

UNDERPASS NEAR ASHLAND WAITING NEW NEGOTIATION

State Highway Department Anxious to Push Completion, Is Word — Status Explained by Engineer

ASHLAND, Jan. 12.—(Sp.)—The highway department is anxious to push completion of the Ashland underpass and will do so as soon as the controversy with the railroad company is settled at a hearing before Public Utilities Commissioner Charles M. Thomas, according to information received here from R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer.

Engineer Baldock explained the status of the undercrossing at the present time as follows:

"Immediately upon receipt of the original order of the public utilities commissioner, the state highway department began negotiations with the railroad company, looking toward a modification of this order to the end that the location and plans originally proposed by the Oregon state highway commission be adopted. In view of the provisions governing the expenditure of the PWA funds for railroad grade separation purposes, the state highway commission offered to construct this crossing entirely out of PWA funds, provided the plans and location adopted by the state originally proposed by the state, and this entire proposal was presented to the railroad company for consideration.

Order Rescinded.

"Under date of January 2, the public utilities commissioner issued a supplemental order rescinding his original order in reference to the matter, and reopened the entire question for further negotiations.

The state highway department has made complete plans for this structure on the location originally proposed, and the same have been sent to the railroad company's attorneys at Portland, who have in turn forwarded them to their San Francisco office for final determination. This department has recently advised the communication to the railroad company, urging the speediest possible action on this new matter and is now awaiting a reply from the railroad company consenting to the construction in accordance with the plans prepared by the state and on the location originally adopted.

Will Proceed.

"As quickly as word is received from the railroad company, this matter can be reheard and a new order entered pro consento, after which construction can proceed as soon as the project can be advertised for bids.

"We wish to assure that this department is anxious to push this matter to final completion at the earliest possible date and we will bend every effort to secure final approval of the plans and consent to the procedure from the railroad company, and rehearing on the matter as quickly as possible."

WAR-LIKE TESTS SEEN IN GERMAN SPORT PROGRAM

Badge Offered Nazi Youths As Reward for Attaining Fighting Spirit and Better Physical Development

BERLIN—(AP)—Under the leadership of Captain Ernst Roehm, chief of staff of the storm troops and Reichminister without portfolio, Germany is to be made sport conscious, in the Nazi sense.

In the original announcement creating a "sport badge" Captain Roehm said: "The new state demands a strong race, capable of resistance. In addition to the education of the spirit, a fighting education of the body through natural, simple exercises will be offered."

Tests Determine Weathers.

The sport badge can be earned by taking an examination in the various sports listed for the different grades. "This badge can be acquired also by persons outside the party and the storm troops, if they comply with the storm troop conditions for membership, including race and philosophic requirements," the statement continued.

The Angriff, organ of the propaganda minister, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, developing the statement, said it was of tremendous importance and "the possibility is seen of embracing all youth through sports in education for a fighting spirit."

The paper said further that the wearing of the sport badge would indicate that the wearer, in addition to having the proper spiritual education, possessed also the right physical training.

"Wearing of the badge will, and must, be a duty of honor," the paper said, indicating that no excuses would be accepted for not attempting to win at least one of the soon-to-be-created marks.

Characterizing the winning of the new badge as necessary to be known as a "100 per cent sportsman," the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag wrote:

MILK COMMISSION BELONGS IN SALEM IS BOOSTER CLAIM

Law Requires Maintenance of Headquarters in Capital City Is Plaint — No Effort to Comply, Charge

SALEM, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Local civic groups and state officials here desirous of having all boards and commissions to maintain their main offices at the state capital, as required by law, pointed out today that one of the two new commissions created by the special session of the legislature was maintaining its chief offices in Portland.

The state milk commission, requiring a staff to regulate the milk industry, has as yet not secured quarters here. Max Gehlar, state agricultural director, said: "Business is being transacted in Portland and no intention has been apparent with the commission that it would maintain its quarters in Salem. Working as it does with the department of agriculture here, it was declared logical its quarters should be in the agricultural building. E. G. Harlan of Eugene is chairman of this commission.

