ASK AMERICA TO SURRENDER WHEAT EXPORT QUOTAS

LONDON, May 5.—(P)—Indications that the United States may be forced to surrender a part of her wheat export quota to Argentina for the current year so as to save the international wheat agreement were apparent tonight with the approach of another conference of world experts.

Canada may be persuaded also to make substantial concessions to Argentina in the hope that those three countries and Australia may present an undivided front in the battle for price stability.

The largest wheat conference since the world export pact was signed last August will open here Monday. All 21 nations signatory to the agreement were invited to send delegates so that a final showdown may be had on an international minimum price scheme.

A draft of this project was sent to all governments at the conclusion of a recent similar parley in Rome.

Argentine representatives asked a larger export allotment at the Rome meeting on the grounds that a large crop would interfere with export and acreage limitation plans. In the August pact the following quotas, in millions of bushels, were set for the so-called "big four" producers: Canada 200, Argentina, 110, Australia, 105, and the United States 47.

American experts declared at Rome that Argentina should complete an acreage reduction plan before her quota is changed, but delegates already here for the coming conference described the Argentine situation as the most urgent on the agenda.

The Argentine quota problem is one that will have to be settled privately by the "big four."

CARNERA, BAER GO PUTS NEW LIFE IN BOX FIGHT RACKET

McLarnin-Ross Tilt Late in May Will Draw Big Gate—Racial Angle Big Factor in Both Ring Battles

By STUART CAMERON United Press Sports Editor NEW YORK, (UP)—Boxing, long the invalid member of the professional sports family, is promising a renaissance during the early summer. It's a familiar axiom that when the heavyweight division is interestingly active, the lesser fights profit also.

Signings and sealings of Primo Carnera and Max Baer for the heavyweight championship fight was completed only a few days when the New York Milk Fund folks came through with another natural, Jimmy McLarnin vs. Barney Ross, for the welterweight title.

Big Gate Lots can happen between now and June 14 when Carnera defends his crown against Baer, but all present indications are for the biggest turnout and the biggest gate since the golden era of Rickard, Dempsey and Tunney.

It's probable that Carnera dislikes to realize it, but his distinct unpopularity is an asset. He's the Sharky of the present day and, because of this, attracts fans who hope to see one hung upon his chin. Actually, Carnera is a pretty good guy. He isn't half as slow of wit as he's pointed out, and he's amiable. Surprisingly enough, he's tremendously sensitive, too. Sensitive about those enormous feet, for one thing, and sensitive about his lack of popularity, in general.

Against him is a devil-may-care, swashbuckling challenger, who has captured a large section of the public's imagination. Baer, too, has a following which would like to see his ears pinned back, but these are in the minority and he'll be the hero and Carnera the villain of the summer heavyweight show.

The McLarnin-Ross Bout McLarnin and Ross, slated to meet May 28, are due for a great gate, too. Early estimates are for a gross of $200,000, and it wouldn't be surprising to see that amount realized. Such a gate would bring handsome profits to all concerned. Pop Foster, McLarnin's wily manager, is supposed to have tapped the Milk Funders for 40 per cent. Ross, because he holds the lightweight title, will come in for 15 or 20 per cent. But even with these husky cuts there will be plenty to pay for promotion and leave a net balance to buy bottles of milk for the city's poor.

YALE CREW WINS ALL HONORS OVER PENN ON HARLEM

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—Down through the refuse of the muddy Harlem, three Yale eights rowed to victory today in the annual Blackwell Cup regatta, first major crew tourney of the season, and for six of the eight years of its history the medium of warning to the rest of the crew world that Ed Leader continues to build magnificent boatloads at New Haven.

A crowd estimated at close to 80,000 perched on apartment house tops and on the river banks to see the Yale varsity another Pennsylvania by 1 1/2 lengths in the varsity and junior varsity races, and half a length in the 150-pound dash.

Pennsylvania won the freshman sprint by a length and a quarter, routing the Ell clean sweep. Columbia was a weak last in all four events, ranging from half a length in the 150-pound Henley sprint to six lengths in the varsity pull of a mile and three-quarters.

The big Yale varsity averaging 187 pounds in weight, sped down the river as if out for a practice row. Johnny Jackson, veteran stroke, was content to wheel the boys smoothly along a few feet back of the Penn eight through the first mile, then he lifted the stroke, and without a sign of stress picked up the winning length and half in the last three-quarters. The time was 8:30 1-5, fairly good considering the strain of dodging floating berry crates and barrels.

Rusty Gallon's Penn eights rowed with precision and form that indicates the pushover period has ended for the Quakers, the Columbia eights were the weakest to appear on the river in years.

Room-Base VERSUS Wheel-Base

Note wide entrance and roomy front seat of Ford V-8

WHEEL-BASE This is the outside distance from hub of front wheel to hub of rear wheel. ROOM-BASE The inside body room of the car—the distance from the dash to back of rear seat.

Actual photograph showing roomy rear seat of Ford V-8

The wheel-base of a car is not always an indication of its body room. Cars of similar wheel-base may vary considerably in the amount of interior space available for the comfort of passengers.

That's the difference between wheel-base and room-base. One is the outside distance from the front hub to the rear hub. The other is what you get inside the car—the room from the dash to the back of the rear seat.

back of the rear seat. Take the New Ford V-8, for instance. Its wheel-base is 112 inches—a good generous dimension.

The roominess of the body is even greater than you would expect in a car of this size. The reason is plain and easy to see. But it is not something you usually associate with body room. It's the V-8 engine.

In this design, the eight cylinders are built in two banks of four each and are opposite each other in the shape of a V. This compact construction means that they take up only half as much space in the hood as they would if they were strung out in a long straight line. Less space for the engine naturally means that more of the car's length can be used for body room in front and rear compartments.

There need be no doubt about the roominess of this car. It's something you can check-up definitely and exactly. Your own tape measure will show you how much more leg room, seat room and head room you get in the New Ford V-8.

HERO BRAKEMAN SAVES TINY TOT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 5.—(AP)—A brakeman leaped out from the fender on the front end of a locomotive today and snatched 8-year-old Ellen Broyles from a trestle, saving her life.

The brakeman, S. D. Plessey, was riding on the fender of a Santa Fe railroad switch engine when he saw the girl attempting to flee along the trestle to safety. Realizing she could not run to the end of the bridge before the train struck her, he reached far out and grabbed her as the locomotive sped by. She was unhurt.
