

FRUIT INTERESTS FORCE FRANCE TO CHANGE TAX IDEA

Quick, Dramatic Action Saves Day for Apple and Pear Exporters of Pacific Coast—Shipments Listed

While Rogue River valley orchardists, with others of the northwest, are rejoicing over the reduction in French import license taxes on American apples and pears, which has already tended to facilitate the purchase of northwest fruits, a dramatic story of negotiations preceding the reduction, seems particularly appropriate. It was received yesterday from Gwin, White & Prince, Inc., Seattle, Wash.

It shows just what concentrated effort on the part of fruit interests lay behind the bare announcement from Washington that the French government had yielded to the American demands for a reduction. The tax reduction is expected to result in larger importation of American apples and pears to the limit of 2,000 quintals (approximately 1,000,000 bush.) allotted to the American fruits by the French government for the first quarter of the year.

Substantial Reduction. The taxes will be reduced to 40 francs per quintal, 220 pounds of apples, and 60 francs per quintal of pears. The tax heretofore has been 125 francs per quintal of apples and 175 francs per quintal of pears.

The actual story as told by Gwin, White and Prince, Inc., follows:

After a series of negotiations between the French ambassador, the French commercial attaché, and the American department of state, the United States on December 22 agreed to double the previous specified quota on French wines and liquors in exchange for an increase in the French apple and pear quota to 1,000,000 bushels, an increase of about 400 per cent. French wines of sufficient quantity to exhaust the increased U. S. quota were at the time either in the docks in U. S. ports or were en route to the United States on December 22, arriving here within a few days. Thus, France ceased to immediately on its increased wine quota, but on December 23 snatched from America all of the substantial benefits of the increased fruit quota by announcing the imposition of new and drastically increased import taxes of 125 francs per hundred kilo on apples and 175 francs on pears.

As such duties are so high as to amount to an embargo, French purchases of American apples and pears necessarily were completely stifled, and the representations of the French government that the increase in their quota would mean the purchase by France of a million bushels of American apples and pears became meaningless.

Pacific coast interests, thoroughly alarmed at the threatened loss of a valuable and vitally important market, organized a campaign to save the situation. J. A. Smith of Seattle, foreign trade manager of Gwin, White & Prince, Inc., large exporters of Pacific coast fruits to France, was chosen to represent the Pacific coast interests and proceeded to Washington to lead the fight.

Roger Capras of Paris, French representative of Gwin, White & Prince, Inc., simultaneously sailed from Paris, representing the Syndicate of French Fruit Importers. R. G. Phillips and his assistant, Fraser, representing International Apple Association, joined forces with Smith and Capras at Washington. Numerous cables and long distance telephone messages were exchanged between the French ambassador and the French government at Paris. The United States State department came vigorously into action and the whole matter was reopened, with the U. S. government insisting that France reduce the taxes by at least two-thirds, under penalty of retaliation in the matter of shutting out French wines.

Wine Importers Interested. The wine importing interests of the east were drawn into the situation, and, thoroughly alarmed at the threatened loss of their business, should the U. S. government take retaliatory measures, brought pressure to bear upon the French ambassador, stimulating him to extreme efforts with his own government. Additional support was brought to bear through officials of various United States steamship lines, the Baltimore Mail Line, and other American interests having a vital stake in this French traffic.

After a week of strenuous night and day work the French government yielded to the American demands, and announced reduction of the onerous duties from 125 francs per kilo on apples to 40 francs, and from 175 francs on pears to 60 francs, a reduction amounting to about two-thirds of the duties, thereby meeting in full the demands of the American fruit interests and the American government.

Exports Listed. Exports of American boxed apples from the Pacific slope for the current season to January 31, totalled: United Kingdom 2,857,380 boxes; Germany 1,045,513 boxes; Holland 420,832 boxes; Belgium 2, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland 173,507 boxes; France 321,567 boxes; South and Central America 210,523 boxes; Orient 204,982 boxes; Miscellaneous ports 211,753 boxes.

