DIVORCEE TELLS ALLEGED ATTACK BY ARMY OFFICER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Blanche Hallis, pretty red-haired Alabama divorcee, testified today to an attack she alleges Lieut. John H. Murrel, former Army football star, made on her last October. Showing little emotion, Miss Hallis said the attack occurred on the Port San Houston reservation following a party celebrating the Texas-Centenary football game last fall. Murrel is on trial before Federal Judge R. J. McMillan, with a jury of 12 men. In qualifying the jurors, Judge McMillan made it known that the government will not ask for the death penalty, which could be assessed on conviction of criminal attack. Miss Hallis related having met Lieut. Murrel at a hotel dance a few hours preceding the alleged attack. After the hotel dance, she said, she and a party including the defendant went to a rural night club. En route home about 5 a. m., Miss Hallis said, the party split up and finally she was left alone with Lieut. Murrel, who drove her to the scene of the alleged attack on the military reservation. Miss Hallis testified that the lieutenant cursed her and dragged her from the car and attacked her despite her cries and struggles. The witness said she told Lieut. Murrel she would tell her brother, and quoted him as replying: "I'm not afraid, I've gotten away

Ye Poet's Corner

My Love, I Love You Dearly.
There is a song I love to sing when
Twilight falls quite early;
I love to wander off alone and
Sing it loud and clearly.
Chorus:
I love to hear the echo as it says,
My love, I love you dearly;
For it was in my early youth,
All alone he found me,
He came to me with outstretched
arms,
And wound his arms around me.
Chorus—
He whispered softly in my ears, but
I could hear him clearly;
He pressed me closely to his side and
Said, My love, I love you dearly.
Chorus—
—By Mary O. Carey.

HOLD BOYS FOR EXTORTION PLOT

Three Augustus, Me., high school youths confessed, state officials said, to sending an extortion letter to William P. Viles of Augustus and New York, threatening to disfigure or abduct one of his three children unless $20,000 were paid. The boys, left to right above, are: Mervin W. Hughes, 18; Robert Brown, 16; and Gerald A. Towl, 16. (Associated Press Photos)

In "Bombay Mail" CHINA PICTURED AT KIWANIS MEET

The story of "Bombay Mail" coming to the Rialto theatre tomorrow, is the story of two murders on a train of that name, which races from Calcutta to Bombay. More than a dozen people are suspected of the crimes, which are solved by Edmund Lowe, in the role of Inspector Dyke.

The picture not only has the advantage of mystery, but is laid in that mysterious country "Mother India," home of 300,000,000 souls, redolent with mysticism, where anything is liable to happen.

Laughton Amusing As Bluebeard King

No one, probably, would care to pattern his table manners after Charles Laughton's interpretation of Henry VIII as he sat at the royal board—but that is more reason why one should enjoy this English production. "The Private Life of Henry VIII" for the picture portrays the English monarch of the sixteenth century in an historical as well as an amusing manner. The film is playing at Hunt's Craterian theater tonight and tomorrow.

Six wives the king had during his reign, each well portrayed, but perhaps the most outstanding is the blond duchess from Germany who is such a card sharp the king gladly divorces her. This part is played by Laughton's real wife, Elsa Lanchester.

FOUR HELD IN DEATH OF PASTOR

Investigation of the Indianapolis slaying of the Rev. Gaylord Saunders of Wabash, Ind., brought a signed statement to police by his widow (upper left) that she gave $10 to Theodore Mathers (upper right), 19-year-old embalming school student, to hire someone to kill her husband, and that the youth decided to do it himself. She and Mathers, with Maail Roe, 19 (lower left), were held on charges of murder, and Mrs. Mabel Balke (lower right), nurse of Mrs. Saunders who admitted knowing of the slaying, was questioned. BEST MANNERS!

Dagmar Haugen, Eugene, and Neal Bush, Vernonia, have been chosen as the most courteous woman and man in the University of Oregon, as the result of a contest conducted by Phi Theta Upsilon, women's upperclass service honorary. The contest was one of the most popular of the year with students.

Isaac Costner, identified with Banghart as a member of the gang headed by Roger and Tommy Touhy, Chicago public enemies, was seized as he entered one of the two suites rented by Banghart.

Two women were also taken in the raid, in which was found $12,495, all in $5 bills. The apartment had been virtually converted into an arsenal.

BOMB PUNCTUATES CUBA CELEBRATION

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A bomb explosion in downtown Havana accompanied early today the jubilant celebration of carnival—Cuba's first observance of the first in seven years. The detonation marked the only serious disturbance in the night's festivities. It did considerable damage in the shopping district. There were no casualties.
