KLAMATH SERVES NOTICE OF LEGAL ROW OVER LIQUOR

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The city of Klamath Falls, anticipating the success of the Knox liquor control plan in the legislature, was today preparing to take legal action if the state attempted to set up liquor regulations here.

An ordinance licensing private liquor stores and limiting consumption will go into effect Tuesday, the first day of repeal. City officials, falling back on the home rule provision of the constitution, said they would immediately take steps to prevent state agents from operating.

Mayor Willis Mahoney, author of the control ordinance which has provoked a dispute between the state and municipalities, warned he would "take whatever steps are necessary under the law" to prevent and attempt to destroy local authority. He said the council probably would grant the first liquor license Monday night.

If the conflict between the state and city is brought to the courts, it is expected the result will rest entirely upon the interpretation of the home rule provision, providing a constitutional change is not made.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps' six-day "public safety" cabinet was given a brief lease of life in its unsteady budget-balancing job by two votes of confidence in the chamber of deputies today while rumblings of "work and bread" unrest reached the capital.

In the ten-minute ministerial declaration with Whinbaune presenting his ministry to the chamber for the first time, the premier said he avoided treading on political toes because the time would come "practically" to halt a budget deficit which "menaces the treasury" and pleaded that quick action was needed for the public safety.

Meanwhile, jobless hunger marchers from northern France, their numbers swollen by more than 6000 sympathizers from the Paris region, filled the frigid air of suburban St. Denis stadium with verses of the Internationale.

The marchers paraded in the freezing cold weather demanding "work and bread," while police massed like troops, guarded the chamber of deputies and the entrances to Paris.

UPON HANKERING FOR PIERCE'S JOB

PARENTS' SCHOOL OPENS THURSDAY AT COURT HOUSE

The program planned for the school for parents to be held Thursday, December 7, at the courthouse auditorium, will be of interest to every parent in Jackson county, according to Mabel C. Mack, home demonstration agent. The theme of the program is "Some Problems of Modern Parents" and Mrs. Sara Watt Prentiss will discuss "The Social Development of the Children" at the morning session and "Understanding the Adolescent" in the afternoon.

Mrs. Prentiss is professor of child development and parent education of the school of home economics, Oregon State College. She is a graduate of Oregon State College and since 1917 has been in charge of the child development and parent education in that institution. From time to time she has taken leave for study with authorities in this field at the Merrill-Palmer school in Detroit, the University of Chicago and the University of Minnesota.

In addition to teaching students at the college and supervising the nursery school, Mrs. Prentiss finds time to meet groups of parents in the state in connection with the schools for parents being conducted by the Parent-Teacher association and other groups concerned with family life. Mrs. Prentiss is state chairman of parent education of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Many Jackson county homemakers know her through her work last year at leader training meetings for child study groups. Mrs. Prentiss also prepared the series of studies used by the Jackson county radio clubs this year. These clubs are meeting regularly every two weeks for the radio lecture given by Mrs. Mack over KJED on "The Developing Home."

The lecture is followed by group discussion lead by the club chairman. At the school for parents, a playlet entitled "The Parent Education Class" will be given by a Jackson County Radio Study club to demonstrate a typical radio club meeting.

Mrs. William Kietzer, state president of the Parent-Teacher association, will speak on "How the State Safeguards Our Children." Mrs. Kietzer is well known in Parent-Teacher circles as a very able and forceful speaker.

Miss Claribel Nye will discuss the "Importance of Emotional Maturity." Miss Nye has been state leader of home economics extension in Oregon since February, 1930, when she came here from Cornell university. For many years Miss Nye has been connected with the adult education program in the field of home economics. Miss Nye is state chairman of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Recent books of interest to the family loaned by the state library will be on exhibit.

A cafeteria luncheon of sandwiches, salad, baked apple and coffee will be served at noon. Each person attending is asked to bring one thing on the menu and her own service, according to Mrs. Mack.

OREGON REVISION OF CODE TO SPEED UP CRIME CASES

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Bearing in mind the requirements of "a more complex civilization," two committees of attorneys will undertake a study of possible changes in the rule of procedure in Oregon courts.

The two groups will act as sub-committees of Governor Meier's special committee on judicial procedure. Suggestions for study in criminal procedure revisions include: Equalization in the number of pre-emptory challenges allowed the state and defense, permission of a verdict in a criminal case by less than 12 jurors; initiation of criminal prosecutions by information as well as by indictment; modification of the privilege against self-incrimination as to permit the district attorney to comment upon, and the jury to consider, the failure of the accused to testify; requirement that the notice of appeal be filed in the supreme court in the expectation that delay in the disposition of appeals will thus be avoided; the rendering inadmissible of a confession unless made in the presence of the accused's attorney.

