Marx Brothers in "Duck Soup" Score With Cinema Fans

The Mad Marxes... all four of them. Greta, girls, girls, headed by vivacious Raquel Torres, and songs you'll be singing for months.

Put them all together and they spell "Duck Soup," the comedians' newest rib-tickling special, now playing at the Criterion.

In addition, you'll see Margaret Dumont, the dignified actress who has been stamped on and clowned with in several of the Marx Brothers' other pictures, and Louis Calhern, who plays the menace.

Directed by Leon McCarey, "Duck Soup" presents Groucho as the Dictator of Freedonia, mythical country badly in need of funds. The ambassador of Sylvania has two spies, Harpo and Chico, upon whom he depends for much of his information. But he doesn't know that they will work for any country where the food is better and the blondes more numerous.

Naturally, Groucho knows their weaknesses and sees to it that they work for him, too. Groucho, though, has to watch his step. One spy, Raquel Torres, won't be misled so easily. In fact, she misleads Groucho. Finally, to get rid of his enemies, Groucho declares war. The enemy has 2500 men, Groucho has 7500 and, to even things up, he sends 2500 of his men to the other side.

Zane Grey Romance On Holly's Screen

The roaring, stampeding, dangerous herd of buffaloes now on the screen of the Holly theater today and tomorrow, when Paramount's filmization of Zane Grey's outdoor romance, "The Thundering Herd" represents approximately half of the total number of those rare animals in existence on the North American continent.

In 1870 the buffalo total was more than 8,000,000, made up of giant herds that roamed all over the western plains, but today a recent check-up made by the Paramount company revealed only about 4,000 of the animals are alive.

Randolph Scott, Judith Allen, Monte Carey, Raymond Hatton, Harry Blue, Buster Crabbe and other principals in the cast, along with cameramen and helpers, risked their lives to record the amazing closeups of the animal mass thundering through canyons and across plains in wild flight.

Triple Features Booked for Show Rialto Tomorrow

A triple feature attraction at the Rialto theater tomorrow and Saturday will be at that show house when Silver King, the famous movie dog, will be on the stage in person; Jack Holt, starred in "Master of Men," as one feature, and "Trailing the Killer," one of the most unusual feature pictures ever made, as the third attraction.

Silver King has been seen by the spectators in many featured roles and after this short personal appearance tour, will return to Hollywood to make another picture. He will be seen with his trainer, Arthur Butler, on all shows.

"Master of Men" follows the fortunes of Holt from the time he is a crane operator in a steel mill through his career which starts when he is made manager of personnel, until he is the dominating figure both in the steel industry and in Wall Street.

Animals native to the United States are the principal actors in "Trailing the Killer." A well trained police dog is the hero; a mountain lion is the vicious killer; a bunch of snarling wildcats supply much of the glamour; a half-crossed wolf and her litter of puppies provide the romance and comedy, and a sensational fight between Lobo and a rattler is the dramatic highlight. Human actors are essentially atmospheric background, providing the dialogue and a little of the action that makes the story completely understandable. It is a unique picture, and altogether interesting.

"Power and the Glory" and "Hypnotized" show for the last time tonight on the Rialto screen, with Silver King also making personal appearances on the stage.
