PORTLAND STRIKE INCREASES STATE RELIEF PROBLEMS

Moth With Long Tongue Captured Here By Luman

"Believe it or not," the moth with a tongue five and one-half inches long that was pictured June 24th in Robert W. Ripley's famous column, is found in the vicinity of Medford, and that statement is substantiated by the fact that a specimen caught here by Ira Luman was brought here by the Mail Tribune office today.

COAST LAND DEAL HIT GOV. MERRIAM

SACRAMENTO, June 30.—(AP)—Answering dispatches from Medford, Ore., linking his name with the Crescent City Investment company, which is being sued for alleged misrepresented land deals, acting Governor Frank P. Merriam said today the company was operated for legitimate purposes and that he lost all his resources attempting to sustain it as such.

LOCALS

Gilstrap Leaves—E. R. Gilstrap, business manager of the Mail Tribune, left Saturday morning on the Shasta for Eugene to spend several days.
Fellow Visits Here—Nyla Penell of Monte Vista, Colo., arrived here Friday evening to visit relatives and friends. He formerly made his home in this city.

Mr. Scheffel will take with him the resolution adopted last week by southern Oregon chambers of commerce regarding the expenditure of funds for primary highways, wherein it is suggested that these funds be devoted to the Biaktyous.

He will also present Medford's claim for funds from secondary highway ways for the Little Butte creek road which will give a direct connection between this city and Klamath Falls. This highway would not only be a great deal shorter, but would afford an opportunity for a greater interchange of products between Klamath and Jackson county.

Certain monies have been allocated for municipalities on the main highways, and in this connection, Mr. Scheffel will also urge that Medford obtain its share of this allotment.

SALEM, June 30.—(AP)—Delegations representing virtually every section of the state will convene in Portland Monday to plead their cause for a share of the $3,097,814 appropriated for highway work in Oregon under the Cartwright bill recently passed by congress.

The commission will meet at the public service building for what was believed would be a two-day session to consider the projects upon which the money would be expended. The commission's program includes many projects, but the purpose of this session is to determine which should be placed at the top of the list.

Bids on one project, the undercrossing on the Pacific highway near Ashland, will be opened at the beginning of the Monday meeting. The project was expected to cost about $50,000.

Annie Springs CCC Vacancies Selection

Quite a number of vacancies are to be filled Monday for the Annie Springs CCC camp, Crater Lake National Park. It was announced last evening by park officials. These men are asked to appear at the Jackson County Relief office or the Federal Reemployment office tomorrow morning, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

This camp is one of two located in the park, the other being located at Wineglass, for which a number of men will also be enlisted. There are no specified age limits, but men versed in carpentry, line work and other specialized endeavors are especially desired. The call for these men is an official request from the national park service in cooperation with the CCC headquarters, relief bureau and re-employment agency.

What to do about the prospect that the prominent socialist, Upton Sinclair, may win the democratic gubernatorial nomination is another question. The administration does not want to get a socialist label, because there has been too much talk about Roosevelt policies tending toward socialism.

License fees and taxes met expenses of state supervision during the first eight months of legalized boxing and wrestling in Texas.

Meanwhile Aaron Holtz, who was temporary organizer for the commission, entered the controversy with the declaration that a reference in McMorrah's letter to the governor was "just another attempt to make me the goat."

McMorrah was told the governor, without naming Holtz, that "a man you insisted be placed at the head of the commission's buying department" was responsible "for early purchases of stock which could not be moved." The retiring chairman had said that this deal was the only "bad business" venture of which the commission could be accused.

Holtz wrote to McMorrah that he was "somewhat shocked to note your statement that the major part of the grief experienced by the Oregon state liquor control commission was due to the unsatisfactory purchases originally made for the account of the state. The facts of the situation do not bear out the truth of this statement, as... fully 90 per cent of the best selling brands on your shelves were arranged for during my short term of employment in the state activity."

Rates Improved—Guy Bates of Rogue River was reported slightly improved last evening at the Sacred Heart hospital. He suffered a slight fracture of the skull Thursday night in an automobile accident.
