Churches To Hold Special Services For Prayer Week

Federated churches will hold special services this week in observing the "World's Week of Prayer." Beginning on Monday night, at 7:30, the men of the Bible class will conduct a service specially in the interest of men. All men are invited, and the service will be open to all comers. On Tuesday evening the young people will have a special service, under the direction of Mr. A. W. Ayers. Young people will present the messages, and all are invited.

Wednesday the regular mid-week service will be held; but will meet in the auditorium of the church to accommodate the larger gathering. On Thursday evening the ladies of the Bible class will direct a service in the special interest of Women's work; and all are urged to come. Then, on Friday evening the summing up of the needs of prayer will be presented in a great closing service.

Prominent Angler & Sportsman Appeals For Protection of Rogue River Steelhead

To the Editor:

For the past three years the number of steelhead have diminished each year worse than the previous one. This year it was so pronounced that I was somewhat alarmed, so during my four months stay at Granta Pass, I took it on myself to spend much of my time investigating from place to place, talking with many, also taking trips at different points on the river from its mouth at Gold Beach up to its source at Crater Lake which I will cover in the next paragraph.

a. At Gold Beach the commercial fishing, combined with seining was depleting the supply of steelhead by hundreds of tons of the larger fish, from two to ten pounds each.

b. In October I made personal visits to many different places along the river where the water is taken from the river for power or irrigation purposes. It was shocking to find the inadvertant attempt at complying with Article 90 Oregon Game Laws; Screening Outlets from river. In passing, wish to state that Article 90 is one of the strongest laws of its type in the United States but a law not enforced is worse than no law at all.

c. I spent the whole day at the opening of Savage Dam (October 1933) and along the three irrigation ditches leading from there. The results were shocking, so much so that the experiences prompted this letter.

The dam was opened early in the morning, by noon most of the water was out of ditches so I took three trips along these three ditches only to find millions upon millions of small fish from two to eight inches long, all dying in the mud bottoms.

The commission had stationed one man with a hand seine and one six-quart pail at the dam where he could be seen (two pictures enclosed with this one man in action), whose duty was to save all these millions of fish in each of the three ditches, each ditch ten miles long or more.

It was ludicrous to say the least, to see this one man and pail, fill same with little fish right at the dam, then climb five hundred feet over the rocks down to the river, then throwing same out into the white swirling waters trusting they might live.

Later in the evening, when the water had gone down and all the men (the one man) of the Commission had gone home, there were hundreds of steelhead ranging from four to ten pounds each that were stranded in the shallow holes in the rocks left to die, but as it happened, many local inhabitants arrived with clubs and sacks to carry them away after knocking them in the head.

This is one place where the Commission could have placed one man with a long hand net and saved all these fish, as they could have been dipped up and placed in the river not more than fifty feet away.

I enclose a picture showing eleven pound fish which was picked up dead, showing the size of these fish that were lost to the anglers as well as their spawning farther up in the river.

The Medford sportsmen and all fishing camps above the Savage Dam object to the present fish banned; they seem to think the steelhead will not pass over it. Well, they will pass over I find, but with great difficulty, I would recommend a better ladder that will be easier for the steelhead, while the salmon seem to find no trouble with the present one.

Conclusion: By passing a law to prohibit seining at the mouth of the Rogue, then enforcing Article 90 Game Laws of Oregon will in time (perhaps three years) regain the old reputation of the Rogue as a steelhead river.

Further: It would be advisable to set aside certain sections of the river making it unlawful to fish from a boat, marking and signing such sections.

Let's give the steelhead a break, a new deal, that will give the angler or fisherman a real thrill, and in return bring large cash returns to the state of Oregon.

Merriman's Shop Moves To Former Location In City

Merriman's blacksmith shop, formerly located on the south Pacific highway, has moved to its old location on South Riverside near Main and is now open for business, according to an announcement Saturday by Merle Merriman. The building which now houses Merriman's Shop, Inc. was the home of this old established Medford firm in 1905 and Merrimans have served the people of this city in or near that location for the past 30 years.

General blacksmith, spring and welding work is featured by Merriman's Shop, Inc. and complete equipment includes portable electric and acetylene welding units.

Merle and Francis Merriman are operators of this Medford firm, originally established by Tom Merriman.

Below Zero Fire.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Flames raced through the old St. Philippi convent here today and threatened to destroy the building despite efforts of firemen braving a temperature of nearly 50 below zero.

Come and bring your friends to the charity ball Thursday evening at the K. P. hall. Cards at 8:30. Dancing at 9.
