

NATIONAL FOREST AREA PICTURED TO AID FIRE FINDERS

With the occupation of Pelican Butte lookout station today, field work on an intensive photographic project will be completed on the Rogue River National forest, according to local forest service officials.

The project, initiated on the forest during the field season of 1933, was originally due for completion last season but because of the enlarged building program resulting from Civilian Conservation Corps and NIRA activities, several new lookout stations had been added to the original working list.

Each lookout station on the forest, a total of forty odd stations comprising the entire lookout system on the local forest, is occupied for the purpose of securing a series of panoramic photographs showing the actual topography that the particular lookout observer commands.

In obtaining the photographs, an improved panoramic camera, designed and perfected by William B. Osborne of the forest service in Portland, is employed, unique in that an arc of 120 degrees is taken in one exposure, so that only three separate exposures are necessary to obtain the complete 360 degree circle of country that the station commands. Each photograph, five by thirteen inches in dimension, has every portion of topography shown on it referenced by angular values to correspond with the fire-finder readings used by the lookout observer.

The photographs find their chief use in forest fire detection. The lookout observer, district ranger, fireman, and forest supervisor are each furnished with photographic prints for the lookout stations required. Any forest fire reported from a lookout station can be immediately tied in visually to landmarks and topography by utilizing the fire-finder readings given by the reported lookout station. In this manner, the district ranger can more quickly secure prompt action, important in effective fire control, on the fire and control it while still small; the fireman, whose duty it is to "smoke-chase" the reported blaze, has with him the photographic location of the fire and can therefore save himself field travel in reaching the correct location in the minimum of time.

The photographs also have a secondary use. For each lookout station on the forest a visibility map, showing the actual country that the lookout sees, is prepared, utilizing the panoramic photographs. By obtaining the complete set of "seen-area" maps for the forest, a record of the composite coverage or percentage of national forest area seen by the existing lookout organization is available and any additional lookout station needed to cover a "blind-spot" in a hazardous area can be more scientifically placed with a view to actual needs.

The field battery of three panoramic cameras, in charge of Albert Arns of the forest service in Portland, is operated by the following experienced photographers: James D. Rittenhouse, Reino R. Sarin, and Robert M. Snyder.

BILL PRENTICE AND MISS BOYLE CAST AS SENIOR PLAY HEAVIES

(By John Koppen)

Taking the roles of the villains in the senior class play, "Take My Advice," Wednesday evening, will be Bill Prentice and Marguerite Boyle.

Prentice acts the part of Mr. Wargrim, a grim, unscrupulous and powerful man, who has been grinding the town of Eureka, the setting for the play, beneath his heel for 20 years. He is a man accustomed to ruling and dominating his fellowmen and is a person all the citizens of Eureka fear and hate.

Having been president of his sophomore class and president of the Order of the M. Prentice has shown himself to be well liked by his fellow students. He has also been a member of the Latin club and the Commercial club. He has taken part in different plays and skits put on by these organizations and has real dramatic ability.

Miss Boyle, taking the part of Marcia Wargrim, daughter of Mr. Wargrim, also portrays a person who likes to show her power. She is a handsome, haughty, aristocratic type of girl whose snobbish disposition is her outstanding character.

Miss Boyle has appeared in a number of plays put on by the Dramatic club and the Latin club, of which she is a member. She also has been active as a member of the Crater and Hi Times staffs, and has helped much towards the success of these publications.

The student advisor and cue mistress is Evelyn Leonard, who is greatly assisting in the production of the play.

SIMPLE MEAL OF HEALTHFUL FOOD SAFEWAYS IDEAL

"Give us meals that are inexpensive to purchase, simple to prepare, yet delightful to eat, and healthful, too."

That's what Mrs. America is saying these days, according to Mrs. Julia Lee Wright, who ought to know. Mrs. Wright is director of the Safeway Homemakers' bureau, into whose headquarters thousands of requests for meal information pour every week in the year from all parts of the country, and it is these requests and the general desires which they express which have dictated the planning of the bureau's course in "Kitchening," opening here at the Rio theatre on Tuesday, May 29 for a three-day session.

Now in its fourth year, the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau has achieved, in the cooking schools which bear the name "Kitchening," an enviable popular favor simply, believes Mrs. Wright, because the bureau has always followed the practice of keying its presentations to the desires and demands of the public.

"It would be simple enough," states Mrs. Wright, "to throw together a number of interesting recipes, present them well, and develop a successful series of schools. We believe, however, in doing more than that. We study our audiences, especially through inquiries received as a result of our regular radio broadcasts with which hundreds of thousands of western women are familiar, and through constant personal contact enjoyed by the thousands of Safeway stores. As a result, we are able to plan these 'Kitchening' courses so that they will meet public desires accurately."

That this has been accomplished consistently, Mrs. Wright points out, is shown by records of attendance. In 1933, for example, with an increase of less than 20 per cent in the number of schools held, "Kitchening" drew an attendance increase of 5 per cent, the 1933 schools being held before a total audience of more than 287,000 homemakers.

And this does not take into consideration, according to Mrs. Wright, the inability to find space of sufficient size to accommodate all comers has necessitated the turning away of women.

"In every city in which 'Kitchening' is held," Mrs. Wright states, "everything possible is done to combine maximum seating capacity with good visibility and good acoustic qualities. We believe that our message is so important that we leave no stone unturned in the provision of facilities, nevertheless, we find that we must constantly urge early arrival at each day's session in order to assure seats. While we are immensely flattered by the cordial reception 'Kitchening' has always received, we are none the less sorry that every housewife cannot see and hear it every day."

This year, "Kitchening," which has become famous as the outstanding cooking school in the nation, will be held in 17 western and mid-western states, and the anticipated attendance figure is well in excess of 300,000.

Bureau officials point out that each afternoon's program will start promptly at 2 o'clock, with doors opening at 1 o'clock.

Pair tonight and Wednesday, but cloudy Wednesday on coast; warmer east and south portions tonight; cooler Wednesday in west portion; gentle changeable wind offshore.

50 YEARS A MARTYR TO CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

Read this splendid letter from Mrs. Haynes:

"For 50 years I have been a martyr to constipation. Have tried every remedy under the sun.

"One day I read an account of some one who had been relieved by ALL-BRAN, but I thought 'What was the use of me trying anything more when all else had failed?'

"A while after, I read it again. That time I thought I would try it, it would do no harm anyway.

"I began with a small dish of four ALL-BRAN for breakfast, and wonderful to say, I never need to take any physic at all now. How I wish other poor sufferers from constipation could be persuaded to try it."—Mrs. Sarah Haynes, 138 Cedarwood Terrace, Rochester, N. Y.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. Also iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. It's so much safer than taking patent medicines! Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get this delicious ready-to-eat cereal from your grocer. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