Postpone Gathering—The Greater Medford Club will postpone its meeting set for December 4, due to the illness of Mrs. G. R. Satchell, the president. It was announced Saturday.

PORTLAND DENIES BAN ON NUISANCE

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Portland city council today voted four to one to give no further consideration to a proposed ordinance preventing the promiscuous throwing of advertising hand-bills and dodgers on front porches where "no advertising matter wanted" signs had been posted, or on porches where the previous day's accumulations had not been cleared away.

Commissioner Riley alone voted for the measure. Commissioner Bennett moved successfully that it be killed, asserting it was "vicious," and would throw many persons out of work. Representatives of several advertising agencies and printers spoke against the proposed ordinance.

Blueblooded Bulls and Heifers Sold

A number of pedigreed animals changed hands yesterday at the second auction at the livestock sale pavilion north of the city, conducted by A. H. Dudley, auctioneer.

Charles Laughton Star of Twin Bill On Holly Program

"White Woman," the dramatic feature with Charles Laughton, Carole Lombard, Charles Bickford and Kent Taylor, opened at the Holly yesterday. Dramatic in its theme, the story revolves around Laughton, Lombard and Kent Taylor, slumped by society, which has misinterpreted the reason for her husband's suicide, Carole seeks a livelihood as an entertainer in a cheap dive on the edge of the Malay jungles.

There she is seen by Laughton, brutal trader and supreme overlord of the river. To escape threatened deportation, she accompanies him to his houseboat home, far up the river. Here she meets his "company," four woman-starved white men, who haven't seen a white woman in ten years. Surrounded by slinking, treacherous natives and these men, fugitives from life and the law, she meets fear-stricken Kent Taylor, British army deserter.

A strange romance ties this strange pair together so tightly that native wars, suicides and murder, can't deter them in their journey to peace and happiness.

On the same bill is another feature, "Skyway," starring Kathryn Crawford and Ray Walker.

Guests of Miss Schenck—Mrs. Lucy Abbott of San Francisco was house guest for several days last week of Miss Estella Schenck of this city and is leaving for the bay city this morning. Mrs. Abbott and Miss Schenck were classmates at Denver General hospital before coming to the coast.

A DEBTOR NATION BUILDS WARSHIP

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A powerful fighting navy to back up her cement Rhineland defenses is being built by France in reply to German rearmament.

A second "man of war" of 26,000 tons, 320 mm guns and 29 knots of speed is sought by naval authorities for next year's construction program.

This proposed battle cruiser would be the big sister of the proud Dunderberg, which was rushed to the stocks after Germany brought out her 10,000-ton "pocket battleships" of the Deutschland type.

ANGORA RABBITS GIVE OPENING CROWD THRILL

Four quiet spectators at the Christmas opening in Medford Friday night, who threatened to steal the show were the four Angora bunnies, housed in the Chamber of Commerce display window. Hundreds of people came to view them although they are officially known as Easter animals, and the rabbits remained calm throughout the show.

The display, arranged by Mrs. Findlay, also included yarn, spun from the angora wool; a spinning wheel and numerous knitted articles, showing the product in finished form.

SALEM, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Reports current for more than a month that State Senators John D. Goss and Jay H. Upton had decided to seek congressional nominations at the May primaries were strengthened here today. Increasing support for each was indicated, the Associated Press learned.

Formal statements from the prospective candidates have not been made as yet.

Goss is considering seeking the Democratic nomination for first district congressman, to oppose Republican Representative James Mott in the November election.

