

Streets of Shanghai for New World Fair

Chinese Village for New World's Fair at Chicago. This is an artist's conception of the "Streets of Shanghai," a gaily-colored reproduction of a section of the oriental port, to be built on the new beach Midway of A Century of Progress, 1934, which opens May 26. It will feature Chinese theaters and music, and will have typical Chinese restaurants and shops. Thousands of lanterns will be used for illumination at night.

JOHNSON MEETS WITH CRITICS OF THE NRA

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, is shown at left addressing those whom he invited to Washington to air their grievances against the organization that has a blue eagle for its symbol. Before the voice of a single critic was heard Johnson unfolded a 12-point program for revising existing codes. Shown at right at the hearing are Leon Henderson (left), newly appointed director of NRA planning and research, and Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, who has been named head of a board to represent the small business man. ARMY AIR MAIL PLANE CRASH KILLS PILOT

Here is the wreckage of an army bombing plane near Jerome, Ida., following the crash which killed Lt. James Y. Eastham of March Field, Cal. The plane narrowly missed the Barrymore meeting house at the left. Eastham, who was burned to death, was flying between Salt Lake City and Seattle in a trial run in connection with the war department's preparations to fly the mail. (Associated Press Photo)

Building Starts for New Fair Opening May 26

Full Speed Ahead on World's Fair Construction. Workmen are busy throughout the grounds of Chicago's new World's Fair, tearing down old buildings and putting up new ones for the opening, May 26. Left: Erecting the first steel on the 900-foot Ford building, to be the largest single exhibit on the grounds. Right: This skeleton was all that remained of the old Spoor Spectacular or Thrill House. It is coming down to make way for a new Century of Progress bus terminal.

HOUSE HAS BEEN IN THREE STATES

Although two brothers and a sister were born in the log cabin (right) they were born in different states. The house has never been moved, but when George White (shown in picture) was born it was part of Oregon territory; Charles White was born several years later after it had become Idaho territory and when the sister, Mrs. Lillian Rosbach, was born the cabin stood in Montana territory. It now stands at Old Hell Gate, near Missoula, Mont. (Associated Press Photo)

BROWN AT SENATE MAIL INQUIRY

DEMURE MARY MUM ON DIVORCE

Mary Pickford, looking pretty tiny in this unusual picture, is interviewed by a host of reporters on board a train as she arrived in New York. But she refused to talk about the divorce suit she filed against Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., just before she left Hollywood. "Good taste prevents," she explained. (Associated Press Photo)

TRAIN PLUNGES DOWN EMBANKMENT AT PITTSBURGH

At least nine were killed and more than 25 injured when an Akron-to-New York train jumped the tracks at Pittsburgh. The engine and tender ploughed down a 20-foot embankment and five steel cars riled up at the bottom. This picture shows two of the overturned cars with wreckage in the background of a three-story building which was partly knocked down in the accident. (Associated Press Photo)

THE NEW QUEEN OF DOGDOM

Flornell Spicy Bit of Halleston, a female wire-haired fox terrier entered by the Halleston Kennels of Chappaqua, N. Y., was adjudged the best dog in the annual Westminster Kennel Club show in New York. The new queen of the dog world was imported from England last year by Stanley Halle. (Associated Press Photo)

LAST PRIVATE MAIL FLIGHT

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, wartime ace, set his big transport plane down at Newark, N. J., airport after completion of the final commercial flight before the army took over the airmail. His elapsed flying time from Los Angeles was 13 hours and five minutes. Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., claimed it was a record for a commercial flight. Rickenbacker (left) is shown taking the mail from his plane after arrival at Newark. (Associated Press Photo)
