AVY TRASK NEAL, PIONEER, PASSES

Avy Trask Neal passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Burchfield, of the Central Point district, Sunday afternoon, after a short illness. Mrs. Neal was born November 27, 1859, at Tillamook, Ore., and came to southern Oregon some years ago. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Trask, were the first white settlers in Tillamook county. Trask river in that county is named after them.

Six children survive, two daughters, Mrs. E. W. Burchfield of Medford; Mrs. J. T. Cooper of Sumner, Wash.; four sons, C. H. and A. G. Neal of Corvallis, Ore.; H. O. of Portland, and H. J. of Yakima, Wash.; also 13 grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. Her husband, C. R. Neal, passed away at Forest, Ore., August 3, 1917.

Funeral services will be held at the Peril funeral home Wednesday at 2 p. m. Rev. J. M. Johnson of Central Point officiating. Interment will take place in the Jacksonville cemetery.

Jessie M. Cook Rites Tuesday

DOUBLE BILL AT STUDIO TOMORROW

"Two Against the World," starring Constance Bennett, which is said to be one of the most realistic and dramatic pictures ever presented, heads the double bill at the Studio tomorrow. The other picture is, "Blind Adventure, a hectic humorous romance.

Solon Candidate

MARSHFIELD, March 5.—(AP)—Another candidate for congress stepped before the Oregon voters over the week-end, as State Senator John D. Goss of Coos and Curry counties made his formal declaration as a candidate for the democratic nomination as United States representative from the first district.

Goss selected Saturday's meeting of the Coos county central democratic committee as the time for his announcement.

BACK SORE and LAME?

Mrs. Elmira Comerford of 27 S. E. Clay St., Portland, Ore., said: "My kidneys were not functioning right, disturbed my rest at night. I had a pain in the small of my back and morning my back would be lame and sore. I would get dizzy spells too. Dr. Pierce's Anemic Tablets regulated my kidneys and relieved me of the dizzy spells and the pain in my back."

REAMES PRAISES ROOSEVELT'S NEW DEAL AT BANQUET

"Putting the 'New Deal' into operation has been a tremendous task, a labor that was conceived in the knowledge that 100 per cent accomplishment could be effected perhaps only by a miracle. But so important has been the 'New Deal's' stimulus in making the country go forward after its economic stagnation, that it succeeds at all it will still be one of the most important achievements in American history."

"In this manner A. E. Reames of Medford told several hundred Democrats celebrating the anniversary of Roosevelt's inauguration and start of the 'New Deal' administration, at the Multnomah hotel Saturday night, of the tremendous importance of the administration's fight to recover the national equilibrium."

The report of the event in the Portland Journal today continues as follows: "Principal speaker at the banquet, which had the secondary purpose of welcoming new Democrats to that party's fold, Reames contrasted conditions at the start of the Roosevelt administration with those of the present. He told of early 1933's closed banks, 12,000,000 unemployed, of organization serving notice that something had to be done, of money drawn out of the channels of trade by stock market operations and by private interests."

"Into this chaotic condition, Reames said, President Roosevelt injected the spirit of the general welfare clause of the constitution which predicated its purpose upon the promotion of the general welfare of all the people."

"As a result the nation is undergoing a transfusion that is renewing its spirit and giving it fresh vigor," he said. "B. F. Irvine, editor of the Journal, introduced by Mayor Carson, further eulogized Roosevelt with a comparison of the nation's present leader and President Lincoln. Both had the interests of the common people at heart, he pointed out. He also extended a welcome to the new Democrats."

"Robert Dean, president of the Oregon Society of Democratic Engineers, sponsors of the anniversary dinner, introduced W. T. Williams, toastmaster."

Mr. and Mrs. Reames returned by train from the Rose city this morning.

Jungle Film Now Appearing Hunt's Craterian Screen

Once again the cameras have gone into the jungle, this time on the Malay Peninsula, and under the able direction of Clyde E. Elliott is fashioned a story of a wild and man-eating tiger who is pursued to the death. This is "Devil Tiger," playing at the Craterian theater until tomorrow night.

The inevitable battles for the supremacy of the jungle and the survival of the fittest are carefully caught by the cameras, and with considerable effect.