THE CALIFORNIA OREGON POWER COMPANY

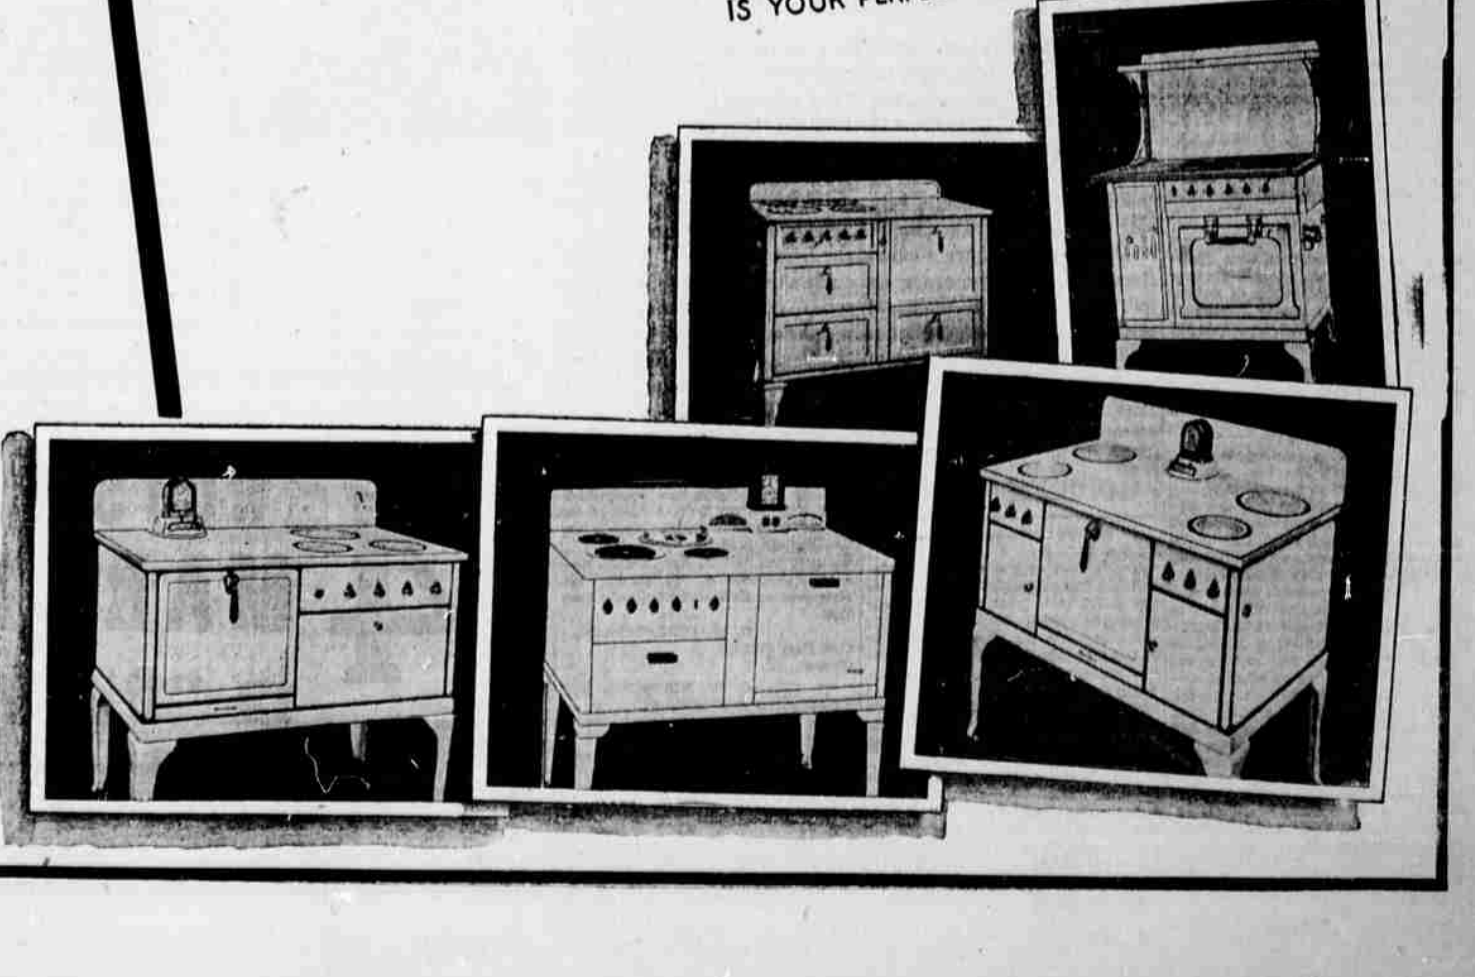

Dear Customer:

Here are some photographs of the new electric ranges we have just received from the manufacturers. As you will note, the style in electric ranges has materially changed. During the slack period of business from which the country is just emerging, every manufacturer has put forth tremendous efforts to develop an electric range so perfect and so convenient that every housewife would want one. As you can see from these photographs, they have succeeded. Never before at any price, were electric ranges built like these; probably never again will it be possible to build electric ranges like these for anything like the price. Today the prices on these ranges are so low that any one of them will be a real bargain. With the advance in price of raw materials and labor, prices must go higher.

But regardless of price; no matter what you had to pay, one of these beautiful, new ranges would be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever" in your kitchen. If you have never used an electric range, you have a delightful experience ahead of you. Comfort, convenience and a wonderful freedom from kitchen cares, you can scarcely believe possible, are yours for the taking. If you are already using an electric range that has passed its real usefulness, now is your opportunity to replace it with the finest, most efficient, most durable, and most beautiful electric range money can buy... and remember they are priced exceptionally low.

You are cordially invited to inspect them.
