

GEN. HAMMOND TO BE MAIN SPEAKER AT FORUM LUNCHEON

Gen. Creed C. Hammond, former chief of the militia bureau, and more recently consul-general of the Philippine Islands, will be the main speaker at a forum luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held at the Hotel Medford, Thursday, February 8, at noon, it was announced today by Chamber of Commerce officials.

General Hammond will devote his talk to business conditions in the Orient, which is very timely and of vital interest to the business men of the city.

Gen. U. G. McAlexander, "The Rock of the Marine," will also be a guest at the luncheon. Following a long military career, General McAlexander distinguished himself in the world war and was decorated by many foreign countries.

It is expected that the luncheon will draw a very large crowd, especially in view of the fact that the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary will attend in a body.

Proceeding the luncheon, General Hammond and General McAlexander will inspect the headquarters of the CCC and plant at the fair grounds, with Capt. C. H. Barnwell, officer commanding the CCC in this city.

At 3 p. m. a meeting of retail merchants will be held at the Chamber of Commerce. Robert Mount, manager of the better business bureau in Portland, will discuss matters of interest to his work for the benefit of the local bureau. Mr. Mount is a member of a party of business men of Portland, who will accompany General McAlexander and Hammond to this city.

All citizens of Medford are urged to reserve tickets for the luncheon, which will be available later on. In the meanwhile, Chamber of Commerce officials suggest that they make a note of the date.

FARMING METHODS AND ROMANCE MIX IN PUHL LAWSUIT

A story of farming, interwoven with romance that failed to blossom in the fullest, was told yesterday and today in circuit court, before Judge James T. Brand of Coos county, in the suit of Fred Puhl against Louise Howard, now Louise Pech, for collection of money allegedly advanced by Puhl on notes and for farm equipment, and for labor.

Henry Daik, brother of the defendant, testified:

"I told some people Fred was just kidding around the place, and he asked me about it. He told me: 'Remember, you're getting paid, and I'm not.'"

The witness said Puhl did not work during the period he was employed on the ranch, except to "broadcast some grain, cut the winter's wood and help clear a half acre."

"I got up at 4:45 a. m. and worked before breakfast, and Fred got up at half past seven," the witness further stated.

Another time, Daik testified, he talked with Puhl about his proposed marriage to his sister.

"I told him not every man was lucky enough to marry a woman with so much property," and he replied, "Yes, when we are married, half this place will be mine." I told him the children had their share."

Daik said he owed his sister $100, and offered her a washing machine in payment of the debt, and Puhl remarked, "We don't need a washing machine." Daik then asked, "Who is running the place?" and the sister answered, "I am."

Daik testified that he did not consider a tractor or a foreman was needed in the operation of the farm, located on the Bear creek bottoms in the Midway district.

Charles Gowdy, now employed by Mrs. Howard, testified to work done with farm machinery on other places nearby, for which Mrs. Howard paid the wages.

Puhl, himself, called to the stand, testified, "If we got married I was not to be paid, and if we didn't I was to be." The defense attempted to show contradiction with testimony given in other hearings on the case.

Puhl, well known valley resident, contends he acted as foreman, and the tractor and other machinery he purchased was needed in the running of the farm. He held the acreage shown as a farm in crop production under his management. Two sons—Albert and Herbert Puhl—were called as witnesses on the use of the machinery and work performed over a period of months.

Roland Hubbard, implement dealer of this city, and Arnold Bohner, Central Point district farmer, were called to testify to the need and present value of tractors, binders, harrows, plows and cultivators, and the wage paid for their use.

The defense contends a "family relationship existed," and that by reason thereof, the defendant is not obligated to pay; the plaintiff the verbal contract existed. Each contends the other cancelled the marriage promise.

Much of the testimony dealt with farm methods.

CREAMERYMEN OF REGION MEET TO AGREE ON PRICES

Creamerymen of northern California and southern Oregon are meeting at the Hotel Medford this afternoon in the interests of establishment of uniform butter prices for the mid-Pacific empire, which constitutes just another step forward in the nation-wide program now under way to improve conditions for dairy interests.

J. D. Mickle of the Oregon dairy and food commission, and L. S. Leach, creamery and field man for the state department of agriculture, are here to represent Oregon in the conference, and Fred Abbott of the University of California at Davis, will present California's case.

All northern California counties and the Rogue River valley section are represented at the meeting, where it is hoped a working relation between the Californians and the Oregonians in the creamery business will be accomplished.

A conflict or friction between the two closely related regions is detrimental to the butter interests in both and the meeting was called here to establish some uniformity in price and practices.

To Interview Turkey Raisers—J. C. Leedy, manager of the Oregon Turkey association, Portland, was in Medford today and conferred with A. H. Barnwell, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. During the next day or so, Mr. Leedy will interview turkey raisers, and it is expected that sometime in the near future an effort will be made to form an organization here.

Organizes Class — Miss Blanche Runels, Jackson county health nurse, organized a first aid class at the Griffin Creek white schoolhouse Wednesday evening, according to a report received from that community. Fourteen persons attended the opening meeting. The class is to be held each Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock for eight weeks. All persons interested are invited to attend. The only cost is that of the Red Cross manual used.

Yes, Sir! They're Refrigerated

We are introducing a new type of Danish Pastry Butterhorn, Saturday, which is one of the finest pieces of bakery goods we have ever seen.

They are made by an entirely new process, in which the large refrigeration facilities which we recently installed in our plant play a most important part.

Refrigerated Danish Pastry has a crisp flakiness and richness which is not even approached in any other type of sweet dough. Above all, it has a flavor that puts it in a class by itself. Don't miss trying them.
