'FRISCO BOY GAINS FINAL ROUND WITH GARNETT'S DEFEAT

Scotchman Wades Through Classy Field With Sensational Golf — Unorthodox Form Gets Good Results

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 25.—(AP)—W. Lawson Little, San Francisco youth, today gained the final round of the British amateur golf championship by defeating Leslie Garnett of London, by one up at the 19th hole.

Little's opponent for the championship will be James Wallace, sensational unemployed Scottish carpenter, who eliminated George Terry Dunlap, Jr., American amateur champion, by 2 and 1, in the semi-finals.

Title Round Saturday.

The 36-hole championship round will be played tomorrow.

After turning all even, the square-shouldered Pacific coast star won the 12th to take the lead, but Garnett wiped out the deficit by winning the next hole. Little regained the lead at the 16th and the Englishman squared the match at the 18th.

Garnett sank a great 16-foot putt for his birdie three at the home hole. Little, who appeared to have the match won after chipping his second eight feet from the cup, sighted from his putt carefully. The ball held the line to the hole for half the distance and then curved away.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 25.—(AP)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., amateur champion of the United States, was eliminated today in the semi-final round of the British amateur golf championship by James Wallace, an unemployed carpenter. Wallace won by 2 and 1.

Dunlap became the fifth Walker cup player to fall before the hammering drives and brilliant putting of the Scottish youth, whose financial circumstances are so lean that he lives on a dole. The others were H. Chandler Egan, Cyril Tolley, Eric Piddian and Jack McLean.

Dunlap Early Leader.

Dunlap, who was beaten in the semi-finals of the 1933 championship by the Hon. Michael Scott, was out in 35—even par—to be one up. Wallace squared the match at the 10th and then shot a birdie at the 14th to take the lead for the first time. Wallace closed the match at the 17th with a birdie three, after Dunlap's 12-footer for a birdie rimmed the cup.

Wallace shot phenomenal golf on the last eight holes, among the hardest in Scotland. He played them in three under par.

Once Wallace took the lead at the 14th, Dunlap never really had a chance to recover. Wallace came close to sinking birdie threes on both the 15th and 16th.

The jobless carpenter closed the match dramatically at the 17th, sinking a sensational 15-foot putt for a birdie three. Dunlap's 12-foot putt for a three rimmed the cup.

The gallery of 10,000 broke ranks and cheered wildly as Dunlap rushed over to Wallace and shook his conqueror's hand.

The cards: Dunlap in 534 444 44x Wallace, in 434 434 43x

After his hair-raising first and second round recovery victories, Dunlap was regarded by British golf disciples as "a man of destiny." After being five down and with five holes to play, the slender American title holder finally nosed out G. P. Packenham Walsh on the 22nd hole in the first round. A. W. Bessant, of Detroit, carried him to the 18th in the second round. He also had a close call with Roger Wethered yesterday, finally winning again on the last hole.

Wife Means Job.

As one local character here put it, Wallace is playing in the championship because there are no roots to fix in Prestwick. He has been promised a job if he wins the title.

Dunlap—even par for the 17 holes the match lasted—had no apologies

VANDALS DEFEAT WEBFOOTS, 10-2

SEATTLE, Wash., May 25.—(AP)—Thanks to the work of the Idaho Vandals in taking two straight wins from the league-leading Oregon team, both Washington and Washington State college today were back in the race for the northern division baseball title.

The Vandals again set the Oregon outfit back at Moscow yesterday, 10 to 2, behind Spliers' four-hit pitching.

The Huskies won the other game played, beating the cellar Oregon State team here, 5 to 2, behind Rudy Enquist's tight pitching.

The Huskies and the Beavers meet again today, and then a four-game road trip against Washington State and Idaho ends the Washington season.

Oregon has won eight out of 13 games, while Washington and Washington State have each won five out of nine contests.

Age Declaration Fails To Daunt Women of Links

SEATTLE (AP)—Women golfers of Washington are willing to admit their ages.

Steps have been taken by the Washington State Women's Golf association to inaugurate a women's tournament for seniors. And much to the amazement of many of the members, 10 feminine players readily admitted they were 50 or more.

As one eligible explained it, the elderly women are proud of the fact that they still can shoot a good game at 50.

"We would rather the world did know our ages when we can still carry our clubs around after reaching the half-century mark," she said.

Plans are to hold the first tournament, a one-day affair, in conjunction with women's state meet at Bellingham next year.

to make for his round, which included three birdies.

"I was mighty sorry to lose," Dunlap said, "but if an American can't win the championship I hope Wallace does."

"He's a grand golfer and victory would mean much for him. When a man shoots the kind of golf Wallace did I don't feel disgraced in losing. He's one of the finest players I ever saw. Maybe his form is not entirely orthodox, but I'll tell the world it gets results."

