FRIENDS OF SLAIN NAZI LEADERS AIM TO TAKE REVENGE

turbed Catholics were heard in Berlin.

Meanwhile the course of government policy was believed to have taken a step toward conservatism with the delegation of new powers to Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, who, it was hinted, might attempt to quell some aspects of the anti-Jewish activities of the government in order to better Germany's economic situation.

Guard strengthened.
The strengthening of the guard in Berlin was believed to have been decided upon during Hitler's recent conferences with the Nazi party's inner council partially as a measure of preparation for the eventual disbanding of the storm troops.

The fact that the storm troops are to be scrapped, excepting for a small percentage, has not been published, but the news was spreading rapidly by word of mouth among S. A. members.

The names and number of those killed in recent "liquidations" activities, the Nazi press department said, is being withheld in order to avoid exciting friends of the dead men.

Hitler, the press department said, is preparing a long communique on the mutiny and the way he suppressed it. It was said the list of dead would be included in this communique, to appear in a few days.

An important victory for the conservative element of the Nazi government was seen today in the granting of almost autocratic commercial powers to Kurt Schmitt.

He is authorized to impose unlimited fines on persons and institutions who refuse to obey his orders.

REMODELING OF PIGGLY WIGGLY STORE FINISHED

A corps of workmen has just completed the finishing touches on the remodeling and re-arrangement of the Piggly Wiggly store in this city, at 210 East Main street, and a remodeling sale will be launched tomorrow in celebration of this improvement program. This program included an entirely new open front, and re-arrangement of the store with sections and table numbers and the installation of an up-to-the-minute vegetable display case.

The new store, as a result of the improvements made, is lighter and cooler, and provides added shopping conveniences for Piggly Wiggly patrons.

Jim Field has recently come to Medford from Portland to assume active management of the Medford store, and W. O. Cooksey, former Piggly Wiggly head here is now manager of the Grants Pass unit.

Mr. Field comes to this city with wide experience in the grocery merchandising field, having been identified with the Piggly Wiggly organization since its establishment in Oregon 11 years ago. He is a member of the American Legion and holds membership in various fraternal organizations. During the war Mr. Field was a captain of artillery in France, and is now a major in the reserve.

"I am delighted in having the opportunity to become a resident of Medford," Mr. Field said today. "For several years I have visited this city on and off, and have always had the desire to live here. When the opportunity presented itself to take charge of the Medford unit of the Piggly Wiggly organization, I immediately took advantage of it. It will be my aim to actively identify this store with civic and business activities of Medford, as well as continually strive to improve the service to Piggly Wiggly store patrons. Local produce will be especially featured as encouragement to industries of the Rogue River valley."

People of this city are delighted in having Mr. Field as a resident here, but regret the fact that W. O. Cooksey has moved to Grants Pass to assume the management of the Piggly Wiggly store there. Mr. Cooksey, familiarly known as "Bill," has been connected with the Piggly Wiggly organization for the past six years, and has made a fine record as manager of the store in this city.

When Gertrude Stein comes to this country next fall to lecture she will bring with her Alice B. Toklas, whom many who read Miss Stein's autobiography thought a myth.

Three courses to follow. One would be to hold a public hearing, the second a private hearing or the board could demand a referendum from the strikers to decide who should represent them.

Trucks mounted with machine guns rumbled over the cobble stones along the five-and-a-half-mile thoroughfare, but there was a peaceful calm in contrast with the riotous scenes of yesterday, in which two men were shot to death and 34 wounded in fierce clashes with police.

Chester L. Hibbard of Alameda, employed by a steamship company at San Francisco, said he was attacked by four men as he was about to board a train for San Francisco. In the struggle, a weapon which he said he had been carrying because of threats against his life, went off and struck Miner. Before lapsing into unconsciousness, however, Miner told physicians he was wounded when a pistol in the strikers' automobile went off accidentally.

lines of piers stretching in a semi-circle along the waterfront.

In the headquarters were installed radio and telephone communication so the 1500 guardsmen on waterfront duty can be dispatched immediately to any spot in the area should rioting occur.

Col. C. D. O'Sullivan, intelligence officer of the national guard, declared the guardsmen were not "greenhorns" but that most of the men had been in the guard at least a year and many for longer service.

More Troopers Ready
Colonel O'Sullivan said that a total of 6500 troopers could be placed in the district within a day if the need arose.

Sentries were placed on the side of the Embarcadero by the piers, while police, relieved from their strenuous duties yesterday, kept guard at strategic points to keep traffic away from the "hot spots" of the rioting which resulted in the fatalities.

No violence was reported today and only a few strikers were observed along the waterfront.

Colonel O'Sullivan said the soldiers would protect the state-owned belt line railroad. The calling out of the guard by Governor Frank Merriam resulted when the strikers fired one of the railroad boxcars.

Meanwhile the labor disputes board appointed by President Roosevelt had issued no statement regarding the status of strike settlement negotiations.

The board previously had set a deadline of midnight Thursday for the International Longshoremen's association and the nine other maritime unions on strike to reply to its ultimatum demanding they take a vote on whether to submit the situation to arbitration.

SCHRADERS OPEN STUDIO OF DANCE

Ted and Evelyn Schrader, former Fanchon and Marco dance team, have established a dance studio in this city and will form classes at once, according to an announcement today by Mr. Schrader. This school will be conducted in a hall over the former location of the Southern Building & Loan Association with entrance next to the Baldwin piano store on West Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Schrader have conducted a dance studio in Grants Pass for the past several months and will continue their activities there, although they have established permanent residence in Medford. Fixtures and equipment for their Medford studio will be immediately installed and instruction will begin at once.
