

Chet Leonard's New Sixth Street Service Station Opens Friday

TEXACO, FIRESTONE PRODUCTS WILL BE STATION FEATURES

Chet Leonard's new super-service station at the corner of Grape and West Sixth street will be officially opened for business tomorrow, featuring Texaco and Firestone products. This strictly modern establishment is the second to be operated under the direction of Mr. Leonard, who will continue to manage his station at 401 North Riverside in conjunction with the new one.

Satisfied with the past five years in business in Medford, and optimistic about the future, Chet Leonard is opening the Texaco station on the west side as a result of steadily increasing patronage, he said today. William Deardorf and Jack Hughes will be employed at the new superstation and a service car will be available at all times for emergency calls.

Deardorf is lubrication expert with eight years' experience, while Jack Hughes has just returned from Portland after completing a course at a lubricating school in the Rose City. A complete line of Texaco and Fire Chief gasoline, Havoline motor oils, Firestone tires, batteries and automobile accessories will be featured by Chet Leonard. Lubrication jobs will carry his guarantee, carrying out the policy of the North Riverside station.

Plenty of parking space is available for motorists who wish to leave their cars while at the office, motor, or shopping.

Mr. Leonard has extended a cordial invitation to southern Oregon motorists to drive in and inspect his fine new green and white station. Complete and up-to-the-minute facilities for automobile service are included in this new addition to the steadily growing Sixth street business district.

"We are gratified in the fact that Chet Leonard's fine station at Sixth and Grape streets will feature Texaco products," E. C. "Jerry" Jerome, district manager for the Texas company said today. "This is undoubtedly one of southern Oregon's finest stations and a real asset to Medford's excellent list of stations serving the motoring public."

Geese, Tame and Wild In Today's News Grist

Goosy, goosy gander—be careful where you wander—is the warning that Medford would issue today to geese, wild and tame. For one of each stepped right out of the story book, so to speak, and landed in the heart of the town—the tame one all too close to Thomas Waterman's gold fish pond. The wild one on a barn on 11th and Front streets, right across from the Big T packing house at 9 o'clock this morning, Guy Conner reported.

Where the wild fowl came from in the middle of winter, when Mother Nature should have him tucked away in sunny marshes, no one volunteered to explain. (The goose book hadn't been consulted.) But he came and went and the latter is what Waterman would like his tame brother to do.

He complained to the law this morning that the tame bird is "eating up the gold fish" in his front yard at Seventh and Ivy streets. Waterman also served notice that he would kill the goose if he got a good chance, but was warned that he could incur the fowl, but that slaying it might bring forth something more complicated than a goose dinner. Goldfish have been missing from the Waterman pond for some time "Tom" declared, and this morning he awoke to find the goose enjoying a goldfish breakfast.

Justice of the Peace Coleman advanced the theory that the geese might be somebody's pet, and if so should be corralled, as he has no legal right to dine on goldfish.
