Will Rogers Film Coming Sunday
Declaring it to be the most poignant and human comedy he has had to date, an enthusiastic Will Rogers will have the stellar part in "Mr. Skitch," starting Sunday at Hunt's Craterian theater. The story, by Ann Cameron, appeared in the Saturday Evening Post several years ago and is considered a classic of humorous writing.

Elaborate Plans were made to make this film one of the most pretentious comedies of the season, and from advance reports the film lives up to the expectations of the producers. Rogers, himself, who is acknowledged America's greatest funster in all fields of expression, endorses "Mr. Skitch" as the most amusing situation that it has ever been his fortune to play in.

McCoy Lone Rider

Tim McCoy will thunder into the Roxy theater tomorrow in a story packed with thrills and excitement. "Rusty Rides Alone" provides Tim with one of his popular roles, in which he is forced to battle a desperate gang of sheepmen headed by a wealthy rancher who is obsessed with the idea of creating a western "empire" by driving out the other inhabitants of the valley.
Tim is aided by the police dog, "Silver King."

Canadian Mounties at Craterian

The Northwest Mounted police company will be at the Craterian theater Saturday on both matinee and evening shows. No other organization is better known for their ability to "get their man" than the Canadian mounties. They are known and feared wherever civilization exists. People of Medford have this chance to see the Northwest Mounted police company in the only performance of its kind ever seen in the United States, and one that has created a vast amount of unusually favorable comment throughout the country.

The "mounties" are being shown on the same program Saturday with "Convention City," a laugh riot that satirizes the conventions held each year throughout the country. Jean Blondell, Adolphe Menjou, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh, Dick Powell and many others are in featured roles.

Tonight on the 9:00 o'clock show, Ruth Luy will present 40 of her talented pupils in a dance revue on the Craterian theater stage.
