NEW FREEDOM IN MEN'S APPAREL OBSERVED BY FAMOUS STYLIST

Duncan Paige Discusses Spring Styles Men's apparel today allows more freedom in taste and is designed for more freedom of action than has been the case within a generation or more.

Whether you prefer double-breasted or single-breasted styles, you can now indulge in the jaunty appearance given by patch pockets. This style treatment is no longer confined to summer apparel—the new, deeper patch pockets are styled to look particularly well with plain or neat effects in either unfinished or rough fabrics.

The newest trousers taper sharply to the bottom and the plaits are deeper. Sleeves, too, are tapered which helps to achieve an air of naturalness and ease. The cash flap pocket and Franklin stitching are to be seen on the coats created by some of the better makers.

There's good news for the man who has wished for the return of three-button coats. It's back in a style that the young man who wants distinction will approve. Most men will welcome the return of colorfulness and rough fabrics to the realm of style. Their advent will be a relief from the sameness of worsteds so long in vogue.

Phoenix PHOENIX, March 30.—(Special)—Thursday the Ladies' Missionary society of the Community church held its regular monthly meeting. Letters from Miss Forsythe, Oregon missionary in China, were read. Plans were made for an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. John Gammill in April, at which time they will commence the reading of their new study book.

LINDBERGH'S FIRST AIR TUTOR FOUND BLIND, PENNILESS

Ira O. Biffle Critically Ill of Heart Disease in Chicago Hospital — Made $100,000 and Spent It All

By SAM KNOTT (United Press Staff Correspondent) CHICAGO, March 30.—(UP)—A bit of human driftwood in the Cook county hospital was discovered today to be Ira O. Biffle, the man who taught Charles A. Lindbergh how to fly.

Biffle, 48, is almost penniless, virtually blind and critically ill of heart disease. In a public ward, he lies on a cot between a negro youth and a white boy who groans frequently. He was found there by David Henke, president of the Air Pilots' association, and showed when the name of Lindbergh was mentioned that he could smile despite his misfortunes.

That Biffle is the man who gave Lindbergh his wings is verified in Lindbergh's own book, "We," in which the "colony states: "I arrived at Lincoln on the first of April. On April 9, 1923, I had my first flight. A passenger—also my first instructor in the same plane a few days later under I. O. Biffle, who was known at the Nebraska Aircraft corporation as the most "hard-boiled" instructor the army had during the war."

Biffle was an expert pilot before the war. He was one of the first to make a solo flight. He had taught more men how to fly than any other man now living. After many years of flying, he acquired a recreation hall, earned $100,000, spent it, and now is virtually destitute. Yet he could smile today when he talks of his life.

"I remember him," he said, "I met him when I was instructor in 1922. He brought me a check for $400 from his mother. He was a queer looking kid—had only a leather gaiter, khaki pants, a shirt and cap—only one suit of underwear. "I got him so he could solo. He was a darned good student. He had nerve, was quick—intelligent—above the average—didn't prove it later!"

Biffle, smiling, turned his head from side to side. His eyes were open yet he admitted that he could not see. His sentences were chopped to pieces by his own labored breathing and the groans of the white boy who lay near him. "About the time he got so he could solo, he ran out of funds," the veteran continued. "So he hung around—jumped out of planes with parachutes—did other stunts. Finally he got his dad—I guess it was—to buy him an old army plane. Then he messed around with exhibition stunts."

Biffle finished his story with this simple, yet perhaps one of the greatest tributes to Lindbergh: "I liked him—he was a good student."

FIVE FIREBUGS SENT TO PRISON

TOLEDO, Ore., March 30.—(UP)—Sentence of five persons to penitentiary terms today had broken an asserted arson gang which had operated in Oregon and Lincoln counties for eight years, setting eight fires amounting to $10,500 in insurance. A seven-year sentence was meter O. L. Holgate, said to have been leader of the gang. Andrew Sutton, Ben Linsley, Martin Byerly and Mrs. Emma Steenson were sentenced to four years.

Sutton and Byerly received additional seven-year terms on morals charges. Mrs. Steenson was paroled to District Attorney L. G. English.

MAX BAER'S PICTURE BARRED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Germany, March 29.—(AP)—The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture, "The Prisoner and the Lady," was barred from Germany today after playing for two weeks. With a simple "yes" the firm expert for the ministry propaganda settled the reason for the banning of the film. He was asked: "Is the film barred because Max Baer (who plays the lead) is a Jew?" The official snapped out: "Ja."

SALEM, March 30.—(AP)—Governor Julius L. Meier has appointed C. M. Crandall of Vale, as district attorney of Malheur county to succeed Hugh L. Biggs, who resigned. Biggs was recently appointed deputy U. S. district attorney of the Oregon districts.

SALEM, Ore., March 30.—(AP)—Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle said today he had no knowledge that George Neuner, attorney for the state liquor commission, had requested an opinion as to the legality of the restrictive nature of the beer and wine privilege tax. The tax law became effective March 9, to be collected from December 30. Protests had been made on payment of the tax prior to the time the law went into effect. Van Winkle said this morning he had received such a request from the commission, but had referred them to their own attorney.

Eden Precinct

EDEN PRECINCT, March 30.—(Special)—Work is being done on the grading and draining of the highway between Phoenix and Talent. Mr. and Mrs. Arlet Short returned home to Phoenix Wednesday after spending several months in the Klamath country. Mr. Short has been trapping for furs the past winter. Mrs. Donna Grafias is much improved. Al Bell brought his brother, Jeff, over in his car to the Carey home for a brief visit Monday. Uncle Jeff is 92 and has been quite feeble recently. Miss Elva Gaster spent Thursday as guest of Mrs. Noah Chandler. Mrs. Sula Dean is reported improving slowly but is not yet out of bed. Mr. and Mrs. George Ohlman of Medford were at the Walter Gormer home south of Phoenix Tuesday. Al Bell has moved from Phoenix to a small place opposite the Ever Shady auto park. Mrs. Luella Reese, mother of Orval Reese, is quite ill at her home in Ashland. Many who delayed the planting of early gardens will not be able to put in the seed for some time now, as the ground will be too wet to work. Special services of song and a program will be observed at the Phoenix Presbyterian church next Sunday. Mr. Alvord and son are building a new fence in front of their home on the highway south of Phoenix. Walter Allen is making improvements on the old home place. He intends to tear down some of the old buildings and construct a new garage and her house. Mrs. Mildred Oeborg, nee Ward, who has been in Phoenix with her mother, who is ill, returned home to the north last Thursday. Mrs. J. B. Webster was calling on Mrs. Donna Grafias at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Parry Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Irene Wells of Talent was a business visitor in Medford Thursday.

Phoenix

PHOENIX, March 30.—(Special)—Thursday the Ladies' Missionary society of the Community church held its regular monthly meeting. Letters from Miss Forsythe, Oregon missionary in China, were read. Plans were made for an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. John Gammill in April, at which time they will commence the reading of their new study book. Attendance at the Community church here Sunday morning was large and appreciable for the message brought by Dr. Walter Van Hays of Portland, who is educational leader of the Presbyterian board for the Pacific coast. Mrs. George Drake was happily surprised Wednesday when a group of relatives and friends gathered at her home in honor of her birthday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Eiden Corthell of Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Yost and Roger Clayton and Lois Yost; Mr. and Mrs. Deuzer and Marshall Lee; Roy and Howard Deuzer; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Gaster and Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Sheets. The evening was spent playing cards.
