M'NARY INDORSED FOR PRESIDENCY BY LINCOLN CLUB

"He has a full understanding of our vast social and economic possibilities," Attorney Newbury said, "and is in step with the ideals of the day. He is sufficiently conservative to satisfy the older and more deliberate elements of the citizenry of this country and sufficiently progressive to appeal to the younger and more restless. He is a man who knows the needs of the people and whose heart beats in sympathy with them."

The resolution was quickly passed and was offered to the local club without the knowledge or consent of the senator. His indorsement is probably the first move of its kind taken in his behalf in the nation.

Groesbeck Main Speaker.

Abraham Lincoln was likened by R. C. Groesbeck of Klamath Falls, principal speaker of the evening, as a guiding light or guide post needed badly during past and recent emergencies. Although many years have passed since the Great Emancipator was claimed by the ages, his influence has not been forgotten, nor has it been dimmed during the passage of time.

In other days, when newspapers, radios and moving pictures, were not in such common usage, people were in the habit of thinking more deeply in regard to national problems, possibly encouraging a better national unity, the speaker said. National unity was a burning question during Civil War years and was made more emphatic by threats of disunity, which spurred union states, led by Lincoln, to great heights in preserving the nation.

National unity is still a serious question, Mr. Groesbeck pointed out, and while it is not now threatened by physical fact, contrary forces are not difficult to perceive. They can be seen in forces of crime working against society, class against class and in other aspects of forces opposing each other. The nation is not yet of one mind.

Serious Thinking Needed.

"This is not the time to condemn," the speaker said, "but it is the time to think more seriously of the future of this great nation and work toward a complete unity of all interests."

References were made by Mr. Groesback to the "forgotten man," and he insinuated that while this term referred to many worthy of aid, it also referred to a class of people who easily developed the impression they were entitled to more than they were receiving, and have done nothing in returning value for what they have already received, declaring they deserved such help. They do not let the government forget them, he said.

The speaker condoned the direct primary law. He said it opened chairs of government to incompetents, often elected due to the indifference of voters who fail to give candidates careful study and vote blindly. In closing, Mr. Groebeck reviewed different angles of social justice, stressing the thought that there has been no social injustice.

Cowgill President.

During the early part of the banquet, new officers were elected for the ensuing year. Ralph Cowgill was chosen as president. Edward Leach was elected first vice-president; Earl Newbry, second vice-president; Frank Van Dyke, third vice-president, and Harry G. Moore, secretary and treasurer. Retiring officers were Don Newbury, president; Ralph Cowgill, first vice-president; Ed Leach, second vice-president; third vice-president, Earl Newbry. Mr. Moore succeeded himself.

An interesting discourse on Republicanism was presented by O. H. Bengtson, secretary of the Junior Republican league, wherein he told of the dominating factors of Republicanism in American government since the party was organized in 1856 on foundations laid by Abraham Lincoln. Since that time the party has held reins of the government, with the exception of 17 years, and was credited for the great advances made by the United States.

The history of the Junior Republican league was reviewed by William McAllister, local attorney.

Veterans Present.

It was not so long ago when Civil War veterans attended Lincoln banquets in good-sized numbers, but this year only two, J. C. Woods and Polk Hull, both of Medford, were present. They were given a tribute by the assemblage for which a few words of thanks were returned by Mr. Hull. At past banquets, Lincoln's Gettysburg address was invariably given by George Washington Noble, veteran of Ashland, who took a great pride in repeating the immortal words. Mr. Noble passed away in January. Youth took his place. Dolph Janes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Janes, gave the address in a creditable manner.

Resolutions were passed last evening honoring the memory of Mr. Noble, Hall Hoss, late secretary of state, and Edward Briggs, well known Ashland attorney, whose death occurred this month.

Heirloom Presented.

Just before her recent death, Mrs. Margaret Taylor Canon of this city made a request that an interesting sofa pillow, showing a picture of the log house in Ripon, Wis., where her father and 54 others met February 28, 1854, to take first steps to organize the Republican party, be presented to the Lincoln club. This meeting led to the actual organization of the Republican party at Madison, Wis., February 12, 1856. The presentation was fittingly made by Attorney Frank Van Dyke, and will be kept by the club with other relics and pictures concerning Lincoln and the Republican party. A resolution of thanks was passed by the club.

