

Portland Bridge Team Out of Tourney When Recheck Reveals Error

By BRYAN COLLIER
NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Eight determined fourmen headed today into the quarter finals of the United States Bridge association contract team of four championships after 48 hard fought boards yesterday in which some of Gotham's card Goliaths narrowly escaped with their chin whiskers.

Surviving teams included:
David Burnstein, Michael Gottlieb, Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken won by 1,120 from James B. Castle.

Art C. Grau, S. N. Rittenberg and C. L. Woldenberg of Madison, Wis. after the westerners had defeated another New York four in a 24-board preliminary round.

Capt. P. G. French, Mrs. Olive Peterson and Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia and Mrs. R. B. Fuller of New York won by 1,210 from R. N. Caldwell, James Hefty, E. S. Thomas and William Stutesman of Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Ely Culbertson, A. M. Barnes, Waldemar Von Zedtwitz and Louis H. Watson won by 3,080 from W. J. Huake, Mr. and Mrs. George U. Harris and Gaines Gwathmey of New York.

Ely Culbertson, Sam Fry, Jr., Theodore Lightner and Albert H. Morehead won by 990 from Walter Fray, L. J. Welch, William W. Zellar and F. R. Buck of Indianapolis.

W. E. Brownback, Ray H. Coffman, C. C. Lockett and Alvin Novack of St. Louis won by 2,020 from George Reith, chairman of the tournament committee; Walter Heinecke, vice-president of the Whist club, and two other New Yorkers, Benedict Jarmel and John Mattheya.

The Portland team had several hours to celebrate a supposed "victory" before a recheck of scores gave the match to Philadelphia. At the end of the 48 boards, indeed, the official scores showed them so close that the match went to eight extra boards. The recheck showed a discrepancy of more than 1,900 points, which would have given them the victory by 1,210 without the playoff session. The official standing, of course, was changed immediately, and it was Philadelphia's turn to cheer.

The Indianapolis team, in particular, put up a magnificent fight against the redoubtable Culbertson crew and the final result, indeed, turned on that most tragic thing in tournament bridge—a misread card.

EMPIRE HOLDING INVESTORS WAIT WILSON DECISION

The suit in equity of E. M. Wilson, mayor of Medford, against the Empire Holding corporation is now before the state supreme court for decision. The opinion will affect more than 100 residents of this county who reportedly invested between $150,000 and $200,000 in the ill-fated venture which collapsed to leave its mark on the business and political life of the state. The decision will also have a bearing on investors throughout the state.

Wilson is suing for the return of securities proffered for stock in the holding company, including a mortgage on his home property. The amount involved is approximately $500.

Judge W. E. Crews, attorney for Mayor Wilson, argued the case before the full supreme court December 22, and the high court has had the matter under consideration since that date. The case was carried to the high court on a decision by Circuit Judge H. D. Norton, who sustained Wilson's position in the action.

Many Jackson county residents invested in the holding company, offering California Oregon Power company and other stock as security for stock purchases. Many await the decision in the Wilson case.

The defense in the Wilson suit held that the plaintiff was "guilty of laches," or not filing suit in time.

EAGLE POINT COW CASE CONSIDERED

Suit of E. B. Waddell et ux against J. D. Woodworth et al. for the replevin of stock and farm implements, was heard in Justice of the Peace William H. Coleman's court yesterday. The court reserved decision. It is a sister suit to the one heard a week ago wherein Waddell disputed the rights of Walter Woods to 14 head of cattle. The same cows are involved in the present action, along with a sow that complicated matters by having pigs after the legal moves were started.

All the parties concerned are residents of the Eagle Point district, and a dozen witnesses from that section testified.

Waddell originally bought a ranch from Woodworth and the cattle, sow and other personal property now in litigation, were transferred as part of the deal. A neighborhood fracas then arose. It is alleged, two hay hands being felled by a hoe handle and Woods being jabbed in the leg

DIXIE QUEEN MINE RECEIVER SOUGHT

The Dixie Queen, a mine located in the Foothills district, is made the basis of a suit filed in circuit court yesterday by W. H. Miller and LeRoy Miller against William Kirkpatrick and Gus Kuescher. Appointment of a receiver, accounting of ore and restoration of property rights are sought.

The Millers allege in the complaint that Kirkpatrick and Kuescher signed an agreement to develop the mine on a 50-50 basis, but when a valuable ore ledge was found declined to account for the profits, now seek sole possession and decline to reveal the value of findings.

Appointment of a receiver by the court is asked.

BUSINESS CENSUS WILL START SOON

Mrs. A. E. Reames, recently appointed supervisor for the southern Oregon district of the federal business census, returned this morning from a conference with officials in Portland and announced that work on the census would start at once.

There will be but five census enumerators hired in Jackson county and all will be employed through the CWA, she stated, from the re-employment lists. All those persons registered with the re-employment service, headed by Lewis Ulrich, will be eligible for positions. The applicants must have at least a high school education in order to be qualified for the work. Mrs. Reames will have no appointive power regarding the project, she stated, the aim being to put more of the unemployed to work through this channel.

The business census is scheduled for completion by February 15.
