

JUBILEE GAINING WIDE PUBLICITY IN COAST REGION

Detailed plans for an energetic publicity campaign throughout the length of the Pacific coast and the nation were discussed yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of Oregon's Diamond Jubilee celebration headquarters in the Sparta building.

A number of coast newspapers have carried and have agreed to carry half and full page spreads concerning the jubilee, giving further assurance the celebration will be known to thousands.

GLEEMEN'S PICTURES DRAWING THROUG TO WINDOW AT CHAMBER

Wonderful to behold is the display of male pulchritude that now graces the window of the Chamber of Commerce building.

All day yesterday mulling through the window of the Chamber of Commerce building, the chamber officials have sanctioned the exhibition of the portraits of the Medford Gleemen.

Three runaways, two fist fights and a case of hysterics has been the toll of the showing to date, and it is feared by the city authorities that the hour of the display will have to be curtailed.

Evangelists Will Observe Mothers Day In Service

The Duff Irish trio, now conducting evangelistic services in the First Methodist church, at the Sunday morning service, will emphasize the importance of homes established on Christian principles and the supreme value of a Christian motherhood.

The meeting at the church tonight will be divided into two parts. As the boys and girls can come on Friday evening, they will have a special half-hour at the beginning of the service.

Powered with General Petroleum Mobilgas, the new Airflow Chrysler goes over the top of the Corbett Street hill, one of Portland's steepest grades, purring like a kitten.

Smiling W. E. Fox, service manager for the Taroia Motor Car Company, is at the wheel and he has two of the world's best reasons for smiling—a car at which every one gazes with admiration and General Petroleum Mobilgas with Tetraethyl in the tank, the tortoise tested gasoline that helps any car to negotiate the sharpest hill crest with ease and smoothness.

Take a Bow "Staff"—It's Mickey Mouse! To the Editor and Staff: Congratulations! Pulitzer committee sure know their onions!

Happy days! "PINTO" COLVIG. Disney Studios, Hollywood, Calif., May 11. Squash the Squash Bug. To the Editor: While I have not noticed many requests from your readers for information concerning the combatting of many garden pests, I do not feel that such a request would be out of place, and I believe that you will be doing many of your readers a service if you can and will print a sure-fire remedy for squash bugs.

Office Ashland Chief of Police. Ed Note: The county agent's office informs us the only sure cure for squash bugs is to first catch the bug and then hit it on the head with a brick. Sorry!

And From California! To the Editor: I was delighted to read in the San Francisco papers yesterday that you had been awarded the Pulitzer prize for outstanding editorials last year.

I read those editorials and felt a degree of personal pride in them at the time because I recognized their quality and regarded you as an old friend. I really felt that they were masterpieces at the time, but perhaps felt that some of my enthusiasm might be inspired by "old-home-town" loyalties.

Now with national recognition I have a higher regard for my own good judgment and the real urge to tell you that Pulitzer knows how to pick them. WM. H. CRAWFORD, Director Industrial Development, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Favors Sales Tax. To the Editor: I think it is about time for my splurge on the coming election. In fact, I am going to make two of them; and the first one is on the sales tax.

A great deal has been said on both sides and practically all phases of it has been covered, but the thing that gets me is that so many lies are circulated and believed about it. I think the sales tax bill is the simplest worded and plainest bill that could possibly be and anyone ought to be able to understand it. As I am able to size it up, those for and against this bill are about as follows: Those who own property and are facing the terrible tax problem are for it, and those who own no property and are not direct tax payers are against it because they do not want to shoulder any part of the burden, but are perfectly willing to take their share of the benefits and let the property owner pay for it.

Now I am going to tell you fellows one thing: The property owners are getting just about fed up on this idea of holding the sack any longer, every year some more new items are added to the tax budgets and most of them are things that the property owner does not want. They are put there by irresponsible non-taxpayers and we have to foot the bill. The tax burden has become so great that it is very near impossible for us to raise the cash money to pay it, and the drain of having to raise this cash is so great on any investment or industry that there is no longer any incentive to do anything; so consequently nothing is done and you fellows that are depending on jobs for a living are going without them and will continue to go without jobs until capital can see some ray of relief.

You must know that the only way that jobs can be provided is by the investment of capital and unless we all try to induce capital to invest, we will have the present conditions with us indefinitely, and none of us like that.

So vote for the sales tax. Shoulder part of the burden and give the poor tax-payer some ray of hope. Thank you. GEO. IVERSON. Medford, May 10.

We Hope So, Too To the Editor: I just wanted to be one of those to write a note of congratulation to your newspaper upon your well earned victory. You had courage, you stayed put, you won the reward. It is an unwritten law that only those who deserve it shall be rewarded. May the honor that has thus been conferred upon you be the basis for your future service. Very sincerely yours, JOE E. DUNNE. Portland, Ore., May 9.

Short By One Year To the Editor: Your issue of May 4 presents a picture of the well known C. C. Beekman bank brick building, built in Jackson Oregon Territory, in 1854, claiming that it was the first brick structure in Oregon that had been in constant use up to the present time.

Pardon me for saying that is an error, because there is a brick building in Portland which was built by William S. Ladd early in 1853, a one-story structure, with heavy iron doors, and occupied by a store. The announcement was made in a paper called The Oregonian in the following words: "Mr. Ladd has completed his new fire-proof brick store on Front street and moved back to his old stand."

Mr. Ladd is one of the go-ahead boys and is bound to succeed. Industry, close attention to business and being a clever fellow withal, have made him a host of friends. That building is on the west side of Front street, between Washington and Stark streets, and has been in constant use from date of construction up to the present time. Some years later Mr. Ladd added a second and third story; and in May, 1859, he organized the Ladd & Titton bank, in the second story, which came to be widely known in later years.

Humpty Dumpty surely was a problem after he fell from the wall. As a matter of fact reconstruction was impossible, in spite of the crew assigned the job. But sad to relate, a lot of conscientious wives are assuming a task almost as difficult with "bargain counter" coffee. Oh, how hard they work—trying to boil, drip or perk a good rich-flavored cup out of that brand that cost them a few cents less! If they only knew how many wonderful cups of coffee they could get from a pound of Hills Bros. Coffee. And if they only realized that the way to judge the economy of coffee is by the way they drink it—by the cup, not by the pound.
