

GIVE LIQUOR LAW THOROUGH TRIAL MAJORITY'S WISH

Oregon Act Got Off to Bad Start But Mistakes Being Gradually Ironed Out — Profit Ideas Revised

By VIRGIL PINKLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent.)
STATE HOUSE, SALEM, Ore.—(UP)—Little change in the basic construction of the Oregon liquor control act by the next legislature was forecast today, following reports received here from many parts of the state.

Most candidates for nomination in the May 18 primaries believe, and presumably their constituents, that the law should be given a fair trial. The act itself was off to a bad start as the result of some foolish blunders on the part of the commission and its administrator. These mistakes, gradually being eradicated, lost some public support.

Local Option Demand Weak.
Most observers, however, are agreed that a majority of Oregonians desire some type of state control. The demand for local option has not been strong except in a few isolated instances.

The entire state liquor control organization probably would have operated more smoothly had the commission waited 90 days after the act was passed before stores were opened.

Administrator George Sammis announced publicly that by February 10 approximately 17 stores and 82 agencies would be opened. He prophesied that during the first week's business 100,000 individual liquor permits would be sold at each.

No stores were operating by February 10, and many of the agencies are still to be opened. At the close of the first six weeks' business individual permits totaled less than 18,000, in contrast to the single week figure of 100,000 announced by Sammis.

Until the liquor commission allowed itself from the willing services of William Eising, state purchasing agent, harmful statements were made about store fixtures, including expensive showcases, potted plants and beautiful furniture.

Personnel Reduced.
Stores were opened with large personnel. In some stores four or five employees were hired and later the commission was forced to cut staffs in half. Some stores still are over-staffed.

Little cooperation was secured by the commission from law enforcement agencies before stores opened. Bootleggers continued to operate after the state went into the liquor business. Many retailers of liquor are still without licenses.

Estimates of $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 profit annually from operation of the act have proved too high. Apparently no one knows what profit, if any, will be made.

License Fees Far Short.
The commission has turned over approximately $400,000 to date to the state central relief committee to finance unemployment relief activities. The money was paid from license fees, estimated to yield $700,000 annually, a figure which also appears optimistic.

Well informed observers believe, however, that the act will still weather the coming legislative session, especially if a governor is elected who does not favor liquidation of the liquor commission.

There are large numbers of citizens who would prefer a return of prohibition rather than saloons and swinging doors if good state control cannot be achieved.

BENNETT'S WIFE DROPS BATTERY COMPLAINT

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Richard Bennett underwent a plastic surgery treatment a few hours after withdrawal of her battery complaint against her actor-husband. It was learned today.

She was taken to a Los Angeles hospital late yesterday, operated upon last night and was reported resting comfortably today. Attendants said she expected to leave the hospital in a few days. The exact nature of the treatment was not disclosed.

Discharge of the complaint, filing of which last week-end climaxed the Bennetts' marital difficulties, followed a conference between Mrs. Bennett and her parents.

MODEL GROCERY WILL BE SHOWN GROCERS SUNDAY

Independent retail grocers from the Rogue river district and from Klamath county have been invited to inspect the model grocery store which has been constructed at 412 Main street, next to the Roxy theater, in Medford, and also to hear the principles of the I. G. A. plan and the qualifications necessary for membership.

Mason, Ehrman & Company, wholesale food distributors in Oregon since 1888, with headquarters in Portland and branches in Klamath Falls and Medford, as well as points in Idaho and northern Oregon, are sponsoring the I. G. A. plan and have constructed the model store in order that the grocers of this community could see in operation an actual working model of a modern food market and to see the latest merchandising methods.

The I. G. A.—which means the Independent Grocers' Alliance of America, is not a chain, yet it is the largest group of owner-operated stores of its kind in the world.

The model store will be opened for the inspection of retail grocers only, at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, where the meeting will be held. S. A. Gibbs, local branch manager, will act as host to the many retailers at this meeting as well as the executives of the other branches of Mason, Ehrman & Company.

Mr. Gibbs said, when interviewed, "The thinking independent retail grocers of this section have been looking for some plan that will afford its members efficient administration, mass buying, store arrangement, field supervision, merchandising and advertising."

