

COURT OF HONOR AWARDS BADGES ON ADVANCEMENT

Medford district Court of Honor met last night in the auditorium of the Jackson county court house. Don R. Newbury, judge of the Court of Honor, officiated. A large number of boys and parents were present to witness the ceremony.

A. O. Soderberg, scout executive, gave a short talk to the boys, urging them to continue to advance in scouting and receiving awards. The advancement program offers a challenge to a scout that requires considerable effort and stick-to-it-iveness. Scouts are encouraged to advance to the higher ranks instead of remaining "tenderfoots."

Gerald Keese of Troop No. 8, Medford, received the Star award. The scout to obtain this advancement must have a satisfactory service record for at least three months and pass five merit badges. Gerald was complimented on his progress by Mr. Newbury.

Following is a list of the scouts receiving awards at the court:

CAPITAL ACTIVITY HALTS TO MOURN; RITES THURSDAY

State Activity Halts
All state activities, involving issuance of warrants which affects virtually every department of government, ceased upon word of his death. There can be no duties performed in the largest department of state government since the official had been resting and silent. Hal E. Hoes was being mourned over the entire state today.

Governor Julius L. Meier, when informed of Hoes' death early today, was among the first to express loss at the passing of his colleague on the state board of control.

"I feel a deep personal grief at the passing of Mr. Hoes," the governor told the Associated Press. "In our association on the board of control I came to know him as a man of unusual ability and high integrity. His knowledge of state business and his devotion to the public welfare made his services invaluable. Oregon has lost an able officer and a fine citizen."

Holman Absent
Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, and the third member of the board of control, was not at his offices today.

A. A. Schramm, state banking superintendent, declared that "we've lost a real friend and a gentleman, one who has given unstintingly in his efforts to serve the public."

Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, stated that Hoes' passing was "an irreparable loss to the state."

Hoes had been confined to bed since November. His last visit to the state house was late that month when he attended a brief meeting of the board of control.

He entered the state tuberculosis hospital at The Dalles last spring for treatment, returning to Salem late in the summer, and although friends said his condition appeared to have improved considerably, he was able to visit his office only infrequently and on imperative occasions.

Hoes is survived by his widow, Myrtle Lantz Hoes, to whom he was married at Tillamook in 1914, and by four children, David, Jean, John and Laura.

Born in Portland
He was born in Portland Oct. 7, 1892, the son of Oregon pioneer, James B. and Marilla Young Hoes. The father was a contractor and built several of the now historic structures in the Portland district.

The family moved to eastern Oregon, making their home for several years in Umatilla county, where Hoes received his grammar school education.

After a period of employment which ranged from that of bellboy in hotels, scene shifting in a theater, and doing odd jobs with a circus, Hoes started his newspaper career at the age of 17 years, obtaining employment on a small weekly paper in Salem.

Studied Law
During his spare time he studied law. He served as a reporter on a Camas, Wash. paper in 1918, and a short time later became managing editor of the Banner at Oregon City. In 1920 he became editor of the Daily Morning Enterprise at Oregon City, and manager of the printing plant.

Prior to his appointment as secretary of state in 1928, Hoes served as secretary to Governor Patterson, and was a member of the state parole board.

He went into the office of secretary of state upon the resignation of Sam A. Koser who became state budget director. Prior to his appointment, however, he had obtained the republication nomination to the post. He was elected for a four year term in November, 1928, and was re-elected to

A second term in November, 1932. During his service on the parole board Hoes, because of his interest in penology, was made a director of the American Prison association, and a member of the federal parole board.

Honored By Frats
Although he never attended the University of Oregon, he was honored with election to Theta Chi, national fraternity; Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, and Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity. He was a member of the Portland advertising club, the Salem ad club, the Oregon City Golf club, and the Odd Fellows lodge.

In 1921 he was elected secretary of the Oregon State Editorial association, serving until he was elected to the presidency in 1923. He served two terms in that post. During his experience as a newspaper man, Hoes served also as vice president of the National Editorial association.

