Starts Tuesday

While presenting clever, sophisticated humor, "Long Lost Father", wherein a father must reveal his shady past to the daughter he has neglected for twenty years to clear her of a crime. This is John Barrymore's starring vehicle, featuring Heide Chandlee and Donald Cook, at the Rialto theatre, starting tomorrow.

"Good Dame" Is Lively Comedy

With Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March co-starring, "Good Dame", at the Craterian theatre results in a breezy, fresh and well sustained comedy-drama. It is spiced with sparkling dialog and amusing situations which evoke constant laughter. Sylvia Sidney, fired from the chorus of a "turkey" musical show, visits a carnival and encounters Fredric March, wise-guy de luxe and "big shot" with the women of the world. The theft of her purse by March's abill brings the two together. They are both kicked off the carnival train by LaRue, "carnie" manager. When March tries to earn enough money to send her back home, they are arrested for peddling a window cleaning apparatus in an apartment house. — as the "wise-cracking" Coos Townsley — March has always walked out on all his dames from coast to coast. In this case he keeps on walking right into her arms. It's a different type of role for him, but he does it in great shape, and Miss Sidney indeed has been more effective as the wistful "good dame."

"Little Women" Warms the Heart

The dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's immortal story of a fine old American family in the '60s wins a high place in most anyone's "heart". Unfolded yesterday at the Studio theater, before an enthusiastic audience of little women and their mothers and grandmothers, along with little men and big men, the sweet fireside story of another age proved to be the entertainment that warms to be the entertainment that warms the heart and wins applause. The performance of Katharine Burnham as Jo, and that of 20 other leading artists in amazingly authenticated atmosphere, gives the whole production a sense of being the original book brought to life, with all its characters loving, sorrowing and rejoicing just as they do within the aged pages. Pendleton Warm. PENNLETON, April 23.—(P)—Sunday was the hottest day of the current season here. The maximum was 95 degrees.
