ROGUE RIVER ROAD ADVOCATES PLAN RENEWED EFFORT

PORTLAND, March 26.—(AP)—Despite a decision by federal authorities against a federal highway down the Rogue river from Grants Pass to Gold Beach, a new petition asking for the road will be circulated over the entire Pacific coast and every effort will be made by southern Oregon groups to have the project approved. George Hay Debarry, roads committee chairman for the Gold Beach chamber of commerce, announced when he arrived here Sunday to confer with Portland chamber of commerce executives.

"Southern Oregon must have that road," he said. "We are going to circulate another petition and present it again to the bureau of public roads. We had 10,000 names on the first petition and we will have more on this one." Much depends on this road with its 69 miles of canyon. With millions of tourists coming west to see the San Francisco bridges and Bonneville dam, we must have that road because it offers one of the greatest scenic wonders of the nation.

Debarry said he will use his own funds to travel up and down the coast seeking signatures to the petition.

"Bolero" Role Is Perfect for Raft

Paralleling the career of the famous dancer Maurice "Bolero", playing at the Craterian theatre, has George Raft in his most colorful screen role. This story of a man's unquenchable faith in himself and his ambitions continuously centers attention on Raft. Action and dialogue are effectively counterbalanced with the musical score, a distinct asset in interpreting the story mood. Settings are lavish and striking.

Sally Rand's fun dance is one of the highlights of the picture. Raft's role, fitting him to a T and in line with his own experiences, has him convinced that he is destined to be the world's greatest dancer. There is a semi-comic amateur night opening when he is practically hooked off the stage. Then with a succession of partners, whom he loves as a medium of furthering his ambitions, discarding them when they fail to be useful.

Raft is a beer garden attraction with Gloria Shea. In gaudy pre-war Paris, a newcomer, Frances Drake is the loving partner. Then comes Carole Lombard with whom he really falls in love. She wants the job as a means of landing a rich husband. Comes London with Lombard, and fan-dancing Sally Rand is the next one lured into Raft's attractive web. Then back to Paris, the sensational Bolero in Raft's own night club and a finale of love. The ending of the picture, with Sally Rand having gone the way of all flesh and Miss Lombard again as Raft's partner, bangs through to a climactic finish.

PIONEERS GUESTS AT MEDFORD C-C FORUM LUNCHEON

The most precious gift that Oregon can give the nation today is that spirit of the pioneer. Here is the proudest heritage of any state, that blazes in the field of blue. For she won her place not through the clash of arms or economic pursuits, but through a love of home, of motherhood and fatherhood.

Pioneer Women Landed The fight, which ended in the statehood of Oregon, Professor Vining further honored the pioneer mother, was that "fought in the heart of a woman, who wouldn't surrender, but carried on."

"It is that spirit, which Oregon will celebrate this year at her Diamond Jubilee in Medford and Jacksonville." The struggle for men and women of today is one for leisure and an intelligent philosophy of life, Professor Vining stated, challenging those, who carry on to keep clean the record established by their forefathers.

Reames Introduces Guests The pioneers, who received cordial and hospitable in honor of the occasion, were introduced by Attorney Reames, who also honored several, who were unable to be present, among them Mrs. Kate Hoffman of Jacksonville, Henry Vincent and B. F. Irvine, editor of the Portland Journal. A message was sent to the latter, addressing him as "the Sage of Jackass Creek," voicing a special invitation to himself and Mrs. Irvine to attend the Diamond Jubilee here.

Other guests introduced by Mr. Reames, one of southern Oregon's best known pioneer sons, were: W. S. Bolger, president of the Medford chamber of commerce; E. C. "Jerry" Jerome, chairman of the jubilee; Major Clare H. Armstrong of the Civilian Conservation corps; Mrs. T. W. Miles, president of the Medford Garden club, responsible for the beautiful decorations; Mayor E. M. Wilson and Judge H. D. Norton. Mr. Reames also drank a toast to "Fight" Schultz of Jacksonville.

The splendid luncheon, served at the hotel, was personally supervised by P. G. Denson, manager of the hotel, and every courtesy possible was extended the pioneers.

At the dedication of the cedar, at which Professor Vining presided, photographs of the pioneers were taken by J. Verne Shangle and motion pictures by Horace Bromley of the California region Power company, to be shown later in the Copco News Reel.

SALEM, March 26.—(AP)—Frederick S. Wilhelm, Republican of Portland, today filed his candidacy with the secretary of state for senator from the joint Multnomah, Clackamas and Columbia county district, the position now held by Joe E. Dunne.
