

LOCK EMPLOYERS THWART PEACE

By PAUL MALLON. (Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon) WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14—The White House is beginning to show inner signs of getting just a little hardballed about things in general.

There is less and less tendency toward conciliation and compromise, and a noticeable trend toward doing what it pleased and letting its critics go hang.

Most presidents get around to this point after the first year. They find they cannot please everyone, or even conduct their business in an open way.

Something of that strong feeling is manifest in arrangements President Roosevelt is making for his Hawaiian trip.

Most presidents have been afraid to go any distance from Washington for their vacations even in placid times.

Mr. Roosevelt is going to take six weeks to go to Honolulu, but what is more important, he is making arrangements which will get him farther away than the distance indicated.

Only three newsmen will be permitted to go along, instead of the normal retinue of 10 or 20.

The explanation offered by the White House is that space on the cruiser will not accommodate any White House staff or newsmen.

The Japanese nearly put over a lightning-fast diplomatic play on Mr. Roosevelt during the visit of Prince Konooye.
