TALK ON CHINA IS ENJOYED AT ROTARIAN MEET

Lieutenant Robert H. Soule, headquarters adjutant for the Civilian Conservation Corps in Medford, delivered an interesting address on China at the weekly luncheon today of the Medford Rotary club. A number of lady Rotarians were also present to hear the splendid talk, arranged under the direction of C. D. Bean and George Henselman. Lieutenant Soule, who spent several years in China and other parts of the Orient with the American army and who was identified with intelligence activities in that section of the world, opened his talk with a description of China and explained the transportation and communication restrictions which have accounted for the provincialism of that great country. In the opinion of the speaker, the improvement of transportation facilities will eventually result in greater unity in China.

The history of the Chinese race and the tax burden that has always been imposed upon the peasant was next described by Lieutenant Soule. The unique tax situation is a problem for all nations engaged in business in China and has undoubtedly retarded imports into the interior provinces, according to the speaker.

The Chinese national government is more concerned with its own internal problems than the situation in Manchuria of the past two years, Soule said. Students of that country predict that Manchukuo will eventually return to Chinese supervision, due to the preponderance of Chinese population in the country now under Japanese mandate, although several hundred years will elapse before this is effected and China is sufficiently unified, in Lieutenant Soule's opinion.

The speaker concluded his interesting talk with a discussion of the Chinese language, of which he is a student. A comparison of Chinese and Japanese class distinction was also covered.
