MEDFORD M'GRAW NO KIN OF JOHN

The story was started a number of years ago, when George Putnam was editor of the Mail Tribune, and it was all in jest. But when John Joseph McGraw, ex-chief of the Giants died Sunday, many Medford people thought that Newton L. McGraw of North Central, had lost a brother.

When the "Little Napoleon" of baseball was at the height of his career George Putnam wrote a story about him and added at the bottom that he was a brother of the local McGraw, then an operator for the Postal Telegraph. The rumor met with McGraw's approval and it was not denied. Yesterday a number of his friends were still believers in the story.