CLOSE OF ROGUE MAINTAINED FOR SPAWNING FISH

In a telegram received at the state police office this afternoon from Frank B. Wire, state game supervisor, he stated "steelhead season in Rogue closed January 31, and opens April 15."

Professor Irving E. Vining of Ashland, member of the state fish and game commission, who was a visitor in Medford today, stated that after conferring with a number of sportsmen in this section, it was learned that the fish are now coming up the river to spawn, and that they should not be molested by the fishing season being opened earlier than that date.

Professor Vining plans to attend the next meeting of the board on February 12, he said.

The telegram from the state game supervisor, in full, stated: "Steelhead classified as trout in Rogue, page 21 game code. Commission in March, last year opened season for taking trout over ten inches in Illinois exclusive of tributaries from the confluence with Rogue to point upstream known as Illinois river falls during February. Steelhead season in Rogue closed January 31 and opens April 15. See page three fishing synopsis."

The item on page 21 of the game code, referred to in the above telegram says: "In all waters of the Rogue river and its tributaries and within a radius of three miles from the center of the mouth of Rogue river, however, the steelhead trout, regardless of age or size, is a game fish, and may not be taken as a commercial fish."

On page three, of the synopsis of Oregon fishing laws, the following refers to Rogue river and Illinois river: "Steelhead are classified as trout in the Rogue river and all laws regarding trout are there applicable to steelhead."

"Open season for trout in Rogue river and tributaries April 15 to December 31, inclusive; provided further, there shall be an open season for the taking of trout over 10 inches in length in the Rogue river and the Illinois river, exclusive of their tributaries, during the month of January of each year; and there shall be an open season for the taking of trout over 10 inches in length in that part of the Illinois river, exclusive of tributaries, from its confluence with the Rogue river to a point upstream known as Illinois river falls, during the month of February of each year."

RACHEL HARRIS TO FINAL REST

ROXY ANN PARK VISIT CONVERTS EGW FIELD AIDE

Following an inspection trip yesterday afternoon to the Roxy Ann park site by Emerson Knight, inspector of state park emergency conservation work, and Fred Scheffel, Medford city superintendent, the latter reported today that Mr. Knight seemed favorably impressed with the site proposed for establishing a CCC camp this spring.

Mr. Scheffel said that the application for the camp must be in to Lawrence Merriam, district officer of the state park conservation work, by February 10, and that recommendations are then made by Mr. Merriam to Robert Pechin, national director of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

"Mr. Knight is assistant to Mr. Merriam," Mr. Scheffel said "and we expect him to file a favorable report with Mr. Merriam."

It is the plan, should the camp site be accepted, that fire prevention and pest control work be the program carried out. Two hundred enrolled, with an additional 30 or 40 experienced woodsmen would make up the personnel of the camp.

RADIO SYSTEMS DEBATE TOPIC AT ROTARY SESSION

Students of the Medford high school provided the entertainment for today's luncheon meeting of the Medford Rotary club at the Medford Hotel. The main feature of the school program was an interesting debate upon the much discussed plan of the United States' adoption of the English system of government controlled radio. In the British Isles, radio programs are furnished by the government-controlled British Broadcasting company, operated under the direction of the postmaster general.

Dolph James and Cleo Hicks ably presented the affirmative side of the question in a very able manner while Irene Stubblefield and Betty Thordike, two charming high school girls, maintained that the present American system of individually owned and operated radio stations is best suited to the needs of the American public.

Both sides were presented in a convincing and pleasing manner, reflecting considerable credit upon Coach Ralph Bailey who was present at today's meeting.

As an introductory feature of the high school program, Miss Baldwin introduced Harold Grove and Ed. Owens, members of the cast of the "Mikado," soon to be presented by the high school. These two members offered solos from their parts in the comic opera. Harold stepped out of his role of sports writer extraordinary into the shoes of the Mikado while Ed briefly became the Lord High Executioner. Glen Smith, chairman of the Rotary program committee, had charge of today's entertainment.

E. W. Ellis of Eugene and Frank Moran of Seattle were visiting Rotarians at today's Rotary meeting and Mel Keller, representative of Warner Brothers, was a visiting guest.
