Pioneer Daughter to Be Laid to Rest in Jacksonville Cemetery—Veterans to Take Part in Rites

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Applegate Sargent, who died yesterday at her home in Jacksonville, will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Perl Funeral Home. Death came to Mrs. Sargent following a short illness.

She was born in Douglas county, Ore., April 28, 1852, the daughter of pioneers who came to the territory in 1843 by covered wagon train from the east. Mrs. Sargent had resided in Jacksonville for over the past 20 years and was the widow of Col. H. H. Sargent, who answered the last summons 19 years ago, following an active military life, which had taken him to distant parts of the world.

She was married August 11, 1868 to Col. Sargent, who was just graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point. He was a second lieutenant at that time. The newly married couple was stationed at Old Fort Klamath, near Klamath Falls, after which Colonel and Mrs. Sargent left for the University of Illinois, where he was detailed as instructor in military science. Up until that time, she had never been out of Oregon.

At the end of a year her husband rejoined his regiment at Fort Bidwell in northern California, and at that place Mrs. Sargent first learned to know real army life. In all, she spent 32 years with the army, following the flag with Col. Sargent from the Pacific coast to the New England coast and from Cuba to the Philippine Islands—providing a life filled with thrilling and interesting experiences.

Mrs. Sargent made her first long horseback ride when her husband was transferred to Fort Walla Walla, Wash., entailing a journey of 500 miles. She made the entire trip by horseback, consuming three weeks traveling time. From Washington she went to Arizona, where she spent four years, and learned to know the state exceptionally well in spending time at different army posts. She spent some time in Colorado, New Mexico and other southwestern states.

When the Spanish-American war began, Col. Sargent was transferred

YREKA SLAYER TO DIE ON GALLOWES IS COURT ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—(AP)—George Hall, who directed one of the strangest kidnappings the west has seen, must die on the gallows for the slaying of a policeman.

A year ago Hall was captured at Yreka after he had kidnaped a customs inspector at Seattle Heights, Wash., had trussed and gagged him and stuffed him in the rear compartment of an automobile, and then had fled with him through Washington and Oregon to the vicinity of the Oregon-California line, where the officer was handcuffed to a tree.

A traffic policeman and a deputy sheriff were shot to death by Hall, and the latter was wounded when a posse closed in on him at Yreka after a few years later. He was the author of numerous military books, which received national recognition. Mrs. Sargent also wrote, with the book "Following the Flag," the diary of a soldier's wife, the best known locally. She also composed poetry which was widely read.

She leaves one foster son, Warren Lynch, Millbrae, Calif., a sister, Mrs. M. L. Alford of Medford, and a brother, Captain O. C. Applegate, well known Indian fighter in Klamath county. The body will be interred in the Jacksonville cemetery.

World War veterans and Spanish-American war veterans will take part in the services. Mrs. Sargent was an honorary member of the local Col. H. H. Sargent Spanish-American War veterans' post.

to Georgia, from which state Mrs. Sargent left with her husband for Santiago de Cuba September 12, 1898. There were only two other women on board who chose to follow the fortunes of their husbands. A year was spent in Cuba and in 1899, she sailed with Col. Sargent for the Philippine Islands. They returned to the United States in 1901 and they remained in the states until 1909 when a second voyage took them back to the Philippine islands again. A year later Col. and Mrs. Sargent returned to the United States and found their way to southern Oregon. They established residence in Medford, where they resided four years, adjusting themselves to civil life. At the end of that time, they located at the present home in Jacksonville.

When America entered the war with Germany, Col. Sargent again took up military life and for a time, was stationed in Washington, D. C., with the war plans division of the general staff in the war college. Mrs. Sargent attempted to enter duty as a cadet nurse, but was rejected because of age. During the time of the World War, they resided in Washington, D. C., returning again to Jacksonville at its close. Col. Sargent died there a few years later. He was the author of numerous military books, which received national recognition. Mrs. Sargent also wrote, with the book "Following the Flag," the diary of a soldier's wife, the best known locally. She also composed poetry which was widely read.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP)—A search for Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, lone-sought Oklahoma bad man, was intensified today on the positive identification by a Wilshire boulevard clothing store of a letter one of a trio who robbed him of $155 worth of clothing and money on February 19.

The identification, made by S. J. Cowan, came after he had seen Ed Davis, reputed associate of Floyd, and John Richards, at police headquarters here. Davis and Richards were captured earlier in the week in a police raid on an apartment house.

Davis quickly denied he knew anything about Floyd or his whereabouts and he also denied assertions that he had been one of the gang that killed five men last year in a machine-gun attack upon four federal officers and their prisoner, Frank Nash, notorious convict, at the Kansas City union station.
