

GRAPPLING FEAST AWAITS FANS AT ARMORY TONIGHT

Double Main Event to Pit Wolfe and Grimes; Kogut and Hanson—One Section Only Reserved Seats

Tonight's wrestling show is billed as a "double main event" card, and well it may be for there will be a pair of matches, either of which should be sufficient to lure a wrestling fan for many miles to witness. Les Wolfe and Les Grimes are slated to mix in one half of the show and the popular Texan, Wolfe, who has built up a great following here by his clean sportsmanship and clever wrestling, has been working out in Medford all week in preparation for the Australian, Grimes. This pair of grapplers will be evenly matched with Wolfe pitting his rolling scissors against Grimes' body scissors-arm hold. Grimes gave a good account of himself in a previous match here and if he succeeds in taking Wolfe tonight local fans will have a new idol.

In the other half of the card Jack Kogut, chunky Toronto, Ontario, man, will take on one of the most colorful grip and grapple artists on the coast—Charlie Hanson of Seattle. Hanson is fast, aggressive and tough and knows all the holds in the book. On the other hand, Kogut will depend mostly on his Sonnenberg tackle, at which ungulate sport he is a past master. Kogut launches his tackle with lightning speed and, due to his closely knit physique, can hit an opponent like a pile driver. Unless all signs fail, this match is liable to steal the show.

Promoter Mack Lillard has arranged for additional seats in the downstairs portion of the armory and, with the exception of one section reserved for late comers and those who prefer to buy their tickets early, the entire house will be thrown open to the fans at one price, flat arrivals getting their choice of seats.

GOLF PROS DIG UP NEW IRRITATION POOR DUB

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Just as though it wasn't bad enough to carry through life the burden of a slice or a hook no one can cure, golfers will be exposed from here on to the fundamental principles and mechanical laws of what's wrong with them, with a little geometry, the science of medicine, engineering and psychology thrown in.

It's all in a communique issued today by George R. Jacobus, president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, who has decided that the "PPML" should be to golf what the NRA, OWA, PACA, PWA, HOLA, etc. are to the recovery program, and what AWOL used to be to the army.

Briefly, which is impossible, all members of the PGA will receive the results of an analysis of the fundamentals of golf swings, as decided upon with the help of the above mentioned sciences.

Perhaps the ordinary golfer who takes lessons, doesn't realize, but "the arc of the swing must be identical each and every time in order for the club face to strike the center of the ball."

"A further illustration is the indisputable principle that the horizontal diameter of the arc of the swing must be in line with the direction of play at the moment of impact."

Then there are such things as "swinging the club in a proper oblique plane," and "maintaining the proper swing radius."

First, the entire program will be in the hands of a governing board termed the "board of control," which will be responsible for the final drafting of the "formula for recognizing and presenting the fundamental principles and mechanical laws of the golf swing."

Jacobus will head this board, "supported and counseled by the president of the U. S. G. A., Herbert Jacobs. The remainder of the board members will be men recognized nationally as leaders in the golfing world and authorities on teaching the game."

But the organization only starts there. Each section of the PGA will have a separate board, headed by the president and sectional PGA champion, plus five other members. Then there will be a national examining board of 15, all golf instructors, picked for their ability to convey the PPML of the game, as well as to interpret and analyze same.

This board must include one doctor of medicine, one of psychology and an engineer, the physician for advice on anatomy, the psychologist for the mental effects of the instruction, the engineer for advice on mechanics.

The object is to attain greater teaching success, discover the nearest perfect style for the greatest number, and give golfers a clear understanding of the game.

CARLSON COMING FOR LIFE SAVING CAMPAIGN

Ralph E. Carlson, first aid representative, will arrive here tomorrow to make arrangements for a life-saving campaign in Medford. He will be at the Red Cross offices in the county courthouse Friday and Saturday, and all interested persons are invited to interview him there.

These warm spring days have already brought thoughts of swimming into the minds of many local people, and it is considered none too early to start plans for a life-saving class.

BURGER POLISHES SUBSTITUTE QUINT FOR FRIDAY CLASH

The Medford high school basketball squad will battle Ashland high tomorrow night at the senior high school gym, in a game that will decide definitely, or give the Burger-meisters another chance at the southern Oregon conference district title. If Ashland wins, they will have a clear title; if Medford wins, a third game on a neutral floor will be played.

The regular squad was wrecked by the state board allowing a protest from Ashland on a barn roof painting charge. Eight first string players were suspended. Technically Ashland was right, but even Ashland players and fans now complain the action was slightly hasty and that they do not relish going to the state tournament branded as "fluke district champions." The Ashland team has recovered from illness and injuries that worried them when the game was first postponed.

W. H. Heneges of Portland, recommended by metropolitan sport writers and school heads, will referee the contest instead of Harry Leeding, sport writer, first selected. Leeding had a previous engagement to referee an eastern Oregon game.

Intensive drill has been featured by Coach Darwin K. Burger, in an effort to whip his basketball reserves into shape. Max Gallinsky, guard, and Tommy White, forward, are all that remains of the first squad, and he has finished out the squad with second string men, including Harold Grove, Ettinger, Sam Van Dyke and members of the second squad. Grove and Ettinger have length and speed, and Van Dyke is a promising player.

KRUSE FLATTENS COX WITH FEET

PORTLAND, Ore., March 8.—(AP)—A dropkick to the chest flattened Tex Cox, 220, Lodi, Cal., and gave Bob Kruse of Oswego the third and deciding fall here last night in their wrestling match.

Kruse, 210, took a fall with a reverse wristlock and Cox evened with a body press. Kruse braced on the ropes and kicked Cox on the chest when Referee Chet Wiles was pulling him backward by the hair to free Kruse from hair pulling and kneeling.

A three-round draw resulted when neither Charlie Hansen, 215, Seattle, nor Marvin Westenberg, 220, Tacoma, gained a fall.

Al Karasick, 200, Portland, and Jack Kogut, 208, Montreal, divided falls in a three-round bout announced as a one-fall match. Karasick persuaded Referee Wiles that the bout should continue after Kogut took the first fall.

Another victory was turned in by Don Wagner, 225, Corvallis, when he used a body press to gain a fall from Bobby Evans, 218, Long Island, N. Y.

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

"The last will and testament of Tom Bevins"—Judith dimly heard the words by which her former employer made her the heiress to five million dollars, gave her control of his far-flung enterprises, and threw on her slim shoulders a cruel burden.

Her hand held Tom Bevins' last request, private instructions for administering his affairs. Judith knew it meant strife, heartbreak and perhaps an end to the romance with Norman Dale. For somehow, Judith sensed that her husband would not be at her side in the bitter finish-fight with the Bevins family, a widow and daughter grasping for a dead man's dollars and willing to let his ideals crumble to dust.

Around this situation, JEANNE BOWMAN has written a dramatic story of the girl who was willing to sacrifice home, husband and friends, risk disgrace and failure—because she was loyal to a trust.
