POCKET EMERGENCY KIT

Tourists, hunters, prospectors, woodsmen, explorers, naturalists and others who go to out-of-the-way places should keep at hand some sort of emergency or first aid outfit, and as a rule the simplest and lightest the more useful such a kit will be.

Besides being vaccinated against smallpox, every traveler who visits other countries should be immunized against typhoid before he begins his journey. Every tourist and traveler should have with him some means of disinfecting questionable water for drinking. Various chlorin compounds are available for the purpose, such as halazone tablets or common chloride (chlorinated) of lime, or in an emergency a drop of tincture of iodine may be added to a pint of the water and shaken and allowed to stand 20 minutes, before one drinks any of the water.

Here are the items I think essential in the pocket first-aid kit: One ounce tincture of iodine; one ounce flexible collodion; one ounce aromatic spirit of ammonia; one ounce boric acid powder; two sealitts powders; 100 Phenolphthalein tablets; a dozen aspirin tablets; potassium permanganate crystals (if no aspirin); a dozen one-grain tablets; a tube of sterile petrolatum; a tube of O' Doe Salve; a pool of adhesive plaster; one or two sealed envelopes containing a card of sterile gauze; two-ounce carton or package of absorbent cotton; two or three bandages.

Use the iodine to swab immediately every cut, abrasion or trifling or serious wound. It bites hard, but only for a moment. If there is no bleeding, immediately seal over the wound with a coating of flexible collodion. If there is oozing, carefully apply a strip or two of adhesive plaster, without touching the wound, and draw the edges together with the plaster. If it is a considerable cut or abrasion, cover the wound with a pad of sterile gauze and a layer of cotton and bandage.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY BY O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 12.—Purely personal piffle: Miss out of ten will bet you Louise Dresser is Theodore Dreiser's sister. Well, she isn't. The garage man in our town was named Raleigh Cecil. No matter how big the meal, I can always finish off some salt water taffy.

Douglas Gilbert reports the grandest of all after-dinner speeches. Wilton Lackey, called upon for an address at the Laddies and gentlemen. My address is 130 West 44th street. And at dawn. Best play title in years: "Waterloo Bridge." I pay my income taxes in one lump to avoid the quarterly piffle. And am I broke!

When a policeman walks toward me, my throat dries up like a rain drop on the Sahara. When the most people for whom I have an aversion, I find them dandy. Add sneeze names: Theophil Secechewicz, of Salem, Mass. The only person who ever told me he thought he was going to pass away and did was Roy K. Moulton.

Broadway's greatest and most beloved sentimentalist is Gene Buck. My wife wrote her mother a ten page letter every day for 16 years. Mayor Gaynor is the only man in high public office I ever saw in the subway. Montague said long ago what any writer you name is trying to say today.

I can buy more deak things I never use. A fuddy-duddy! Walter Huston gives the most realistic performance of his time. Frank Buck has snoped so long in the jungles he has a tip-toe walk. The silliest I've felt for some time was while trying to help pull a stalled car out of the snow, a crowd of bus smart sales parked nearby and the Volvo boat. And I love to talk to stage-struck waitresses in Hollywood.

You'd never think John Golden whose plays are so delightfully sugary, has the most caustic tongue among producers. I'm still in love with Marie Dressler. And if I were 21, Will Rogers would be popping down stairs every evening at 10 to turn out the parlor light. His daughter Mary is a dream. I can burst out laughing any time, anywhere, at a graffe. Gene Markey is probably the nearest to America's modern fashion plate.

Some publisher out to tease a book about Mark Twain out of H. H. Rogers. And Lindbergh should some day reveal the alibi to prove he didn't fly from his pedestal. Dirty work at the cross roads, my master! Rainy, blowy nights I like to roll in a leisurely bath, dine off a tray in a freshly sheeted bed and go for a mystery shocker. As much fun as anyone can have. What pretty eyes Margaret Moore has! When a boy I used to day dream of growing up to look like Senator Warren Harding, come back home with the bands playing, and speak from the rear platform of the train. Girl twins are fascinating, but boy twins goofy to me. The best known dramatic critic outside of New York is Chicago's Ashton Stevens. There is magnificent scene of pantomime timing about that bow-legged-awed-off runt in Borrah Mineevich's harmonica band. Norma Shearer needs a strong film to make her fans forget that rip-tide thing.

Some historians say the oldest habitable house in the United States stands in St. Augustine, Fla., having been built by the early Spanish settlers. In Ohio, March employment gained 4.5 per cent over February, reports to Standard Statistics company indicate. The internal revenue department of North Carolina estimates that state's tobacco crop last season was worth $90,530,000.

The editorial council of the Religious Press has been invited to hold its 1935 meeting in Richmond, Va. Revised plans for the Rio Grande valley drainage project call for about 200 miles of drains to cost $2,000,000. Lightning has been known to injure tomato plants for some distance around where it struck in a tomato patch.

Logs of quebracho (ax-breaker) wood in Paraguay are so hard they remain sound after lying 25 years in the forest. City schools in the United States employ 18,600 fewer teachers now than in 1931, according to estimates by the federal office of education. A survey of Washington university undergraduate reading tastes disclosed a preference for mystery and detective stories.

