

The "Golden Mine," Unique Dining Place, to Open Saturday

THOMAS BOOTHBY PROPRIETOR NEW PLEASURE CENTER

The fragrance of sugar pine lends an outdoor atmosphere to the Golden Mine, unique dining and dancing rendezvous, which will open Saturday at 323 East Main street under the management of Tom Boothby, well-known Medford man.

Bark from sturdy pines has been used in constructing a 24 foot bar at the entrance of the mine and practically all fixtures are bordered with pine to carry out the rustic plan. The entire length of the new place is 120 feet, 48 of that being devoted to a dance floor located in the north end tunnel.

Forest scenes with blue tinted mountains decorate the walls of the main dining room which has both tables and attractive booths. Lighting fixtures made of laurel hang from the high ceilings. Individual lamps in the booths are also fastened with small laurel limbs.

Separating the tunnel from the main floor is a rugged bark fence below an archway resembling the mouth of a miner's dug out. Lanterns at each side light the way into the dance room which contains a number of comfortable booths, benches hewn from smooth logs and a novel orchestra platform. Music will be furnished by H. "Pat" Davenport, cabaret pianist with years of experience in some of the leading Pacific coast cafes.

Walls of the tunnel are painted to represent the interior of a mine. Costumes of the floormen will add a colorful note with their gay shirts and bandana handkerchief scarfs. A good-sized staff of waiters and waitresses will be on hand Saturday to assure prompt and courteous service, according to Mr. Boothby.

A large balcony bordered with a pine bark fence has been fitted up to take care of Jubilee guests during next week's rush.

An expert pantry man has been secured to prepare sandwiches and salads at the Golden Mine which will also feature beer.

OLD LOGGING ENGINES GOING LAST ROUNDUP

EUREKA, Cal. JUBILEE HIGHLIGHTS

With local merchants responding with a genuine spirit to requests to decorate store fronts for Oregon's Diamond Jubilee celebration, Medford will present an unusually beautiful appearance during Jubilee week. General Chairman E. C. (Jerry) Jerome is particularly pleased with the fine display of civic patriotism in the cooperation of business houses in ordering these decorations.

It is through this cooperation, he said, that it is possible to have streamers of Jubilee decorations strung across the streets and the placing of attractive Jubilee emblems on lamp-posts, leaving a lasting impression on the many thousands of visitors in Medford and southern Oregon next week. It was pointed out that Jubilee shoppers will be attracted to the many stores displaying the Jubilee decorations, and it is likely there will not be a single establishment which will not be displaying Jubilee colors.

Fly-casters from all parts of the Pacific coast have been invited to take part in Oregon's Diamond Jubilee fly-casting tournament scheduled for next Sunday morning, W. F. (Toggerly Bill) Isaacs announced today. An ideal casting pool has been prepared in Bear creek just above the Main street bridge, where events will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Competition will be provided in dry and wet fly accuracy casting, distance fly, distance with 3/4 ounce plug and in other events. Worth-while prizes will be offered to winners, who will be chosen from a good sized field. Interest in this feature of the Jubilee is widespread, but local fly-casters are particularly urged to take part and at their earliest convenience to try out the casting pool. There will be a special event for amateurs. Other details will be announced tomorrow.

"Are the people interested in Oregon's Diamond Jubilee celebration? I should say they are," Monte H. Reger declared upon arriving in Medford today from Ventura, Calif. Mr. Reger is the owner of "Bobby," $10,000 celebrated Longhorn steer which will take an active part in Norman Cowan's famous round-up, featured Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon, followed by a special showing Saturday night. Several hundred dollars in prize money will be offered daily and the largest number of cowboys ever brought together in southern Oregon will take part in the roundup, including numerous names well known in rodeo circles.

One of the novel attractions of Jubilee week will be found in the wedding gown revue to be presented by the Parent-Teacher association at the Baldwin Piano Shoppe Monday, June 4. The revue will be held during the afternoon and will be followed during the remainder of the week by an antique furniture display.

Buddy Reger, eight years old, the youngest rider appearing in any rodeo, will take part in Oregon's Diamond Jubilee roundup next week. The youngster has ridden for the past three years and is said to be better than most grownups.

Inadvertently omitted in the last listing of truck lines carrying Jubilee banners, bringing widespread publicity for the celebration, the name of the Consolidated Freight Lines is included today. The trucks of this company are carrying 25 banners, reaching points in Idaho, Montana, Washington and Oregon.

Co-operation from the Oregon State system of higher education was offered by letter today from Edwin T. Reed, editor of publications of that organization. Mr. Reed submitted his own original Jubilee song and two interesting poems on Crater Lake and the Rogue River. These offerings will undoubtedly be used to advantage. Mr. Reed's office is located in Corvallis.

The housing committee, under the chairmanship of Henry Enders, is reporting excellent progress in its efforts to locate sufficient accommodations for the many visitors to be in Medford, Ashland and Jacksonville during Jubilee week. Mr. Enders states the housing situation is well in hand, assuring accommodations for all visitors. However, people not yet contacted, still having available rooms, are urged to get in touch with Jubilee headquarters as early as possible.
