

CRAWLEY TAKES PLACE OF MUNN FOR BRITISHERS

Illness of Veteran Golfer Gives Youth Chance On Walker Team—Goodman, Little Trim Egan, Marston

BY GAYLE TALBOT (Associated Press Sports Writer.)
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 9.—(P)—Leonard Crawley, the only British golfer to win a singles engagement in the last Walker Cup matches, today was substituted for Lionel Munn in the lineup against the United States, Friday and Saturday.

Crawley, who had incurred the displeasure of the Royal and Ancient's august officials, acquiesced in through the back door when Munn became ill and was forced to withdraw.

Asks Outlets's Consent.

When the Hon. Michael Scott learned that Munn would be unable to play, he immediately hurried out on the course to find Captain Francis Outlet of the American side, and get permission to substitute the young Londoner for the 47-year-old veteran from Kent.

It was unanimously agreed that Crawley adds considerable strength to the British team.

He was a finalist in the closed English amateur recently and would have been a natural choice for the team but for the fact he was indiscreet enough to voice the opinion that St. Andrews "is one of the poorest courses in England."

The American team, which is being quoted at 2 to 1 favorite, did its last serious practicing this morning, with a big gallery in attendance.

Egan, Marston Lose.

Johnny Goodman and Lawson Little continued to pair brilliantly to score to 6 to 4 victory over Chandler Egan and Max Marston, the veteran combination, in a Scotch foursome. They now have defeated all their teammates in that style of play.

The youngsters had a medal score of 72, despite a six at the road hole and a two-foot putt missed by Goodman at the 18th.

They have proved themselves such a strong combination that there has arisen the question as to whether it might have been better to split them and strengthen the other two combinations.

Captain Outlet and George T. Dunlap, Jr., convinced observers they were the second best pair as they trimmed Gus Moreland and Jack Westland, 3 and 2, with a medal of 74.

The American players now plan to take a rest until the matches start Friday.

CHIEF LITTLE WOLF, Navajo Indian, who took the wrestling war-path in Nevada, will attempt to hang the scalp of Bunny Martin, Oklahoma grappler, at his belt Thursday night when the pair meet on the army mat. Little Wolf is one of the most colorful muscle mangers in the business, and punctuates his flopping an opponent with a warwhoop.

Britain's Walker Team Sees Best Chance for Taking Famous Trophy

By VIRGIL PINKLEY, United Press Staff Correspondent.
SALEM, Ore., May 9.—(UP)—British golfdom confidently believes its 1934 Walker Cup team has the finest chance of any team yet selected to win the famous international trophy.

Since the first match in 1923 Johnny Bull has attempted unsuccessfully to defeat the United States. The Walker cup is the only international golf competition which Britain has failed to win.

The British side is led by the Hon. Michael Scott, 55, the oldest golfer ever to have won a national title. He won the British amateur last year. The team which will be host to America at St. Andrews next Friday and Saturday is a blend of age and youth. The average age of the team is 34, while that of the American team is just under 30.

G. H. Bentley, Eric Fiddian, J. McLean and S. McKinlay are the youngsters selected by the Royal and Ancient. They are in their 20's. Roger Wethered and Cyril J. H. Tolley are in their 30's and Tony Torrance, a Scot, is 43.

The last two members of the British team selected, Eric McRuvie and Lionel Munn, are 24 and 47 respectively.

On the side, Wethered, Tolley and Torrance form the veteran trio. All three are big names in British amateur golf. They have played in a majority of Walker cup competitions.

Tolley hits one of the longest tee shots in golf today. He is an in-and-out-er. Temperament is his biggest obstacle. He carried Bobby Jones to the 19th in the 1930 British amateur.

In 1930 Tolley and Wethered defeated George Voigt and George von Elm, 2 up, in the only foursome won by the British.

Wethered is solely a week-end golfer. He plays little competitive golf now, but has a splendid temperament and is an ideal foursome partner for Tolley. Wethered relies on his iron and short game to minimize occasional slips on the tee. He was the man whom Jones defeated, 7 to 6, to win the British amateur that year in the Walker cup match.

Torrance was captain of the 1932 British Walker cup team. In 1930 he administered a convincing defeat to Francis Outlet, captain of the American side.

Eric Fiddian is a strapping big player who reminds one somewhat of Don Moe, dashing Portland collegian of the 1930 meeting. He tends to hit wild shots with his woods.

Bentley is perhaps the finest all-around player of the younger Britons unless it be McRuvie, former Irish and Scotch champion. McLean, 23, is a Glasgow journalist.

Scott is playing a better game at present than when he lived in Melbourne 30 years ago and won the Australian open and amateur championships. He has been turning in scores of 73 to 78 during the past two weeks at St. Andrews. He is a slow player, taking meticulous care on each stroke. During a close, hard-fought match he is less likely to break than his opponent.

The British team has been practicing as a unit longer for the coming match than any previous one held on the home field. The side has popular support as the best available team. Most of the players know the old course and are used to weather conditions, which may prove upsetting to the Americans.

WALKER WINS NOD OVER ROSENBLOOM

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 9.—(AP)—The boxing accounts of two docile ringmasters, Mickey Walker and Maxie Rosenbloom, stood balanced today.

Walker, the elder, won a 10-round decision over the world's lightweight champion last night in a non-title fight which saw half the 10,000 seats in the Olympic auditorium empty.

The Rumson, N. J., bulldog built up a wide lead in the first five rounds as Rosenbloom puffed ineffectively at the former world's welter and middleweight champion.

In the fifth Walker brought blood from Rosenbloom's left eye as the result of a light cut. Whereupon he forgot about the injured optic, as Stapsie-Maxie took the play for a change, cuffing his opponent around the ring.

SENATORS TAKE OPENING CLASH FROM SERAPHS

(By the Associated Press.)
Encouraged by success in the first encounter, Sacramento continues its efforts tonight to be the first team in the Pacific Coast league this season to wrest a series from the pace-setting Los Angeles outfit.

Profiting by wild pitching produced by Roy Henshaw and Louis Garland, the Senators last night collected six runs on only two hits in an eighth inning rally and defeated the Angels, 7 to 5.

The second place San Francisco Missions forged a game closer to the league leaders, winning a hard-fought battle with Portland, 2 to 1. Hal Turpin, on the mound for Portland, turned in some excellent hurling to hold the Missions to the low score despite five errors committed by his team mates. Turpin allowed the Missions six hits while Portland collected seven off of John Babich.

The San Francisco Seals had little trouble in defeating Oakland, 9 to 2, continuing in third place, only half a game behind their home town rivals.

The Hollywood Stars won the season's first night game at Los Angeles from Seattle, 3 to 1. Jim Denmore dealt only five hits to the visitors, and struck out nine of them.
