At Craterian

Will Rogers, playing the title role in "Mr. Skitch" at the Craterian theater until tomorrow night, has another part such as theater-poets like, that of a wisecracking, homely philosopher who takes his family on a cross-country tour in his old car when economic conditions force him to lose his business. Zasu Pitts has the role of Will's "missus," and contributes to the fun.

Starting Thursday, the Craterian will have a double feature program with Paul Muni in "The World Changes," and Ruth Chatterton in "Female." "The World Changes" has Muni in his first screen role for over a year and, as the title implies, the picture covers the incidents in this country's history half a generation.

RECENT HISTORY OF MONEY TOPIC OF ROTARY TALK

"Recent Monetary History" was the subject of an interesting address delivered by R. C. Groesbeck of Klamath Falls before the Medford Rotary club today at the Hotel Medford. This much discussed and highly publicized subject was comprehensively covered by the speaker, who outlined the steps in monetary management undertaken by President Roosevelt and his administration.

In commenting upon the President's gold market, Mr. Groesbeck recalled the experience of the British Empire when England went off the gold standard. Briefly he described the calling in of hoarded gold and explained why various steps by the federal government were taken. An effort was made to eliminate gold speculation and prevent the gold situation in this country which followed England's monetary move, the speaker said.

Mr. Groesbeck then mentioned the silver act of last December and outlined the government's method of purchasing newly mined silver. This move was a tremendous boost to western mining, he said.

The much talked of "commodity dollar" was then discussed by the Klamath Falls speaker, and difficulties of establishing a monetary system based upon commodity prices were described. "We must adjust ourselves to many changes that are now transpiring, as many of them are here to stay," Mr. Groesbeck said in conclusion of his enlightening address.

Law Johnson of Toona extended a cordial invitation to Rotarians to attend the Rotary conference in his city May 6, 7 and 8. Other guests at today's interesting meeting were George Fry, George Phythian, Larry Pennington, A. H. Benwell and Allison Moulton. George Henselman was acting chairman of today's program.
