

GRANGE IS GIVEN GILL'S IDEAS ON TAX LEGISLATION

our best citizens to accept this office. Something must be done to make our legislature less cumbersome and more responsive to the people.

Charging that prohibition was repealed on promises that temperance would be promoted, he declared that liquor interests "do not even stop at beheading the youth of our land."

Commenting upon the agricultural adjustment act and the national recovery act, the Grange master declared that while crop restrictions must be used, the farmers of America cannot be forced to submit to regimentation of their crops and that the problem must be approached from a different angle.

"Much can be accomplished," he declared, "by withdrawing marginal and sub-marginal lands from cultivation, but I am convinced we have been thinking too much about crop reductions rather than increased consumption."

"Taxation," he insisted, "continues to be the big headache for those who legislate, administer or pay. Millions in property tax relief were lost by the repeal of the Pierce income tax law, and millions more were lost because a selfish group has continuously fought income tax laws or their improvements. The tremendous burden that brought property taxes to the breaking point can be largely charged to extravagances, tax exempt securities, and tax-dodging resistance to income and inheritance taxes."

For More Income Tax Concentration of wealth, he declared, has much to do with the burden of taxes and debt, and advocated that a greater part of the burden be placed upon persons with large incomes by means of income, inheritance and gift taxes striking in the higher brackets. The nation cannot expect to return to prosperity as long as the masses of people have so little purchasing power, he insisted. He urged further currency inflation to reduce interest rates.

"All the new deals ever proposed will avail little until the economic injustice is righted," he told the convention.

To Aid Education

Discussing the subject of education, he pledged the Oregon Grange to support educational activities, and urged that efforts be made to secure a greater share of federal funds for school purposes. Money for schools should be raised by income taxes, he insisted, rather than from a sales tax on the necessities of life. The speaker advocated federal banking, state control of gasoline, and state controlled power distribution. He urged the Grange to oppose the chain retail store system, and to give greater co-operation to organized marketing of farm products. Farmers were also urged to take a greater interest in tourist travel, as agriculture, he stated, receives the greatest benefits.

FIRST BORN FUSS RAGING 40 YEARS

That the current controversy over who was the first white boy born in Jackson county is not new, is attested by a clipping handed in today by Mrs. Clara Barker of Medford. The time yellowed clipping, which she has treasured for over 40 years, was taken from some pioneer paper published in the county, but she does not now remember the name. It reads as follows:

"To the editor: The statement made at the pioneer reunion as to Basil Dairy being the first white boy born in Jackson county is all a mistake. He was not born in Jackson county, but his parents came to Jacksonville when he was a baby; they came in 1852. Neither can Walter Gore claim the honor. Bruce Evans was the first white boy born in Jackson county. He was born in Jacksonville in August, 1852. All real pioneers know this to be a fact—and Mollie Ross was the first white girl baby born in Jacksonville, Jackson county, Oregon. (Signed) A Pioneer."

$773 SOUGHT BY MAN WHO HEADED SEARCH FOR DEAD INDIAN PAIR

William C. Lindsay, who led a party of searchers through the wilds of the Deep Indian country for the bodies of E. C. Brown and wife, Hattie, homesteaders, who perished in a blizzard that raged over that area in January, 1932, has filed suit against Jackson county for $773 for services rendered in the hunt. The claims of six other searchers have been assigned to Lindsay.

The snow-covered bodies of the Browns were found in the early spring of 1932, beside a log after a search that proceeded intermittently for 42 days. The Browns led the home of A. R. Cooley, a neighbor, where they were visiting, near the close of a snowy January afternoon for their own cabin, which they never reached. They lost their way in the storm and the wild country. The Browns hailed from California, and were building a home in the wilderness.

The attorney general of Oregon, in an opinion, ruled that the county court had no authority to pay the claims of the searchers.

Lindsay, an experienced tracker, headed the search, and sets forth that he did so upon the instructions of then Sheriff Ralph G. Jennings, and then coroner Henry W. Conger. The search extended through the months of February, March and April, 1932.

Lindsay filed a claim for $126. The others, assigned to him are: W. B. Taylor, $126; Mike Taylor, $135; John Farmer, $145; G. W. Farmer, $116.50; Ivan Farmer, $66 and A. R. Cooley, $72.

Attorney William Briggs of Ashland appears as counsel for Lindsay.

CIRCUIT COURT JURY TO HEAR FIRST CASE THURSDAY IS OUTLOOK

The petit jury for the circuit court term has been called for next Thursday, June 14, and the first case listed is the appeal of Carl Anderson from a decision of the probate court in his claim against the estate of Ray H. Toft. Anderson claims that by reason of an agreement with Toft, he was to be paid for services approximating $1500. The probate court, in its findings, allowed a lesser amount.

Delay was experienced in starting circuit court cases docketed, when the first case scheduled was withdrawn.

The damage suit of James T. Kinkade against the sheriffs of Jackson and Klamath counties for alleged false imprisonment, set for Tuesday, was postponed because Kinkade is quarantined.

A second amended answer was filed yesterday by Miss Low of Klamath county setting forth that Kinkade was arrested in legal manner, and apprised of his rights. It is set forth that a warrant was issued for Kinkade's arrest in May, 1932, upon a non-support charge, filed by his wife, who later declined to testify against him.

Kinkade seeks $2500 damages, alleging that while held in the Jackson county jail the "kangaroo court" fined him, and that when he was removed to the Klamath county jail the judicial body of that bastille also fined him, leaving him without funds. He also alleges that the warrant was illegal and his arrest was without due authority.

The local sheriff's office made the arrest, upon a warrant for Klamath county.

YOUR GROCER HAS THIS SUNNY WAY TO BETTER HEALTH

Check Common Constipation with a Delicious Cereal Food has a lot to do with how you feel and how you look. For instance, you need plenty of "bulk" with your meals to avoid the risk of common constipation. This ailment frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. Laboratory tests show the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is safe and effective. In fact, it is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

In addition, ALL-BRAN provides vitamin B and iron. Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TRUCKING CODE STILL IN EFFECT

Advice just received from Washington indicate rates and practices of the NRA trucking code will continue and that no trucks are to be allowed to operate below costs, according to C. C. Thompson of the Association of Commercial Truck Owners.

Mr. Thompson further states that all truckers who operate for hire must register before June 14 if they wish to have any say in the management of the trucking code. Very little interest has been shown by truck owners in the code in this state, so far, he says, when in reality the NRA should benefit the smaller truck owners more than anything else could, providing the state code authority represents all groups of operators, and does not represent only a small portion or group of the industry.

Mr. Collins of the Brown and White Realty Co., is the registration officer for Jackson county.

Nathan Floyd Sargent, charged with driving while intoxicated, received a sentence of 30 days in jail, a fine of $100 and costs and had his auto license suspended for a year. The offense was committed Saturday night on the Jacksonville highway.
