

U. S. DEATH RATE IN SLIGHT DROPS FOR LAST YEAR

Heart and Circulatory Diseases And Cancer Continue To Take Increasing Toll Statistics Reveal

By F. B. COLTON (Associated Press Science Writer)
 WASHINGTON (AP)—America's death rate fell slightly in 1933, judging from figures just released by the Public Health Service, but heart disease, circulatory disease and cancer continued to take an increasing toll.

Human endurance and medical skill showed a higher percentage of victories than in 1932 over some other important causes of death, however, including pneumonia, apoplexy, nervous disease, tuberculosis, influenza, diphtheria, typhoid fever and deaths in childbirth.

Cross-Section of County
 The Public Health Service report covers 23 states and the District of Columbia, all that gather complete statistics such as are needed for compiling the figures, but is believed to give a roughly accurate cross-section of conditions throughout the country.

Nearly 80 million persons, about two-thirds of the population of the nation, live in the territory covered.

The death rate, from all causes, was 10.6 per 1000 population in 1933, as compared to 10.9 in 1932 and 11.0 in 1931. Three depression years did not serve to send it upward.

Chart of Toll
 The toll taken by several leading causes of death, per 100,000 population, in 1933 as compared with the two previous years was:

Cause of Death	1933	1932	1931
Diseases of circulation	257.3	254.9	246.9
Diseases of heart	225.2	221.4	212.0
Cancer, all forms	105.8	103.8	100.5
Diseases of nervous system	102.9	105.4	105.1
Diseases of respiratory system	81.8	80.8	85.3
Cerebral hemorrhage and apoplexy	80.2	81.9	80.6
Nephritis (kidney)	79.0	81.2	70.7
Pneumonia	70.3	78.4	83.1
Diseases of digestive system	69.0	68.5	74.1

Both children and mothers now have a slightly better chance of survival at the time of birth than in 1932, the figures show. Total infant mortality was 56 per 1,000 live births as against 60 in 1931, although there was no decrease from 1932. Deaths of mothers in childbirth, however, have dropped steadily, being 6.1 per 1,000 live births in 1931, 5.9 in 1932 and 5.6 in 1933.

Diphtheria Down
 Diphtheria, once one of the heaviest scourges of children, took fewer lives than whooping cough in 1933. Deaths from measles and lethargic encephalitis increased slightly, and infantile paralysis deaths remained the same as in 1932, although the figure, 0.7 per 100,000, was a large drop from 1931, when the rate was 2.0 per 100,000.

Almost all the leading causes of death took a smaller toll in 1933 than 1932 except cancer, heart and circulatory diseases, including hardening of the arteries, blocking of arteries and veins by clots, high blood pressure and inflammation of blood vessels.

The tuberculosis death rate dropped as follows: 1931, 64.8 per 100,000; 1932, 60.4; 1933, 56.4. Diabetes showed a very slight drop in 1933 compared with 1932.