Despite a weakened physical condition, brought on by lengthy illness, Judge William Gladstone Steel reviewed the organization of the local club, recalling how he had organized a similar club in Portland just before coming to Medford, where he met the late Bert Anderson, who quickly carried out Judge Steel's thought in the establishment of the present club.

Regrets Read.

Letters expressing regrets at their inability to attend this banquet and complimenting Republicans of southern Oregon for the high type of Lincoln day program they arrange were received from: John Carkin who officially represented the club at the Lincoln banquet in Portland last night; Carl G. Washburne and Leslie M. Scott, highway commissioners; Dr. E. B. Stewart of Roseburg; Lamar Tooze, general chairman of the Multnomah Lincoln club banquet; Fred Kiddle, president of the Oregon senate; C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter; C. J. Buck, regional forester of Portland; Wm. Lynch of the Bureau of Public Roads of Portland; Phil Metschan, one of the Republican "war horses" of Oregon; Frank Jenkins, editor of the Klamath News and Herald; Guy Cordon, district attorney of Douglas county; Floyd J. Cook of Portland, formerly of Medford, who presented some time ago a beautiful oil painting of Abraham Lincoln to the Lincoln club; George Neuner, former United States district attorney; John McNary and James Alger Fee, U. S. circuit judges; Major-General G. A. White, Salem; Jack Day, ex-U. S. Marshal, Portland; Attorney Frank Lonergan; Paul Kelty, editor Oregonian; Mrs. Isaac Lee Patterson, Harry L. Corbett of Portland, State Treasurer Rufus Holman of Salem, and Earl Snell, speaker of the house of representatives.

Many Visitors.

There were numerous visitors from out of town points and from Klamath Falls included T. R. Gillenwaters, district attorney; C. R. Williams, county commissioner, William Kuykendall, Walter Van Emmons, Art Leavitt, A. W. Priaulx, editor of Chiloquin Review and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Groesbeck. A good-sized delegation was also present from Ashland and other county points.

Other numbers of last evening's program included an interesting review of Lincoln's life by Ollie Depew of Ashland and solos by George Peckham, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Burgess. An invocation was given by Rev. W. R. Baird and music during the meal was played by Pifer's orchestra.

KLAMATH LOSES IN COURT MOVE FOR HOME RULE

gating authority under the home rule amendment, it was not contemplated that a state be created within a state."

Intention Is Known.

Relative to the home rule amendment itself, the opinion of Justice Belt held that "since the clear intention of the people in the adoption of the prohibition amendments has been ascertained, the court should function by giving effect to such intention and not invoke a somewhat shadowy rule of construction frowned upon by a coordinate branch of the government.

"Therefore, having reached the conclusion that article XI, section 2 of the constitution, relative to the control and regulation of alcoholic beverages by municipalities, was repealed and that it was not revived by repeal of the prohibition amendments, we might well conclude our consideration of this phase of the case."

In emphasizing the criminal right of the state to supercede the home rule amendment pertaining to the delegation of rights to municipalities is expressed in the provision that such rights are 'subject to the constitution and criminal laws of the state of Oregon.'"

The opinion held with Judge L. G. Lewelling virtually throughout.

Lucky Strike presents the Metropolitan Opera Company

Saturday at 1:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over Red and Blue Networks of NBC, Lucky Strike will broadcast the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York in the complete Opera, "Faust".

In making Lucky Strike, we actually discard most of the tobacco plant—because we select only the center leaves—and for these center leaves farmers are paid a higher price. We do not use the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Nor the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality—tough, coarse and always sandy. But these center leaves are the mildest leaves, silky, smooth, tender. And so only these center leaves are used in making Luckies the fully packed cigarette—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. The tobacco doesn't spill out. That's why Luckies draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth . . . And then, too—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

NOT the top leaves—they're under-developed—they are harsh!

NOT the bottom leaves—they're inferior in quality—coarse and always sandy!