"For months we have been investigating various plans now in operation and after careful consideration determined upon the I. G. A. because it is in operation in thousands of stores in 44 states of the union and is the most complete plan in the United States today. We are expecting an enthusiastic turnout of retailers."

S. Mason Ehrman, president; Albert H. Wey, secretary-treasurer, as well as other executives from Mason, Ehrman & Company of Portland, are coming to Medford by airplane to greet the retailers of this section and attend the meeting.

SCIENTISTS 'PLAY' WITH TOY RIVER FOR WATER DATA

Solution of Problems in Water Supply and Irrigation Works at Boulder Dam Worked Out in Sand

By F. B. COLTON (Associated Press Staff Writer.)
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A small boy game played in earnest by scientists—building toy rivers in a sand-pile—is showing the way here to solution of problems connected with the water supply and irrigation works to be served by Boulder dam.

The toy river in this case is a miniature Colorado river, and the "sand pile" was shipped 2,000 miles direct from the Colorado's bed to Washington for scientific experiments at the bureau of standards' hydraulic laboratory under direction of H. N. Eaton and Dr. C. A. Wright.

Watch Eroding Process.
The miniature "Colorado," a few inches deep, runs through a wooden flume instead of between canyon walls, over an experimental "bed" of the Colorado river sand, to show scientists how the real river will behave after Boulder dam is completed.

Through glass windows in the sides of the flume the experimenters can watch the water in the actual process of eroding the sand in the "river bed." A gauge shows them the depth and contours of the eroded places. The eroded sand is washed into a trap where it can be measured to learn the amount of erosion and the river's sand-carrying capacity.

Need Advance Knowledge.
Advance knowledge is important because the water flowing over the new dam will be clear water, free of most of the silt it now carries. The mud will sink to the bottom while the water is standing behind the dam. It probably will be the first time in centuries that clear water has flowed through the lower Colorado river channel.

Engineers want to know whether this clear water will scour the bed and banks of the river below the dam much more than the present muddy water, already so saturated it can pick up little more sand.

PENNSYLVANIA PLANS BILL FOR STERILIZATION

Group Musters Support for Measure During 1935 Legislature — Penal and Welfare Officials Help

By ARTHUR F. GRANT (United Press Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Pa.—(UP)—Quietly but none the less thoroughly, sterilization advocates are mustering support throughout Pennsylvania for a sterilization measure to be introduced at the 1935 session of the state legislature.

Led by a group of Philadelphia and Delaware county physicians, the advocates are obtaining endorsements and promises of support for the measure from women's clubs, medical associations and civic groups.

Already more than a score of such endorsements have been obtained, the advocates claimed.

SILICA SOLD FOR LINING OF OVENS

GRANTS PASS, July 20.—(Sp.)—Another industry for the Grants Pass district has been started, according to J. R. Harvey, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

This is the mining of silica, a pure quartz rock that bears no metal value. Found in large quantities between Hugo and Merlin, a carload of this rock was shipped to Portland Thursday, the first to go from here in commercial quantities.

The rock was purchased by the Electric Foundry company of Portland, to be used in making linings for electric furnaces. The shipment was made by Jim Havens and his partners, Harvey said.

Heretofore, this rock was secured only at Monterey Bay, in California, and in Michigan.

BOOP GIRL SAYS PICTURE MAKERS STOLE HER STUFF

NEW YORK, April 20.—(UP)—Helen Kane, the "hoop-oop-a-doo" girl, has gone to court to demand a quarter of a million dollars because she charges her "booping" ideas have been pilfered by the movies.

Miss Kane is suing the Paramount Public corporation and Max Fleischler, who draws the animated cartoon of "Betty Boop" for the screen.

The defense today produced three girls who provide the "boops" for the sound tracks in the Betty Boop cartoons. The defendants contend that these girls—Mae Questel, Bonnie Poe and Margie Hines—are as much "hoop-oop-a-doo" girls as is Miss Kane.

"I started booping about 1930 on the radio and screen," Miss Kane said. "Later 20,000,000 persons knew me as the boop girl."

"Then came Betty Boop—a cartoon—and I lost my identity. The younger generation that loves boops hardly remembers my boops. They even call me Betty Boop, after the cartoon character."
