

153 APPLICATIONS FOR AGE PENSIONS ARE HANDED COURT

To date 153 applications for old age pensions have been filed with the county court, considerably less than anticipated and indicated by the first rush for application blanks. Close to 200 applications are expected to be filed. It was estimated that there were 1500 people within the county over 70 years of age, and that half this number would apply for pensions.

Two stenographers, under direction of Ingrid Holmes, secretary of the county court, have been busy the past week making out the applications with all questions answered in full. Applications of the inmates of the county farm will be taken at an early date.

When all the applications have been filed and all data collected the county court, acting as the old age pension board, will hold a session and pass on the applications in time for payment during February.

Checks are being made on all applicants, to verify them as to age and length of residence in the state and county. Valuation of property, and incomes of the applicants are also scrutinized, and welfare associations in other states contacted to determine the financial ability of unmarried daughters, sons and other kin to care for the applicants. The law provides that relatives, if able, are responsible for the care of aged kin, and that the entire burden cannot be shifted to the state or county.

The budget allowance for old age pension in this county is $5000 and the pensions will have to stay within this sum, owing to the financial stringency. The pensions granted will necessarily have to be small, to keep within this amount. The legislature provided no means for funds when it passed the law, leaving it to the counties. Some Oregon counties have taken no steps to pay pensions this year. Those who have, like Jackson county, have adopted a rigid economy policy, to make the limited funds last.

ELECTRICAL ORDINANCE IS SOUGHT AS MODEL

Further proof of the worth of the ordinance recently passed by the Medford city council, regulating the use of electrical equipment in this city, was received yesterday by Frank Rogers, building inspector.

A letter from Elizabeth N. J., asking for a copy of the Medford ordinance reached Mr. Rogers' desk. It announced that information regarding the Medford ordinance had been received there and that the city of Elizabeth was anxious to adopt a new ordinance and would appreciate a copy of the one drawn up in this city.

Lest We Forget

The death of Mrs. Clara Anderson deserves more than passing notice, as her father, James W. Collins, was one of the very first settlers in Rogue River valley, having come here in 1852. He took up a donation claim half-way between where the towns of Jacksonville and Phoenix are now located, and built the first house that was built in the valley out of rustic or dressed lumber.

It used to be called the half-way house, and was used for over 70 years before being torn down. It is now known as the Gordon ranch and no doubt some of that lumber can be found there now.

Mr. Collins sold out later and bought the old Brotherton place in Sams Valley, where he lived for many years, and then moved to Phoenix, where he spent the balance of his life.

Clara Collins Anderson was born at the ranch in Sams Valley, in 1857, and therefore was one of the oldest native daughters in Jackson county. She was married to Quinton Anderson in 1874, a native son of this county, and afterwards moved to Klamath county and settled on a homestead near Elsie, and engaged in the stock business for many years, and finally came back to spend their remaining days in the Rogue River valley, where Mr. Anderson died several years ago.

When they first settled in the Sprague River valley it was rather an isolated place, and neighbors were few and far between, and had to depend on each other for help in cases of sickness or death, etc.

Mrs. Anderson was one who was always ready to go and was a mother to the young people of that locality, and many a cowboy who is now past middle age, will hold her in loving remembrance as long as they live, and their hearts will be sad when they learn of the death of "Ma" Anderson, who was a mother to them in early days.

R. O. STEPHENSON NEW COUNCILMAN FROM 1ST WARD

The bid was paid in $1875 to Johnson and the deed of a lot, valued at $250 to Myers. The property, the ordinance states, is to be free of all encumbrances, including taxes.

To Ordinance Davis Lot.

The other ordinance authorizes the city attorney to institute a suit for condemnation of the Scott Davis property, needed for the same improvement. Mr. Davis, it was announced at the council meeting, refused to accept the price set for the property by the land appraisal committee, which viewed all the property.

The ordinance providing for the collection by the Jackson County Humane society of 80 per cent of the dog licenses within the city of Medford and handling of the dog and cat problem by the humane society, was also passed by the council. A new plumbing ordinance was also adopted by the city staff. All were presented to the council by Attorney Otto Frohnmayer, acting as city attorney in the absence of Frank Parrell, who has gone to Washington D. C. to attend several weeks.

Councilman G. C. Darby announced that a meeting of the liquor regulation committee would be held later this week to devise an ordinance for Medford. Mayor Wilson stated that early action was needed and that a special meeting of the council would be called, if needed, to hear the committee's report.

Following recommendation of the committee, the council agreed to install four light standards at Riverside and Main, where street widening is in progress. Councilman Dade Terrett opposed the installation, but his was the only dissenting vote.