There is every reason to suppose that the jungle setting and the fights of the inhabitants are authentic motion pictures. Certainly they make for entertainment, however much the same type of material has been shown before on the screen. A lion and a tiger having it out; a bear and a cowboy; an amusing scene of a monkey in a curiosity-impelled engagement with two giant crabs, and most unusual of all, a strange and rather harrowing scene in which a giant python drops from a tree around the neck of a powerful water buffalo.

Despite frantic, desperate attempts to shake off its tormentor, the horned beast is slowly strangled to death. No review of the current Craterian show would be complete without a few words about the Our Gang comedy. Little Spanky, who has always been more or less the hub of action, this time proceeds to take the picture, wrap it up, and walk off with all honors. It's the best Gang comedy to be made yet.

Rialto Star

Edmund Lowe is seen as the Hollywood director who creates a new screen personality in "Let's Fall in Love," coming to the Rialto theater tomorrow. The picture also serves to introduce, curiously enough, a new screen personality in Ann Sothern, who successfully combines a rare beauty with a decided flair for light comedy, to say nothing of her possessing a beautiful lyric soprano voice, which is heard in two song numbers.

FOUNTAIN MOVING PLAN IS OPPOSED BY CLUB WOMEN

A delegation of women, representing several Medford clubs, called upon Mayor E. M. Wilson this morning to voice objections to the proposed removal of the fountain in the city park for erection of a memorial to the late C. W. Palm.

The women, appearing before the mayor, were invited to confer with the city council today, and it is understood the matter will be presented at the regular meeting of the city days tomorrow night.

The memorial, according to plans recently presented the city council, is to be erected by Mrs. Palm in memory of her husband, and is to be a thing of beauty, an accomplished architect having been engaged to draw the plans.

CORA EDITH BOYER FUNERAL TUESDAY

Funeral services for Cora Edith Boyer will be held at the Peril funeral home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Temporary entombment will be in the Medford Memorial mausoleum.

INCREASE WAGES SHORTEN HOURS, INDUSTRY TOLD

"We can not tolerate actions which are clearly monopolistic, which wink at unfair trade practices, which fail to give to labor free choice of their representatives of which are otherwise hostile to public interest."

Industry Congratulated. The President congratulated industry on its understanding of the recovery program's problems.

He described himself "a little amused and perhaps at times a little saddened" by writers and speakers who proclaim the administration has committed the country to communism or fascism and dictatorship.

His speech contained also one direct answer to criticism: "There are some people, of course, who do not think things through; as for example, the man who complained in one of yesterday morning's papers that criticism was held to be unpatriotic."

"Let me put the case as clearly that even this type will understand. If we admit that the government has a specific problem to solve and undertakes to do it in a specific way, the critic is unpatriotic who contents himself with loudly proclaiming that that way, that method is no good; that it won't work; that it is wrong to do this. This critic contributes nothing—he is not constructive; he is unpatriotic because he attempts to destroy without even suggesting a way to build up."

Constructive Criticism Patriotic. "On the other hand, the critic is patriotic whether he be a business man, a worker, a farmer or a politician if he says, I don't like the methods you are using to solve the problem; I believe it would be far better if we were to use the following alternate method, and thereupon outlines for the benefit of his neighbor and his government a helpful proposal."

Then, he added, the "average American is doing splendid service by coming back at the capacious critic and saying to him, 'Well, old man, and what do you suggest?'"

"One thing is very certain," he declared, "we are not going back either to the old conditions or to old methods."

Bankers Praise. In conclusion, the President told of a telegram from Francis M. Law, president of the American Bankers' association, which said the national banking structure was "sound and liquid." There is a definite call, said the message, "for a most sympathetic attitude toward legitimate credit."

Thereupon, Mr. Roosevelt departed from his prepared text to say: "If the banks come along, my friends, we'll have the three great elements in American life working together—industry, agriculture and banks, and then we can't stop."

The President was vigorously applauded at this point, as he had been repeatedly.

Overflow Halls Needed. Because the number of industrialists attending was so huge that two overflow halls had been pressed into service, the chief executive accompanied by Hugh S. Johnson, went from Constitution hall to the other gatherings to speak a word directly to those who had heard his address only through amplifiers.

"I am glad to greet you," the President said to his second audience. He added that he did not know whether his listeners had heard his address in the main assembly room, "but I'll tell you a secret. It is the longest speech I have made in all the past year. I said what I believe."

He expressed the belief that "these meetings in Washington where we can be frank and call each other by right names" would do much toward aiding recovery.
