

MILK LAW BREACH BRINGS FINE FOR LOCAL DAIRYMAN

Charles J. Campbell, merchant-dairyman, entered a plea of guilty before Justice of the Peace William R. Coleman this morning, to a charge of selling milk without a license, as required by the Oregon milk control law.

The court said it was reluctant to impose even the minimum fine for what he regarded as "a technical violation, but there is the law on the books, and the court must adhere to it."

Campbell said he was willing to procure a license. He was informed by Milk Inspector John Billings of Ashland that he would have to apply direct to the milk control board, and that he would have to be passed upon by that body before he could be listed as a "milk distributor."

The Oregon milk control law was passed by the last session of the legislature, and it makes milk a public utility, like an electric light concern or a railroad, and fixes the price. It is a very rigid law, and covers the milk industry thoroughly. It also requires that all milk producers, etc., be licensed. The United States supreme court has held the law constitutional.

The purpose of the law is to safeguard the health of the users and the pocketbooks of the producers, and thwart price-cutting.

The court and Deputy District Attorney Nelson had a short discussion on the right of a milk producer to give away some of his milk if he felt like it, under certain conditions, but not as an outright act of charity.

John Billings, inspector of the southern Oregon district for the past month, has been investigating dairy sale conditions, and a number of complaints have been filed in Josephine, Jackson and Klamath counties for violations of the milk control law.

KLAMATH BLAZE PERILS TIMBER

KLAMATH FALLS, July 6.—(P)—Two hundred acres of scrub pine and grass were burned on the Klamath Indian reservation today and the flames were beginning to threaten valuable stands of timber.

The fire was between Algoma and Modoc Point, north of Klamath Falls. Eighty men have been called to fight the fire, with 150 more held in reserve should the flames race beyond control.

Louisiana agricultural authorities figure that if the state's annual production of strawberries was placed end to end, the line would reach around the world twice.

BARTLETT PRICE FIXING EXPECTED IN COMING WEEK

Court Hall, local representative of Schuekel & Co., of Oakland, Cal., said a representative of the company would be here next week to survey the local cannery Bartlett situation, when "prices will probably be announced."

Hall said he did not expect any active buying until next week, and that many of the growers had declined an offer of $32.50 per ton for orchard run of Bartlett, and $33 for 2 1/2 sizes. He said Schuekel & Co. withdrew that price when they found the growers unwilling to sell.

It is reported there have been few cannery Bartlett purchases in the northwest and California districts, as the growers are holding for higher prices. A few valley orchardists sold at $35 per ton. Offers in California districts range from $30 to $35, with $40 per ton reported from some of the Sacramento River districts.

Picking and packing of the local Bartlett is now scheduled to start between July 15 and 20, with the late orchards coming in not later than July 25. Testing of pears is scheduled to start next week.

Local Bartlett are reported of better size and quality than last year, and developing rapidly under present weather conditions.

SIMPLE SERVICE FOR MME. CURIE

SCEAUX, France, July 6.—(P)—Mme. Marie Curie was buried today

TOMORROW Is the Big Day See PIGGLY WIGGLY AD Pg. 6

as she had lived, in the utmost simplicity.

There was a 10-minute ceremony without a civil or religious ritual. Her frail, wasted body, which she devoted to science, was lowered in a plain oak casket into the same grave with her husband in a crowded and least expensive part of the little village cemetery.

Roses were distributed to each of the 25 laboratory associates and 150 friends and scientists who were here when an automobile hearse brought the casket at 11:30 a. m.

The mourners formed a line and each placed a rose on the closed casket in walking by.

BROTHERS DIE IN LETHAL GAS BOX

STATE PRISON, FLORENCE, Ariz., July 6.—(P)—Two brothers, Manuel, 18, and Fred Hernandez, 19, paid with their lives at 5:12 a. m. today in Arizona's lethal gas chamber for the murder a year ago of Charles Washburn, aged prospector of Needles, Cal. in a holdup near Casa Grande, Ariz., in which $25 was obtained.

The boys were brought into the death box about 4:55 a. m., and started breathing the deadly cyanide fumes at 5:09 a. m. Two minutes later, Fred was pronounced dead. A minute later, Manuel was dead.

Forty witnesses, who saw the boys lose their lives, were ordered out of the space surrounding the death chamber before either of the prisoners had taken a deep breath of the fumes. Telling the witnesses to leave, officials said a leak had occurred in the box.

BUTTER MARKET HOLDS POSITION

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6.—(AP)—Strength of the butter market was uniform throughout the country, although little further change in quotations was suggested at leading trade centers. Portland continued one of the low priced spots in the country as a result of the official state price—quoted by the produce exchange here — being held below what was being freely offered and paid for actual supplies on the open market.

That the demand for strictly fresh eggs is sufficiently strong to maintain full the recent advance in price, was the report of Edna B. Reed, head of Oregon Laid Eggs and Poultry. Prices were unchanged for the day.

There was a good call for everything in the chicken line along the wholesale way. Prices were firmly held for all offerings which are not any too liberal at the moment.