The state liquor control commission, with George L. Sammis, administrator, and his staff will meet here Saturday for organization work, and one of its first duties will be to locate quarters at the capital. It was announced, as required by the act creating the new commission, that its main offices would be in Salem.

It was believed the commission would select the quarters previously occupied by the state police department, on the third floor of the capital building. The state police now occupies the quarters on the same floor vacated by the board of higher education when the latter was moved to Eugene.

THIRTY COUNTIES TO HAVE AGENTS IN ENSUING YEAR

More counties in Oregon than ever before will have the services of county agents this year, reports F. L. Ballard, county agent leader, following completion of county budgets throughout the state.

Thirty of the 36 counties have definitely arranged for agents, with Columbia county still endeavoring to raise the necessary match money by private subscription. Gullam and Sherman counties have added agents, while Jefferson has joined with Crook in engaging one.

Because of the vital connection between the extension agents and the work of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, one or two other counties are contemplating engaging agents, following decision of the AAA not to continue the practice of stippling agents as was done during the wheat campaign.

Partly because of the responsibility placed on the agricultural staff of the Oregon State college in bringing to Oregon the benefits under the various federal efforts in behalf of agriculture, the complete staff of the extension service, experiment stations and instructional division is holding a state-wide conference at Corvallis this week.

PETITIONS SEEK WILCOX RETURN

PORTLAND, Jan. 12.—(AP)—While many interests joined in petitions to Raymond B. Wilcox that he withdraw his resignation as state head of the CWA and chairman of the state relief committee, and some were taking steps to appeal to President Roosevelt, work was received from Harry L. Hopkins, federal CWA head, that Oregon's CWA quota has been filled, and that unemployed persons not already on projects, will have to remain on relief rolls.

"It is not possible to assign additional workers to any state," Hopkins advised from Washington, D. C., if federal funds are to last until February 15."

WILCOX NEW PRESIDENT OF RESERVE OFFICERS

Election of officers was held last night at the annual meeting of the Rogue River chapter, Reserve Officers Association, held in the Armory, Captain Lyle P. Wilcox was named president, Lieutenant Stephen Nye, vice-president, and Lieutenant Fred Greene, secretary-treasurer.

LOVE LETTERS OF WOMAN POLITICIAN EVIDENCE IN SUIT

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(UP)—The passionate love letters of a woman, former collector of internal revenue, were admitted as evidence in an alienation of affections suit against her today.

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge identified the letters as the ones she allegedly wrote Norman E. Nottingham, a patrol wagon driver, and which are the basis of a $100,000 suit filed by Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, who has the quaint habit of leaving her husband's mail.

"I am plain dumb when I get where you are," she wrote in a letter dated June 30, 1932, and addressed to "Denny Dear." "I just want to be held tight in your arms, and oh boy, how your kisses affect me."

"Nottingham is known to his friends as 'Denny.'"

Mrs. Blackledge, whose former over a $50,000 fare game loss resulted in her resigning her federal position, after several months' blushing personal admitting the letters were in her handwriting, but refused to confirm that they were addressed to Nottingham.

At another point in the same letter she wrote, "Hope you didn't get too much hell—you could take a little after those hours and think it worth it. Didn't we have a dandy time together, dear?"

Another written a week later pleaded, "Take me and my belongings away from here—make a home anywhere as soon as you can. How I want you—how I miss you, darling. Don't wait too long. We are wasting valuable time. I need you, oh, so much."

The next day she wrote, "I would like nothing better than to be able to talk to you at close range, sitting on your lap, or held in your arms—you dispel all my blues—bring me more happiness than I ever thought would be mine."

Another letter written the same day chided him for not writing, and added, "I refuse to be neglected and it won't be a bit healthy if you keep it up, you son of a sea cook."

Judge I. L. Weaver ordered the letters impounded, to be read to a jury to be called January 25 to hear the case.

WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY YOU'RE HAPPY!

True blame for "blues" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skin, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonsful of All-Bran daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Get the red and green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
