ASTORIA, Ore., June 4.—(AP)—County Judge Guy Boyington announced today he had been offered appointment as a member of the state unemployment relief committee by Governor Julius L. Meier and that he was wiring his acceptance.

Rialto Star

Phillips Holmes and Mary Brian, along with Zasu Pitts, Ned Sparks and Lew Cody, bring fun, romance and mystery to "Private Scandal," coming to the Rialto theatre tomorrow along with Corp. Bob Ingleston and his humorous version of "America Under Fire."

Corp. Ingleston, official photographer during the World War, not only secured some rare battle scenes but, something unique in the way of war pictures, also filmed a great deal of the comedy situations which arose from time to time. Accompanying the picture with a humorous account of the various activities, told in the language of the doughboy, Corp. Ingleston appears on each show in person.

FORGER GETS PARDON FROM GOVERNOR MEIER

SALEM, Ore., June 4.—(AP)—Governor Julius L. Meier today issued a pardon to Earl Melvin Smith, who was sentenced to the state penitentiary for two years on a charge of forgery in Wasco county June 22, 1933. A pardon from the Multnomah county jail was issued by the governor to Kenneth Ambler, who was sentenced to one year last January 18.

AMERICA UNDER FIRE

A doughboys' side of the argument... "Who won the War?" The infantry? The artillery? The aviation corps? Nope! You're all wrong. The dear old K. P. were the boys who won the War!

Janet Gaynor In Leading Role of Craterian Film

With such a cast, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell reunited, James Dunn and Ginger Rogers featured, in an emotion-stirring human interest love story, the entertainment values in "Change of Heart," now playing at the Craterian theatre, are practically self evident.

It's clean, totally satisfying entertainment, a romantic drama of definite charm. The leads are presented in a more mature vehicle, one in which realism rather than illusion predominates, all of which gives it a uniquely colorful character. The story is modern. Convincingly portrayed, it deals in a natural way with situations and conditions with which ordinary folk are familiar. It deals with four young college graduates who go to New York to carve out careers in four widely diverging lines. One would be a lawyer, the second a writer, third an actress, fourth a crooner. Love, the closest influence to each, is given scanty consideration in relation to their aspirations. But it changes the whole course of each one's life. Janet loves Charlie, who in turn is mad about Ginger, the idol of Jimmy's affections. Life plays queer tricks on all four. But in the end, the love that life has destined comes to each one. "Change of Heart" is unquestionably one of the finest pictures in which the popular team of Gaynor and Farrell have appeared. With its modern story of youth seeking happiness and love, bucking against the realities of life, it becomes up to date and wholly believable. And with the supporting cast, headed by James Dunn and Ginger Rogers, featuring many well known players.
