

NO CONTRACTS TO LOCAL TEACHERS TILL TAX DECIDED

Board To Delay Action Until Sales Tax Decided And Financial Status Can Be Determined.

There will be no contracts signed with Medford school teachers for next year until after the primary election May 18, when the status of the sales tax in Oregon will be determined. It was announced Saturday, following reports from Ashland and Grants Pass that teaching staffs had been engaged for the new year in those two districts.

No other arrangements for the new school year will be made until after the election, it was also stated here. The board will then be in a position to know what the financial standing of the district will be.

During previous years, teachers for the coming year have been elected in or before April. The economic situation has been such this year that contracts for this term of school were signed only a short time ago, providing for the completion of the year, which was shortened by two weeks.

What the outlook for next year will be is still unknown to school officials and until the status of the sales tax is determined they will be unable to take any action providing for education of Medford children for another year.

GOLD OUTPUT IN KERBY AREA GOOD

E. P. Hughes of Sams Valley and Mr. Israel of Medford last week visited the Charles Fattig mine on Canyon creek near Kerby, and reported that a great deal of gold was being taken from that section, in a cement gravel formation. Mr. Hughes said yesterday that the stone was pounded up, and the nuggets taken from the broken pieces.

On Wednesday, Mr. Hughes said, within two hours after the men started to work, they were able to clean up nuggets valued at $21.30. Each of the four men now working there make an average of $10 a day, he said.

A tunnel, worked many years ago, has been continued, and much valuable rock is being taken out, Mr. Hughes said.

WOOL SALES LIGHT PRICE WEAKENED

(BOSTON, Mass., April 14.—(AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Sales of wool were very light during the past week. Scattered lots of various grades of fleece and territory wool were moved, but the aggregate volume of business continued to be limited. Prices weakened. The persistent quietness has influenced an increasing number of holders to accept bids that they were not inclined to consider a few weeks ago.

UNKNOWN SUICIDE FOUND BY BOY IN KLAMATH JC. AREA

Body Suspended From Tree—Believed Hitch Hiker—State Police Queried Last February—No Note, Few Possessions.

Hanging from the limb of a tree, about 250 yards from the Green-springs highway a mile and a half east of the Klamath Junction, the body of an unidentified man was found Saturday morning in an advanced state of decomposition, according to the report made by officers.

The gruesome discovery was made by H. R. Palmer, a farmer in that section, and his nine-year old son, who were going through the Tucker pasture about 9 a. m. en route to a nearby farm. They told Chief of Police Charles P. Talent of Ashland that they were picking flowers as they went along, and that the boy saw a coat hanging in a tree.

The boy was quoted as telling his father there must be woodcutters nearby, as a man's coat was hanging in the tree. Palmer investigated, and told his son "There's a coat there all right, but it's got something in it." He immediately notified the Ashland police.

Chief of Police Talent went to the place, and later Coroner Frank Peril, District Attorney George Codding, Sheriff Walter Oimscheid and state police were called.

Coroner Peril, who said that an inquest will be held in Ashland on Monday morning at 10:30, stated that the body had apparently been hanging there from three to six weeks. The man was between thirty and forty years of age, had light hair, and was wearing a navy blue coat, gray trousers, and a cap was lying on the ground beneath the body, state police reported. No papers of identification were found in his clothing, but in his pocket were a plug of tobacco and a bottle of pills.

State Police Patrolman Joe Folsom, who participated in the investigation said he believed the man was a hitch-hiker he had questioned the latter part of February or early in January, walking south on that highway. Folsom said the man's Roman nose, caused him to believe it was the same person.

The body was placed in charge of the deputy coroner in Ashland. State police found it impossible to take fingerprints in an effort to identify the man. Officers reported no indications of foul play, as the cause of his death.

ROSENBERG BROS. ADD NEW UNIT TO PACKING PLANT

Continuing the policy of conservative growth, noted here over a period of many years, the Rosenberg Brothers, having reached the limit of the capacity of their old packing house at the Bear Creek orchards, have started construction of a new unit to their present plant, it was announced yesterday.

The original packing house at the orchard was located in the interior 30 years ago. Thirteen years ago it was divided into three sections, with two sections removed and placed on the Southern Pacific tracks. Each year additional crops have been taken in by Rosenbergs for packing in this old shed, which necessitated the addition of sheds and lean-tos, to a point, where it was impossible to construct more additions.

The new unit will be 116 feet by 98 feet and will be added to the west side of the present plant. The Rosenbergs hope to make it one of the most efficient packing plants in the west. Straight line production will be employed, giving a total bin-length for each machine of about 90 feet. The plant will have a total capacity of about 800 boxes an hour or about 15 cars in a nine hour period. New packing improvements, conceived by Mr. Lowry and the Rosenbergs, will be introduced.

A new cold storage unit is also being constructed under ground at the plant, which will hold about 30 additional cars, thus giving a total of 115 cars cold storage capacity.

Discussing the new improvement yesterday, David Rosenberg said, "our growth has been slow, but we believe, substantial. Our present plant, we hope, will represent the most modern pear packing plant in the west. Always having greatly stressed and emphasized care in handling pears, we feel that our new plant is designed in every detail to handle those perishable fruits as nearly perfect as the very latest developments permit.

"I might say that this could be called an expansion program in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the planting of Bear Creek orchards, just 25 years younger than Oregon, whose birthday will be celebrated at the Diamond Jubilee this summer."