Alabama claims to have originated Bird day, which several states observe March 2 for teaching school children to observe wild life. The National Conference of Jews and Christians sponsors "Brotherhood day" to bring Jews, Roman Catholics and Protestants into harmonious support of the country's best interests. The "Wren's Nest" home of Joel Chandler Harris, author of the "Uncle Remus" stories, has been converted into a public museum in Atlanta, Ga. Agricultural experts figure that $38,000,000 worth of farm products which Georgia could grow are being imported by that state annually.

KIDNAPERS INVADE ESTATE FOR VICTIM

The Arcadia estate of William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills, Cal., oil man and stock broker, from which he was abducted by armed men is shown above. The gunmen invaded the premises by using the ladder shown above to scale the wall. They bound Gettle and James P. Wolf, a guest, with neckties and adhesive tape. Wolf was left tied to a tree. CAPT. BARNWELL TO MINNESOTA FORT

Captain Charles H. Barnwell, Jr., 3rd Inf., executive officer at Medford district headquarters, CCC, has been ordered to Fort Snelling, Minn., for duty and will leave tomorrow for the east. Capt. B. McMahon, 7th Inf., will assume the position of executive officer, to be assisted by Captain M. Milton Foster, 10th FA. Previous to his replacing Captain Lewis T. Ross, C. E., as district executive officer, Captain Barnwell was in command of Camp Elk Creek at Trail.

OWL BANKRUPTCY HELD PLOT AIDED BY NEVADA JUDGE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP) The Owl Drug company bankruptcy, Special Investigator William Neblett told a senate judiciary subcommittee today, was a conspiracy to scale down the financial burdens of the company without interrupting its business to which Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross, of Nevada, lent his aid with knowledge of the facts.

The committee, headed by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), had appointed Neblett to make this investigation and report his findings to assist in determining what action the senate should take on the nomination of Judge Norcross for advancement to the ninth circuit court of appeals in San Francisco.

Neblett, a law partner of Senator McAdoo (D., Cal.), was attorney for the special senate committee on investigation of receiverships and bankruptcies, which first inquired into the Owl drug case at hearings in San Francisco last summer.

CALLISTER KEEPS EDUCATION POST

PORTLAND, Ore., May 12.—(AP)—Fred E. Callister of Albany, who has been named to an executive position with the federal intermediate credit bank of Spokane, has made no move to resign as member of the state board of education.

It was not learned if Callister's new position would permanently change his residence from the state and necessitate his resignation. Recently Callister declared he would not resign without first conferring with the governor. Governor Meier said Callister had mentioned nothing of the matter to him and still was a member of the board.

CCC PAINTED CURE FOR DELINQUENCY

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Raymond Moley, former assistant secretary of state, said today that the Civilian Conservation Corps has given the nation a solution for its juvenile delinquency problem.

"The most original and enlightening of President Roosevelt's activities," he said, addressing a gathering of educators, "was the CCC. There is a permanent place in the scheme of things by which 300,000 young men have been taken from the ranks of the people by the government to prepare them properly for life and society. This shows the way to fight this thing called delinquency."

TUGWELL LAUDS 'NEW DEAL' AIMS

OSBERLIN, O., May 12.—(AP)—Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, told the graduating class of Oberlin college tonight that the American people are engaged in "a war against misery, against poverty, against human stupidity."

He called the new deal "the first great national counter-offensive in that war against human misery" and declared "it is the essence of the new deal that its practitioners are honestly trying to find ways to establish the security and abundance to which our resources entitle Americans. And we ask for tolerance on the plea that we are preparing the way for the more expert work which you may do."

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Representative Byrnes, the democratic leader, said today he understood the commodity exchange regulation bill had been added to the "must" legislation for this session.

Communications

Do You Want Feh! "Economy"? To the Editor: I note in a recent article in a local weekly, that Henry Conger, one of the candidates for county judge, seems very positive that he could run the county on less money, that he would simply run it differently.

No doubt Mr. Conger has entirely overlooked the fact that on January 9, 1933, he appeared as spokesman for a committee before the county court and insisted on Jackson County incurring heavy expense for auditing work, not provided for in the budget and which proved to be entirely unnecessary and he further demanded at that time the endorsement and full support of the county commissioners in the policies of the then County Judge, E. H. Pehl, who certainly did not save any money for the taxpayers of Jackson County, but well-nigh wrecked the county and its finances in his months' administration.

Do we want that variety of economy? Yours very truly, RALPH BILLINGS, County Commissioner, Medford, May 11.

Give It a Trial To the Editor: I wish to express my approval of the sales tax the voters of Oregon will soon have the privilege of passing upon.

We are convinced that by it, the living expense of the proletariat would not be increased as some may fear. The manufacturer or merchant in arranging the price of goods takes into consideration the cost of raw material, help, interest, advertising and pay for his own labor. This last item must take care of his food, clothing and the taxes on his holdings. If a reduction is made in any of these expenses to him it will be reflected in the price he charges. The urgent necessity for trade will force this.

The sales tax may prove to many, who think they have not been contributing to the expense of state, that they have done so without being aware of it. This will doubtless cause them in the future to take their citizenship more seriously, at least enough so that they will stop, look and listen before they cross their ballots. This in our opinion, will be one of the great advantages in the adoption of the sales tax.

Considering our present dilemma and in view of the fact that the sales tax would automatically pass out in two years, it seems we should be good enough sports to give it a trial. I am supporting the sales tax, because if I am allowed food instead of just scenery, clothes, instead of fig leaves, and if I am permitted to use an automobile in conjunction with my wheelchair I am only too glad to help support a government that makes such standards of living possible. The sales tax would care for that in a just and equitable manner.