Total exports to January 6, 1934 5,347,767 boxes.

'PERFECT ALIBI' WILL BE STAGED BY NORMAL CAST

Followers of Southern Oregon Normal school dramatics are awaiting with enthusiasm the production of "The Perfect Alibi," February 20.

Angus L. Bowmer of the S. O. N. S. faculty, who is directing "The Perfect Alibi," has made an enviable reputation for himself as well as for the Normal school by previous productions. Chief among these was "Andrew Jackson," an original play by Mr. Bowmer. "Grumpy" and "As You Like It" were also produced during the last year and a half.

"The Perfect Alibi" is of an entirely different order from these other plays. Written by A. A. Milne, the well-known English playwright, it was presented in England under the title "The Fourth Wall." The play has been secured by special permission from Samuel French and company, Mr. Milne's publishers in this country. It is of a very recent date, being copyrighted in the United States in 1929.

"The Fourth Wall" or "The Perfect Alibi," as it is called in the United States, is a tremendously clever detective story, concerned with the murder of Arthur Ludgrove. The audience has the unique experience of witnessing the murder and also the subsequent solving of the crime by Susan Cunningham, Ludgrove's wife, and her fiance-to-be, Jimmy Ludgrove, the murdered man's nephew.

The story is laid in England, in English surroundings and with English characters. Every character in the play is outstanding, and Mr. Bowmer feels that all those who were selected for the cast will have splendid opportunities for real acting and characterization.

Salvation Chance May Be Neglected Evangelist Fears

(Contributed.) One of Evangelist Archer's most important messages was given last night at the Free Methodist church on "Neglecting God's Great Salvation." "No one in this great congregation will offer to sell their interest in heaven for any sum, but what I'm afraid some will do is that they neglect, and neglect, and neglect, until it is too late," he said.

Any who have a need in soul, mind or body will profit in hearing the evangelist's message tonight, as he speaks on "The Great Physician." Three services are planned for Sunday, one of the most important being on Sunday afternoon.

REAL COMPLIANCE WITH NRA CODES IS RECOVERY KEY

Johnson Tells New State Directors Success Depends On Ability to Obtain Full Co-operation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP) Hugh S. Johnson told the newly chosen state directors for NRA and the emergency council today that success of the recovery administration and the entire recovery program depended wholly on their ability to obtain real compliance with the codes. In an extended explanation of what NRA has done and still has to do, Johnson told the men that the enforcement question was "the proof of the pudding."

Unions Big Problem. Outlining the problems which they face, he said one of the greatest was that involving company unions.

"There is no answer to the argument," he said, "that many companies created unions after passage of the industrial act to influence their men in the choice of instrumentality for collective bargaining."

"It is a counter NRA device in some small part at least and depending on its execution." He explained that under the law employees were to be absolutely free of employer influence in their organizations but that the company union was not, as such, outlawed unless membership in it was made mandatory.

Nathan Straus, Jr., New York state director, inquired whether the state men would be consulted before the selection of their labor advisors. Johnson replied:

"I think the selections already have been made by the secretary of labor." Straus expressed surprise, saying he had not heard of the action and George Creel, the California director, inquired:

"Do you think the department of labor is better equipped to select advisors than the men in the field?"

PAGEANT OF 100 TO BE FEATURE OREGON JUBILEE

Faithfully depicting the early history of Oregon, going back to the days before while men came to the west, preparations are well under way for the presentation of an historical pageant during Oregon's Diamond Jubilee in Medford from June 3 to 9. A careful research into happenings of early days is being made by Professor Angus Bowmer, of the Southern Oregon Normal School, who is directing the pageant as well as writing it.

The pageant will have a cast in excess of 100 people who are to begin rehearsals in a very short time. A preliminary outline of the pageant is indicative of the thoroughness with which the subject is being treated, paying especial attention to incidents vitally important in present Oregon history. Indians, trappers, prospectors, covered wagon trains, pioneers, singers and other performers will appear in well balanced roles, providing interest that has no lagging moments from the beginning to the grand finale.