Reports Read.

Reports of the city building inspector, Frank Rogers, and of City Superintendent Fred Scheffel were read by Councilmen Terrett and Littrell. Mr. Scheffel's report showed that much work has been accomplished for the city through the CWA. In November, 13 city blocks were graded and "backhotted." There are now 280 men at work on these projects. Bear creek flood control, the Prescott Memorial park development, and the construction of the cross runways at the Medford airport.

An interested guest at the council meeting, who is in early training along the lines of city government, was Curtis Darby, Jr., who accompanied his dad to the session.

Mildred Hansen was a guest at the Chas. Cingrade home Sunday night. Mrs. Mary Williams and Mayme Gurwolf of Hornbrook, Cal., and Mrs. Leslie Keag of Mt. Shasta, Cal., were overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hansen on Thursday.

Clemenson, representative of the first ward, and extending sympathy to his widow and other relatives, was passed last night by the council in regular session. The resolution was recorded in the city books and copies forwarded Mrs. Clemenson and the press. It reads:

"Whereas, the Honorable William M. Clemenson departed this life on the 30th day of December, 1933; and

"Whereas, Mr. Clemenson was a member of the city council of the city of Medford and did unflinchingly devote his time to the welfare of the citizens of the city of Medford as a member of said council; and

"Whereas, there was a close personal contact between Mr. Clemenson and the individual members of the council, and through this contact his friendliness, helpfulness and kindness were ever felt; and

"Whereas, his untimely passing is a distinct loss to the city of Medford and a personal loss to each member of the city council; therefore be it planation to his class, and asked, 'Is it as clear as it was?' Whereupon a student responded:

"Yes, but no clearer."

In Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress he mentioned dollar devaluation officially for the first time.

The milk co-operatives are groaning about the government's new milk plan and the government officials are wondering if they will fight.

One explanation of the new money policy is: "Mr. Roosevelt is now stabilizing without exactly stabilizing. Just as three months ago he devalued the dollar without exactly devaluing it."

Another called it a sedative for money interest.

The wisest comment probably was: "Mr. Roosevelt's money policy is now about half way between Professor Warren and James Warburg."

It has been remarked that the White House now that Glass is not the "isai" kind.

PIONEER CHILD HAD GOOD TIME

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—(UP)—Children of the present generation have more advantages than those of pioneer days. Mrs. Marie Dougal, eldest daughter of Brigham Young, founder of Salt Lake City, and I. D. S. church leader said, "they couldn't have any better times than we did back in the 50's and 60's."

"My first recollection is of the old row of log cabins in the site now occupied by one of the city's most modern apartments. In one of those cabins I was born. The valley was covered with sagebrush," she said.

Contrary to general impression, pioneer children had ample time for recreation, she said.

"We used to jump th' rope, run races and play any number of games. In the evenings we would sometimes have sandy pulls, which were the height of our enjoyment. Of course, we had our work to do, but it wasn't hard," the aged woman explained. "We helped our mothers with the

It took a trip to Truckee to convince B. W. Wilson...

Mr. Wilson's party couldn't resist stopping to enjoy the first snow they reached. Meanwhile their idle motor got icy cold—much colder than it ever does in San Francisco where Mr. Wilson lives.

Starting up again on his old style gas, Mr. Wilson's motor sputtered for fifteen minutes or more, seemed to have only half its ordinary power on that long pull over the hump.

Needing gas, Mr. Wilson saw this sign at Soda Springs. (Elevation 6000 feet).

WHAT A DIFFERENCE!

"I decided here was a chance to try out Thermalized gasoline," he told us, "to see if it really did what your chart shows."

Thermalized Gasoline DOES THIS:

Thermalized SUPER-SHELL WINTER GAS vs. ORDINARY WINTER GAS. Thermalized gas provides smoother running and still requires credit.

Test it in your car. Pick the first cold morning to test it. You'll forget the weather! You'll be astounded by the improvement that Thermalized fuel makes.

WHAT THERMALIZING DOES TO A WINTER GASOLINE

- Makes it more concentrated, more powerful in a cold motor.
- Reduces the tendency to sputter and backfire in chilly weather.
- Cuts in half the usual choking period.
- Prevents dangerous dilution of crankcase oil.
- Increases winter mileage, saves you money.

*THERMALIZED is the name given Shell's combination of processes by which gasoline is made to deliver full power in a cold engine. Originally produced under terrific heat, Super Shell is redistilled, made 20% more concentrated. Every gallon for your community is Thermalized for local temperatures.
