

HARBOR, RAILROAD DECLARED KEY IN AREA'S UPBUILDING

Vast Resources of Timber, Metal, Fruit, Cement Now Hampered by High Freight Army Engineers Are Told

Plans for the Crescent City harbor development were made yesterday afternoon before the army board of harbor engineers, Col. William F. Barden, chairman, by citizens of Jackson, Josephine and Del Norte, (Calif.) counties. The burden of their testimony was that water rates would bring industrial and resource development, now restricted by high freight rates. C. E. (Pop) Gates closed with an appeal, "Give us a harbor, any kind of harbor. If you can't give us a big one, give us a small one, but give us a harbor. Our destiny is in your hands."

Mabel R. Goodwin, president of the Crescent City business and Professional Women's club told the board, "All we ask is help for the three forgotten counties—Josephine, Douglas and Del Norte."

W. P. Ellis of Salem, rate expert, made the summation for the district and submitted a supplemental brief. He held the harbor and a railroad would open up a trade area extending as far east as Lakeview, provide an outlet for timber and give lower freight rates. Col. Barden questioned the feasibility of a railroad, and quoted from the colonel's report that another railroad would not materially effect the freight rates.

Ellis declared the adverse report of Lt. Col. Finch "was made with a too localized vision." He declared "this problem should be viewed from a national standpoint. It fits in with the administration plans for decentralization of production."

W. H. Muirhead, manager of the Beaver-Portland cement plant at Gold Hill, told the army board that freight rates now prevailing, gave California plants the edge, but a harbor, with water competition, would enable Oregon cement to meet "keen competition," and "enter Portland and Columbia river markets on the same basis."

Muirhead said if a harbor was established at Crescent City, his company could move their plant to their quarry at Wilderville, and use the 75-mile truck haul into Crescent City. He said many limestone and cement deposits were now dormant.

Floyd H. Hart of the Timber Products company described the lumber areas that would be opened by a water outlet, and said that the harbor would provide cheap transportation to large bodies of government timber in the forest reserve areas.

W. A. Gates, of the Economy Groceries, and H. C. Wilson, Grants Pass grocer, declared water rates would provide cheaper costs on canned goods. Gates said that under the present rail rates cannery development in southern Oregon was retarded.

Thomas Peacock, chairman of the Crescent City harbor board, said that dockage could be provided, by a bond issue, and "all reasonable assurance could be given the docks could be taken care of."

S. M. Tuttle, of the S. O. S., spoke for the fruit interests, and said water rates would mean a saving of $500,000 per year, and provide cheaper and better refrigeration for fruit shipments.

The army board, in the ordinary course, will hand down its findings and recommendations in from three to four months.

Step out into the SUNSHINE

How many days of your life are lost in feeling under par? How many hours which might be bright are dull and dispirited?

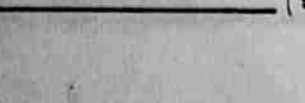

Half-hearted days are frequently due to common constipation. It clouds your waking hours, takes the sunshine out of living. Yet it can be overcome so easily by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. All-Bran is also a fine source of iron.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal way" pleasanter than risking patent medicines?

Two tablets daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve All-Bran as a cereal or use in muffins, breads, omelets, etc. In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

RELIGION GROWS IN AUSTRIA WITH CHANGE IN STATE

25,000 Return To Catholic Church in Vienna Alone—Overthrow Of Social Democracy Is Believed Cause.

By WADE WERNER

VIENNA.—(AP) Tens of thousands of new members are flocking into Austria's churches. The semi-official "Politische Korrespondenz," calling attention to the return of approximately 25,000 men and women to the Catholic church in Vienna alone, believes it is a natural result of the destruction of social democracy in Austria. Says this semi-official organ:

"In consequence of the overthrow of social democracy, which had succeeded in estranging hundreds of thousands from the church by terrorist methods and by heaping contempt on its representatives and most sacred symbols, there has developed in all parts of Austria a 'back-to-the-church' movement simply astonishing in extent."

Protestant Wives Differ
On the other hand, at headquarters of the Protestant churches (Augsburg and Helvetic confessions), the influx of almost 20,000 new members in Austria since February 12 is interpreted as a revival of the Protestant faith stimulated by opposition to the government's goal of establishing a Christian-Catholic state.

Protestant leaders also point out, however, that some who drifted out of the churches when the socialist party dominated Vienna, are coming back now.

The Jewish newspaper "Neue Welt" puts still another interpretation on the new popularity of church membership. Unofficial but nevertheless persistent and quiet elimination of Jews from academic and professional posts, says this newspaper, coupled with an official emphasis on the "Christian-German" character of the new Austria, is causing among faint-hearted Jews a "baptismal movement"—an attempt to make themselves "Christian-German" by joining a Christian church.

Journal Pecries Conversion
What percentage of the new Protestant and Catholic church members are of Jewish ancestry is not clear. The "Neue Welt" itself does not attempt to estimate.

But it does protest vehemently against the suggestion voiced in some pro-government quarters—namely in the "Linzer Volksblatt"—to the effect that the only satisfactory solution of the Jewish problem is the conversion of the Jews to Christianity.

"The bait of baptism doubtless will be effective with certain so-called 'Jewish elements' of the population," observes the "Neue Welt," but the great mass of Jews will re-

FRESH FISH and POULTRY

The magician will tell you that "the hand is quicker than the eye." His skill will bear that out. But sleight of hand is not very successful when you use it with "bargain counter" coffees. Your handiwork with the coffee pot and a cheap grade of coffee will invariably be shown up, for in this case the taste of your husband, and others, is "quicker than the eye." If you want to be always successful with this coffee-making act, use Hills Bros. Coffee. It costs a little more, but you can "take" more fine cups of coffee out of a pound than any magician could get from the same amount of "bargain counter" coffee. And surely that's what you want. Don't you drink coffee by the cup rather than by the pound?