ROGUES AND MILL NINE WILL RENEW FEUD ON SUNDAY

Jacksonville to Be Battlefield for Medford and Klamath Foes — Grants Pass Invades Klamath Falls

Games Sunday

Shaw-Bertram vs. Medford at Jacksonville.

Grants Pass at Ewauna.

Resumption of the feud which threatened to disrupt the Southern Oregon league will take place Sunday when Medford entertains Shaw-Bertram at Jacksonville in the first crucial game of the circuit.

The game is being played in Jacksonville because of preparations connected with the jubilee at the fair grounds here.

Manager Haight of the Medford Rogues has protested the game of last Sunday when Shaw-Bertram defeated the Rogues on the grounds that the umpiring was incompetent and partial to Shaw-Bertram. President Ninger of the Southern Oregon league is attempting to acquire affidavits on the claim that the officiating was as bad as Medford players state and, if obtained, will rule that the game be replayed.

Chief McLean will probably start on the mound for the Rogues with Dean Joy behind the bat. Shaw-Bertram will have Stanisha in the box and Eubanks or Cozetto back of the plate.

At Klamath Falls, Carlstrom will pitch for Ewauna with Bannas receiving, while Grants Pass will have Earhart on the mound and Droulette behind the platter.

Bad umpiring or not, Shaw-Bertram put on one of the best hitting shows of the year against Medford last Sunday, collecting 16 hits and as many runs off two Medford pitchers. Classed as the weakest batting team in the circuit, they unlocked vicious power and, coupled with some excellent pitching, raised themselves to the point where they will have to be carefully considered as potential pennant winners.

Medford and Grants Pass, tied for the league lead, still appear to be the teams to beat. Both have been getting good pitching with few exceptions and both have been hitting well.

Ewauna seemingly needs strengthening in the field, although their games have all been lost by very close scores. Carlstrom and Bannas are as good a battery as there is in the league, but errors in the pinch have proved the box company's downfall.

Grants Pass and Medford have both been drawing excellent crowds and Shaw-Bertram and Grants Pass played to a full stand at Klamath Falls two weeks ago.

However, Klamath Falls seems to be the weakest drawing city in the league while boasting the largest population, more than three times that of Grants Pass where they are packed every home game.

The lowly tumbledown (Russian thistle) and the goat-head, sometimes called cow-head burr, often regarded as a nuisance, are credited with preventing disastrous soil erosion on farms of the north Texas plains during the windy spring.

The lunch hour in midtown New York City finds hundreds of stenographers and shop girls thronging to Rockefeller Center to view the buildings and plaza with its fountains and statues.

BELCASTRO FOULS OUT TO HANSEN IN WILD MAT MIXUP

It was a three-way fracas, the main event at the Army last night, when Referee Jack Mitchell put a chiropractic headlock on Pete Belcastro, scrappy heatman from Sacramento, and got thrown out of the ring for it, as he attempted to give the deciding fall to Charlie Hansen, 210-pound Seattle grappler. Hansen got the high sign from the referee and took the match, two out of three falls, but Mitchell couldn't get back through the ropes past the belligerent Belcastro.

After taking the first fall in three minutes from the Seattle bad boy, and dropping the second in five, on a body slam, the 195-pound Belcastro came back in the third with elbows flying and gave Hansen a thorough going over before applying what the referee called a strangehold. Mitchell interfered, and the three mixed before Belcastro decided there were too many in the ring and went after Jack with everything he had.

To make matters worse, Mitchell tried to raise Hansen's hand for the deciding fall, and as a result got the full benefit of Pete's mat technique. Hansen was awarded the fall from the much bedraggled referee while he stood outside the ring and defended himself through the ropes from the still fighting Belcastro.

The crowd wanted to see the two boys mix some more, and Hansen stepped back into the ring to take on the Italian again, but Pete stalked away, thoroughly disgusted with referees and all their descendants.

Chief Little Wolf, 196-pound grappling redskin from Colorado, tussled to a draw with Louis Miller of San Francisco, in the 45-minute semi-final. The event was a colorful affair, with Miller furnishing most of the rough stuff, and the chief getting it on the chin. Little Wolf had no scruples against using towels, ropes or shoes against the Coloradoan, and added the touch of swatting the Indian whenever the referee wasn't looking. Louie, 181 pounds, took the first fall with a body press in 22 minutes, after twisting a towel around the Indian's neck and choking him into submission. Little Wolf came back with his famous "death lock," and took the second fall in 18 minutes, after the elusive Louie had broken once, with the help of the ropes.

With five minutes to go for the third fall, after an exhibition of boxing from both the boys, the scrap ended in a draw, with the ropes twisted around the redskin's neck. Roland Warren, grappling Copco engineer from Klamath Falls, was too much for Jack Morgan, 155-pound youngster from Portland, and took the 30-minute opener with a surt-board, after playing with the blond-haired boy for eight minutes.
