

FINE PAINTINGS GRACE WALLS OF SISKIYOU CAMP

By Iva Fewell.

On the summit of the Siskiyou mountains where one would least expect to find portraits that had been exhibited in the Royal Academy at Burlington house in London, and in The Salon, exhibit of the National Society of Fine Arts in Paris, is a fine collection, painted by W. J. McCloskey and his wife. Mrs. McCloskey died 20 years ago.

Mr. McCloskey makes his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell, who have the Siskiyou camp, near the summit. In the lodge at the camp, where a cheery fire crackles on cool evenings, are numerous portraits and paintings that have been exhibited in the leading galleries of the world.

Every crease and wrinkle in the little girl's taffeta brocade dress, the expression on her face, and the realistic appearance of her hair, cause one to momentarily hesitate as he first sees the life-size portrait of a small child standing at one end of the hall.

One is tempted to step a bit closer to view the eyes, which do not seem painted at all, but just a reflection.

"That picture of the watermelon," Mr. McCloskey said, pointing to a large reproduction of a melon cut open, "was painted 40 years ago, and 40 years from now it will still make people's mouths water."

Most of the paintings by the couple were made in the late '80s and '90s. A small framed picture of Mrs. Russell, when but a small child, as she was mounting the stairway to her father's Paris studio, is one of the attractive portraits painted by Mr. McCloskey. The long blue velvet coat and bonnet which the little girl was wearing show the natural appearance of the rich cloth.

The expressions upon the faces of the children portrayed are outstanding and some of the other large canvases show true talent of both Mr. and Mrs. McCloskey.

Pictures of the great Shakespearean actor, R. D. McLean hang on the wall, and there is one large picture of a dish of grapes which Mrs. McCloskey painted.

FRED M. SMITH, 73, TAKEN BY DEATH

Fred M. Smith, a resident of Medford for 22 years, but for the last seven years a resident of Ashland, passed away at the home of his son, Roland A. Smith, 423 Newton street at 1:25 a. m. today, June 26, at the age of 73.

Mr. Smith was born at Sandusky, Ohio, March 22, 1861. He was married at that place in 1887 and in 1905, moved with his family to Oregon and settled at Medford. His death was due to paralysis.

Besides his wife Anna Smith, he leaves four sons, Clifton F. Smith, Central Point; Roland A., Medford; Hubert A., Eagle Point; and Fred A., Ashland. Also one brother and one sister, William E. Smith of Medford and Mrs. Henry Schnee, Monroeville, Ohio.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Conger chapel by Rev. W. R. Baird at 3:30 Wednesday. Interment in the Medford I. O. O. F. cemetery.

SWEENEY HONORED AT MEDICS MEET

Dr. Charles T. Sweeney of Medford, who has been attending the joint convention of the Pacific Northwest and Utah State Medical associations, has been named president-elect of the Pacific Northwest Medical association, according to announcements appearing in the Salt Lake Tribune, with the doctor's picture.

The Oregon councillor named from this state was Dr. Charles E. Seaza of Portland. Dr. M. C. Riddle is a hold-over member of the council, which chooses a representative from each state.

Dr. Sweeney has taken an active part in medical groups, having served as president of both the southern Oregon and Jackson county medical societies.

PANHANDLER'S CURSES WIN HIM JAIL JOLT

Harry Williams, transient, charged with vagrancy, was found guilty before Justice of the Peace William R. Coleman yesterday, and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail. It was charged that Williams begged for money from house to house and when refused directed profane language at those at the door.

Ralph E. Dunning of this city, charged with non-possession of an auto operator's license, was fined $3 and costs.

SMALL FRUIT AIDED BY GENERAL RAINS

The rain that fell generally over the Rogue river valley yesterday afternoon and last night, was beneficial to all products of field and orchard, particularly small fruit, garden, and lawns, according to Glen Arnsperger, general manager of the Medford and Talent irrigation districts.

Arnsperger said the moisture was not heavy enough to cause any material benefits to pears and heavy crops, except to refresh them temporarily, and would not help irrigation. Some hay was damaged slightly by the rain.

GILL WILL SPEAK IN ASHLAND JULY 4TH

ASHLAND, June 26.—(Sp.)—Rev. W. Gill, master of the Oregon State Grange, will be in Ashland for the Applegate Grange's Fourth of July celebration, according to information received from Edwin Taylor, master of the Applegate Grange.

Gill is a dynamic public speaker, and his lecture will be a high point in the events of the day.

When asked how many people he thought would be present in Ashland for the Grange celebration, Taylor stated that at least 4000 Grangers would attend.

AGREE ON BONDS TO START SPANS

SALEM, Ore., June 26.—(UP)—The state highway commission today received notification from J. M. Devers, highway attorney now in Washington, D. C., that the government had agreed to accept $1,000,000 worth of temporary state bonds for the five Oregon coast bridges.

Total cost of the structures is estimated at $5,602,000. Tentative contracts have been awarded for the Cook Bay, Newport and Alesca spans.

Devers wired that arrangements are being made on the balance to get the PWA to accept additional temporary bonds to finance construction. Failing in this, the state will be forced to issue regular bonds.

SLAYER OF GIRL TO HANG FRIDAY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26.—(AP)—Paul H. Kauffman, 35, much married, songwriting Pennsylvania war veteran, will hang here Friday for the bestial attack and murder of Avis Woolley, 17-year-old farm girl.

He lured her from her small town home by advertising for a nurse maid, trial records revealed. The street car ride from the Union Station to Swope park, where she died, was all she saw of the city.

The murder was in August, 1930.

STATE BANK BILL PETITIONS FILED

Initiative petitions for the state Grange sponsored state bank bill were filed yesterday with the county clerk for checking with the registration books. The initiative measure also provides for a repeal of the Oregon constitution section prohibiting the state to enter into the banking business, or issue legal tender. The names on the petitions filed yesterday were from the Central Point, Sams Valley, Antioch, Gold Hill, and other north county precincts.

Thirteen petitions bearing signatures for the Healing Arts initiative measure were also filed. They were circulated by Portland petition circulators and include signatures from Linn, Douglas, Josephine and this county. The majority of the signatures are from this city and Ashland.

Tried in October, 1930, the supreme court reversed the case on a technicality and ordered a retrial. Again in May, 1932, a jury found Kauffman guilty, fixed the penalty at death on the gallows. The supreme court upheld the sentence May 17, this year, and said Kauffman should die at 6 a. m., Friday, June 29.

Best as a CEREAL

Best for COOKING

It's so convenient to keep a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the kitchen. Serve it as a cereal. Use it also as a healthful ingredient in your cooking. For muffins, breads, omelets, waffles, etc.

ALL-BRAN brings your family the "bulk" that is so helpful in correcting common constipation.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. In severe cases, with each meal. How much better than risking patent medicines!

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. This "bulk" is similar to that in leafy vegetables. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

Special processes of cooking and flavoring make Kellogg's ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable than ordinary raw bran.

And because it is all bran—with only flavoring added—it brings you more "bulk" than part-bran products.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
