

LEGISLATORS TOLD TO QUIT DAWDLING AND ACT ON BILLS

stand to meet with the committee to lend aid in bringing out a completed bill. It was indicated a sales tax bill would be placed on the floor today for action tomorrow.

Knox Plan Revamped

In the senate the alcoholic control committee was continuing its work on the Knox control bill, adding many amendments. Among those added today were provisions for a salaried commission and that at least one woman be placed on the commission. The bill with the amendments will be up for debate in the senate tomorrow and the house again would be called upon to either accept or reject the amendments with prospects the bill would go into conference committee.

The senate by a vote of 15 to 15 defeated the Grange power bill which would create an elective power commission to handle the power particularly to be produced by the Bonneville dam project. The Grange measure differed from the power commission set up as recommended by the governor in house measures, by deferring the creation of the commission until after the May primaries in order to avoid appointment of the three by the governor. The Grange bill as voted upon did not carry a bond issue authorization.

Sales Tax Discussed

Debate on the sales tax as expected to be brought into the house to provide school relief was current at the state house and in the "third house lobby." Representatives of the cities of the state as listed under the League of Oregon Cities, will meet here tonight to voice its stand on the proposed sales tax. What action would be taken was not predicted, but a pool of the representatives was indicated.

Charles A. Howard, superintendent of schools, stated to the press today he favored a sales tax only because it was the lone solution to aid public schools.

FAY WRAY, GENE RAYMOND AT ROXY

"Ann Carver's Profession" featuring Fay Wray, Gene Raymond and Claire Dodd opened a two-day run at the Roxy theater today.

The story has to do with a lovely, talented girl confronted with the perplexing problem of sacrificing love for world acclaim.

REBECCA JENSEN, Clerk School District No. 49.

WELFARE EXCHANGE BROADCASTING CALL FOR CLOTHING, TOYS

Winter time is here. The season when each person wants to look her best, when even the furry friends of the forest don new coats for the holidays, which this year will find many Medford people with very few pennies with which to purchase. That is why the Welfare Exchange is issuing a call for clothing of all kinds.

Toys and odds and ends, suitable for Christmas gifts, are also wanted. Miss Helen Carlton, chairman of the exchange, stated yesterday. There are many things in many homes which would make delightful Christmas gifts for others, although they are not filling an important need, where now located. If brought to the exchange they would enable many families to keep faith in Santa Claus.

Pieces of patch work quilts are also wanted at the exchange and the loan of a sewing machine would fill a very important need at this time.

Anyone who has a tread sewing machine available, is asked to get in touch with the exchange in the city hall at once.

The Welfare Exchange is the only group organized in the state of Oregon to provide work for women in the manner carried on here. It has been revealed by surveys made in the granting of federal funds. The splendid work carried on by the exchange here is bringing still greater results this year than last, when it filled a necessary place in the relief program.

FOREST SERVICE FILMS WILL BE SHOWN PUBLIC HERE FRIDAY EVENING

The Evans Creek CCC of 200 men was treated to a splendid program of moving picture and lantern slide pictures Tuesday evening. Views of "Your Own Northwest" moving pictures of various places along the Coast highway from Astoria to Curry county being shown. One roll showed how a forest fire started in Idaho, its terrible and rapid spread, and then a glimpse of the devastated and awesome aftermath. One of the finest sets of lantern slide pictures of beautiful mountains, lakes, sunrises and sunset and other enchanting scenery of the northwest was shown.

The program was sponsored by the U. S. forest service, the Oregon State Forestry association and Oregon Forest Fire association. Mr. Fuller of state foresters' office, who has been giving these programs for years, is showing the pictures at all CCC camps. Those camps on the Rogue River forest are the Applegate, Carberry, Elk Creek and Owen-Oregon Camp.

Friday morning a half-hour program will be given at the normal school in Ashland, and Friday evening at Rogue Elk Saturday night.

MILK REGRADING IS ANNOUNCED BY CITY'S INSPECTOR

Lindy's Depot, regraded upward to grade A.

James Kershaw Dairy, B grade.

Owing to the continued inquiry as to the significance of the different grades according to the United States public health service milk ordinance, note the following:

A grade milk allows a maximum count of 30,000 bacteria per CC (cubic centimeter). It also requires cows tested and free from TB and abortion. All handlers of milk must have clear health certificates.

Temperature of milk having a maximum of 50 degrees.

Impervious floors in milking quarters and milk houses.

Hooded top milk pails required.

Special care and cleanliness in all milk handling and processing.

No hand capping of bottles.

Special care in cleaning and draining barnyards and corrals and disposal of manure, together with other sanitary details.

B grade milk requires above exactness, except it allows a maximum bacteria count of 200,000; a temperature of 70 degrees, but impervious floors not exacted. Barnyard and surrounding requirements not exacting.

C grade milk allows a bacteria count of 750,000 per CC, with items of sanitation required for grade B, except hooded milk pails not exacted, no maximum temperature required, and health certificates not necessary.

D grade milk, any old thing that's left—just milk, maybe.

The above information is to aid the consuming public in his choice of milk, the grade of which must be indicated by the required label or cap on each container, and by a large display card required to be posted in a conspicuous place in each establishment serving or selling milk.

C. W. AUSTIN, City Milk Inspector.
