HOLDUP SATISFIED WITH FIFTY CENTS

Fifty cents was a satisfactory haul for a hold-up man who thrust a 38 Colts automatic in the ribs of C. J. Pritchett, manager of the Western Auto Supply Co., 101 South Riverside at 9:50 last night. Pritchett had left the store for home and was stepping into his car outside when the hold-up occurred. The bandit, a young fellow, came up behind Pritchett and demanded his money. Upon being refused, he thrust a gun into Pritchett's ribs, whereupon he was given 50 cents and left, apparently satisfied. The robber was described as 5 feet, 4 inches tall, dark complexioned, with a black mustache, and wearing dark trousers and a light shirt. Pritchett reports that this is the second time he has been accosted, the first offense having occurred two years ago when a single man entered the store as Pritchett was locking up and apparently got "scared out" after demanding to have a check cashed.

New Adventure

"Last Round-Up"

The daring border legion rode out of the thrilling '70s this afternoon onto the screen of the Roxy theater, to live again in "The Last Round-Up," those dangerous days of the west when the majority of adventurers took gold from the ground and the miners took it away from them. "The Last Round-Up" struck a new tone in outdoor romance with the first enactment and screen recording of the famous cowboy lament, "The Border Legion." Everything expected of an outdoor rapid-fire drama is embraced in the screening of this Zane Grey novel, "The Border Legion." Randolph Scott, portraying the hero role of Jim Cleve, the hardy son of the west who inadvertently finds himself a member of the outlaw band, wins his right to future stardom. The action of "The Ninth Guest," the second film on the big double-feature program, takes place in a span of less than 24 hours. Eight persons, friends, enemies, lovers, trapped in a penthouse high above New York City, battle a hidden and ruthless foe. The fiend's plans evolve successfully, until he interferes in the romance of two young people and encounters his match. Bathing caps from 10c to 50c at Medford Pharmacy.

Sailor Comedy Now at Rialto

Lew Ayres and Alice Faye have the leading roles in "She Learned About Sailors," a rollicking story of nautical life and love, starting a three day run at the Rialto theatre today. "Stingaree" Coming To Craterian Soon. Late in the 1870's the populous sections of Australia were terrorized by a notorious, dashing Robin Hood bandit, called "Stingaree." Among his depredations was the kidnaping of the governor general of All Australia. Later he shocked the British empire by attending a theatre in Melbourne, wearing the governor's full regalia. He managed to escape. With him he took Hilda Bourverie, celebrated beauty and operatic star of the period. The remarkable romance between the opera star and the bandit is told in "Stingaree," co-starring Irene Dunne and Richard Dix, with Mary Boland in a featured role. The picture comes to the Craterian theatre Thursday.

Shirley Temple in "Baby, Take a Bow"

Shirley Temple certainly is entitled to take a bow for her performance in "Baby, Take a Bow," which opened yesterday at the Craterian theatre. The work of this 5-year-old girl is really astonishing. She possesses the grace and intelligence of a grown person and a personality that will carry her far. In "Stand Up and Cheer!" she was delightful in a little sketch with James Dunn. In "Baby, Take a Bow," she has an important part running the full length of the picture and she turns in a truly remarkable performance. She hasn't a trace of self-consciousness. Every gesture, every line is delivered with unstudied grace. She will steal your heart as soon as she comes on the screen. And giving all this space to little Shirley is not to belittle the performances turned in by the grownup actors in the cast. James Dunn and Claire Trevor are excellent as little Shirley's parents. Alan Dinehart has his amusing moments as the blundering detective who is dogging Dunn's heels. Fireworks in middle of Lake of the Woods the Fourth. Swim caps at cost at the Medford Pharmacy.
