SILVER CORD"

A mother who uses her apron strings to their fullest length to retain her sons in a sort of slavery called mother love, is defeated by Irene Dunne as the star of "The Silver Cord," which comes to the Studio theatre today.

This picture invades sacred territory because of the general concept of sanctified mother love; but it reveals the subconscious evil behind that very tradition. The normalcy of a daughter-in-law's affection for her husband finds a rival in his mother's inordinate love for him.

Irene Dunne scores a peak dramatic triumph in her characterization.

COMEDY TEAM IN "HER FIRST MATE"

"Her First Mate" featuring Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts, opens at the Rialto theatre today.

It is all about a candy butcher on a Hudson river steamboat who had successfully killed his wife into the belief that he was a great sailor-man and whose one ambition was to captain a sea-going vessel. Zasu saved and pinched until she had enough to buy a boat. But it was a ferry boat, and it blew up on its first trip.

See the smart Turtle Neck Sweaters at Adrienne's, Brown, Blue, Red, White... And they only cost $1.35.
